HUGHES FIGHT BREAKS OUT ON SENATE FLOOR

Borah and Glass Oppose Hoover's Choice for Supreme Bench.

QUESTION IS KEPT PENDING OVERNIGHT

Appointee Served the Oil Interests, Is Charge of Idaho Senator.

STATE RIGHTS' FOE, VIRGINIAN DECLARES

Blease Sits Down as Fess Gives Facts on Taft Family's Affairs.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The Senate opposition to the appointment of Charles Evans Hughes as Chief Justice yesterday developed into an open fight, one that began slowly, but gathered unexpected momentum as it progressed.

It was significant that after a bitter arraignment of Mr. Hughes by Senators Borah, of Idaho, and Glass, of Virginia, the opponents maneuvered to keep the question pending overnight. The reaction from these two attacks, particularly that of Borah, will in all probability determine whether the fight will be prolonged or ended today.

Senator Watson, majority leader, who earlier had welcomed attacks by the Progressives and Democrats in the belief that they would be put in a bad light before the country, grew uneasy at yesterday's developments and sought to press for a vote. But he was assured that the opposition had plenty of speakers to produce.

Calls His Views Indefensible.

Senator Borah characterized as "indefensible" Hughes' views as expressed when he was on the Supreme Court before, in his legal practice and in his public expressions.

Charging that as Secretary of State he had "served the oil interests in Persia and Mexico," the senator declared that when Mr. Hughes resigned he went to sit upon the board of the American Petroleum Institute "with Harry Sinclair, Doheny and Stewart," and that this institute "under Hughes' astute directorship was undertaking to shape the oil affairs of the Nation."

"He appeared before the Oil Conservation Board," Senator Borah charged, "and argued that the Government should keep its hands off oil and that the Standard Oil Co. and other such companies of modest appetites should keep their hands on oil."

Hogan's Case Recalled.

No one would advocate the confirmation of Frank J. Hogan, who defended the oil men," Senator Borah declared, "yet we are asked to confirm Mr. Hughes."

Mr. Hughes feels, the senator declared, that there should be practically no restraint on the great corporate interests of the United States.

Asserting that under the fourteenth amendment the Supreme Court has become the economic dictator of the country, Senator Borah said he did not question Mr. Hughes' integrity, sincerity or legal eminence, but declared that he would not vote to place one of his known economic views on the court when matters affecting every person in the country are to be an issue the next few years.

He declared that Mr. Hughes belongs to that group which places property rights above personal rights.

"Coal, iron, oil, gas and transportation have practically all gone into the hands of a very few people," he declared, "and the great problem is how the people may regulate these industries to retain the use of them. Unless a reasonable rule is established we will be driven to public ownership."

Cites Baltimore Rate Case.

To show just what the Supreme Court decisions now mean to the people and the wide divisions of the court respecting them, he cited the recent Baltimore rate case, in which the majority of the court held that the street railway company in Baltimore was receiving only 6.36 per cent return on its valuation and that this return was confiscatory. And as a part of the valuation the decision held that a franchise given free to the company and valued at $5,000,000 should be considered.

The minority opinion by Justices Brandeis, Holmes and Stone held that a 6.36 per cent return was sufficient in the first place and that the franchise should not be considered a part of the valuation in the second.

Hughes, he declared, is associated in his views with the majority combination "which if carried to its logical conclusion must result in suffering to the people of the United States."

"I can not vote," he declared, "for the placing upon the court as Chief Justice one whose views are known

1,200 JOBLESS BATTLE POLICE IN CLEVELAND

INFURIATED CROWDS BEAT TWO OFFICERS

Four Held on Charges of Assault and Causing Disturbance.

NEW MASS MEETING SLATED FOR TODAY

Council of Unemployed Has Session to Aid Situation as Riot Begins.

Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—A mob of 1,200 unemployed men and women, gathered together by communistic agitators and incited by alarmists, stormed the city hall today and were beaten back by police after injury to twenty of their number and to two police officers.

Two men were treated, under arrest, for serious injuries at Lakeside Hospital, and two other men were held by police.

The riot started about 3 o'clock and lasted about twenty minutes. Most of the fighting occurred in small groups around each of the 200 policemen on the steps of the hall and in Lakeside avenue in front. Trouble, started after all but 300 of the mob had been held outside the chamber of the city council, where the council welfare committee had under consideration a petition for jobs which was presented last week by the newly formed "council of the unemployed."

Rioters Gather Early.

The rioters had gathered earlier in the afternoon around the stone "soap box" in Public Square, where speakers shouted "we want work or wages, one of the two, or we'll fight." Gathering recruits, they walked doggedly behind police escort to the city hall, determined to be present at the committee meeting. Arriving at the hall those who were ahead of line were permitted to enter the council chamber.

The remainder of the crowd lined up on the front steps, or were herded on the sidewalks across the hall on Lakeside avenue. Some men in the crowd were shouting and ready for trouble. Inside the hall four women had pounced on Jacob Graul, chief of police, and, as other policemen endeavored to protect him, one of the women rushed out and shouted "the police are clubbing us!"

Signal for Tumult.

This was the signal for tumult.

Those across Lakeside avenue rushed to the hall steps, while those on the steps pounced against the guard at the doors. Four men jumped on Police Inspector George Matowitz and bore him to the pavement. Another

CHEST MISSES MARK IN DRIVE BY $219,233.61

Committee Hopes Former Contributors Will Add $50,000 to Total.

$93,663 IS REPORTED AT FINAL MEETING

Despite Failure to Reach Goal, Collections Are Better Than 1929.

THREE MAIN FACTORS BLAMED IN SHORTAGE

Budgets Will Be Pared Down to Fit Fund Raised in Campaign.

The Community Chest closed its 1930 campaign last night, $219,223.61 short of its goal of $1,786,737.07.

At the final meeting in Constitution Hall, new contributions totaling $93,663.98 were announced, being the aggregate collections for the current year up to $1,567,513.46. To this the committee hopes to add $50,000 during the year from former contributors who have not yet donated to the 1930 fund.

Despite the failure of the Chest to reach its goal this year, officials of the organization pointed out that nevertheless the collections amounted to about $81,000 more than was received in 1929, and speakers at the meeting emphasized the point that the lessons learned during the drive just ended should prove of value in years to come.

Bishop Praises Work.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, declared that the Chest had accomplished a work of which to be justly proud, and that it was not stopping, but just beginning.

"You wouldn't dare stop now, after having reached your present stage of progress," he told the 1,700 Chest workers who were present at the meeting, pointing out that although the present campaign is ended, still short of its definite goal, the results have been such as to prove that the Community Chest has established itself in Washington.

Pointing out also that the failure of the Chest to attain its quota this year has been taken by some as presaging the end of the Chest in Washington, Newbold Noyes, chairman of the special gifts committee, declared:

"Of course we will go on. We are just waiting for next year, when we may put into practice the lessons which we have learned from our efforts this year."

Plan for Next Year.

The same keynote was struck by other speakers. Frederic A. Delano, president of the Chest in Washington, declared that the drive may have failed, but the Chest itself has not, pointing out that the officials of the Chest, and its workers, know more

Capital Society Girl Scrubs Floor as Nun

Mary Montgomery Ends Engagement for Life in Cloister.

A pretty and popular Washington debutante, whose engagement aroused much interest just a year ago, has slipped quietly out of Capital society to take the vows of a lay nun in the Little Sisters of the Poor order. She is Miss Mary Montgomery, daughter of Mrs. Warwick E. Montgomery and niece of Mrs. Edward Douglas White, widow of the Chief Justice.

So quietly has Miss Montgomery forsaken the social world, however, that many just learned that she has been a postulant in the Baltimore convent for several months.

The former debutante made her entry into society several years ago and for a few seasons was one of the most popular members of the younger set. She is 28 years old. On February 2, 1929, her engagement to Paul Sims, son of former Representative and Mrs. T. W. Sims, of Tennessee, was announced.

Following a series of prenuptial parties, Miss Montgomery left the Capital last summer, presumably for a seaside resort with her aunt. Last fall she did not return, and gradually it was whispered around that she had entered a convent. No formal announcement of the breaking of the engagement was made.

MARY MONTGOMERY.

The work that the erstwhile society girl must do as a part of her training is the most menial. It includes scrubbing floors and performance of the most humble household tasks. Miss Montgomery, as do other postulants, wears heavy-soled shoes and habits of coarse material.

French Impassive When Stimson Offers Triple Submersible Curb.

HUMANIZING PACT IS ORDERED DRAWN

Secretary of State Praises Action on French Scheme Before Conference.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON.

London, Feb. 11 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Like one of Stonewall Jackson's raids up the Shennandoah Valley to threaten Washington, Great Britain and America rode brilliantly into the heart of the real disarmament country today, toward the ultimate objective, but not of this conference, when First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander, and Secretary Stimson eloquently urged total abolition of the submarine.

But it was only a feint, a thrilling exploit, apparently most dangerous for maintaining good relations between the five powers and without hope of success. The guns of France and Japan thundered and back galloped the invaders into their own lines.

This simile isn't mine; it is, surprisingly enough, Ramsay MacDonald's. Asked for a description of the fourth plenary session of the London naval conference, which sat for two tense hours this morning in St. James' Palace, the British prime minister told his questioners to read about Stonewall Jackson's campaign against Gen. Banks. That, he said, "will show you what happened this morning," and he stressed not so much the attack as Jackson's retreat, "absolutely according to plan, accomplished with no loss, with every point where he might be attacked foreseen, guarded against."

Britain and America Attack.

Great Britain and America vigorously attacked the submarine, declaring that it should be placed beyond the pale of international law and France and Japan defended it with equal vigor as a weapon of defense absolutely necessary to nations with smaller navies. Italy took a middle ground, inclining toward support of the Anglo-American thesis, her spokesman declaring that she favored abolition of undersea craft, but making this conditional upon large reductions in other types of warships.

The significant aspect of the British and American attack on the submarine was the fact that it gave every evidence of being the first of a long series of efforts to obtain outlawry of such craft.

The retreat of the British and Americans today after their initial foray against submarines at the plenary session may have been, like Stonewall Jackson's attacks, "absolutely according to plan" and completely protected from counter-attack; but the United States delegation left a delayed-action mine buried behind them.

Even while Georges Leygues, French minister of marine, from behind his ferocious walrus-like mustache, was reading in rapid, staccato sentences France's clear, concise, suavely ironical, implacable and logically unanswerable defense of her chief weapon—the finest piece of advocacy the "viper of the seas" has ever called forth—Mr. Stimson and Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, sitting side by side, were busy with pencil and paper. There were whispers to the other American delegates and then Mr. Gibson walked over to Mr. Alexander's chair and whispered to him and Mr. MacDonald. M. Tardieu, sitting be-

JUSTICE OPERATIVE CHECKS ROVER WORK

Action Follows on the Heels of Simmons' Threat to Investigate.

DELAY IS DISCLAIMED

On the heels of threats made last week by Representative Robert G. Simmons (Republican), Nebraska, chairman of the subcommittee of the House appropriations committee dealing with District affairs, that if the short hours charged to justices of the District of Columbia Supreme Court were to be laid at the door of United States Attorney Leo A. Rover, he would "locate the trouble," a Department of Justice agent yesterday began a check.

The threat by the representative was made in the presence of Acting Chief Justice Wendell P. Stafford, Associate Justice Frederick L. Siddons, United States Marshal Edgar C. Snyder and Clerk Frank E. Cunningham. The chairman of the subcommittee had just apprised the two justices that they and their associates had been clocked to determine how much time they spent on the bench and, after hearing various explanations of why a judge could not spend more time on the bench than the calendar of cases permitted, he made the statement relative to Mr. Rover's office.

United States Attorney Rover had no statement to make relative to the check-up made yesterday. Attaches of his office, however, declared that periodical checks were made by the department, but refused to comment as to whether this particular check is out of the ordinary.

One attache denied that a check was being made, but when pinned

DEMOCRAT CARRIES COOLIDGE DISTRICT

Granfield to Take Seat in Congress as Bay State Representative.

HAS MAJORITY OF 6,401

Springfield, Mass., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Attorney William J. Granfield, Democrat, today defeated Frederick D. Griggs, Republican, in the special congressional election held to elect a successor to the late Representative W. Kirk Kaynor, of the Second Massachusetts District. The district embraces Northampton, home of former President Coolidge.

The defeat of Mr. Griggs marked the first time that this district has ever sent a Democrat to Congress since it was laid out in 1898. The race proved not to be close, the final figures reading: Grandfield, 31,150; Griggs, 24,749, a margin for Mr. Granfield of 6,401.

Whitfield Reid, running as an independent and bone dry, rallied but 1,981 votes. Former Mayor William H. Felker, of Northampton, also bone dry, received only 87 votes in the entire district.

The contest was one of conflicting issues. The Republicans had generally declared that the defeat of their candidate would be regarded as an attack on President Hoover. Senator David I. Walsh, in a Granfield rally here Saturday, called for a Democratic victory as a protest against what he termed the failure of the administration to acknowledge the grave unemployment situation and to move for its remedy. He also demanded consideration for New England industry in tariff making.

Mr. Griggs, regarded on his entry into the campaign as a dry, declared

Fletcher Aims Blow At Penalizing Bolting

Senator Warns Against Reading Democrats Out of Party.

(Associated Press.)

Pleading for "a reunited Democracy throughout the whole country," Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, of Florida, yesterday announced his opposition to party regulations penalizing Democrats for "refusal to support the national ticket two years atgo."

"I trust that no one will propose at any gathering of Democrats or elsewhere," he said in a formal statement, "that only those who voted for the Democratic electors at the 1928 election may look for recognition or preference in any future primaries."

Asking, "Why play into the hands of the Republicans?" Senator Fletcher warned against "what may be considered persuasive laws," adding that is "just what the Republicans are hoping and praying will happen in several Southern States."

The statement said he hoped it would not be considered "out of order" to make the observations in advance of the meeting Friday of the Florida executive committee. The views, it added, were for "consideration of committees, assemblies and individuals."

"There were many good men and women who felt that they could not—for one reason or another—vote for the Democratic presidential electors," said the statement, "but who did vote for all other nominees of the party. These men and women were and are Democrats at heart, and will continue Democrats unless assailed or penalized, and, thereby compelled to seek strange associates."

It would be well, Senator Fletcher said, that "past differences be forgotten," adding "just now, of all times, we need to forget the words 'regular' and 'irregular,' and proceed in harmony instead of in discord, and to cooperate as never before for the success of the Democratic party."

PLAN TO NEUTRALIZE PHILIPPINES ARGUED

Proposal, if Accepted, Would Cause Modification of Naval Demands.

MIGHT AVERT DEADLOCK

London, Feb. 11 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A treaty neutralizing the Philippines has been the subject of quiet and informal discussion among delegates to the naval conference, it was learned today.

The discussion is of the utmost importance because the neutralization of the Philippines would profoundly modify the present views of naval experts as to the defensive requirements of all Pacific fleets.

A much-feared deadlock between naval advisers of the United States and Japan might be completely averted, it is believed here, if the Philippines were neutralized by one daring and conclusive stroke of statesmanship.

The abandonment of the American naval base on the Philippines would be involved in the contemplated treaty that would bind all the powers to respect the neutral rights of the islands. It is understood that the proposal is under sympathetic consideration in American circles because of its obvious effect in ironing out difficulties in the Pacific.

It is pointed out that the defense of the Philippines in the event of war in the Pacific would prove almost impossible for the United States while their recapture would be extremely difficult.

Another consideration is that the Philippines may be completely independent in the near future and that a treaty is needed bearing an analogy

RODNEY'S SCRAPPING DEMANDED BY BORAH

Chief of Foreign Relations Committee Says Britain Should Cut Navy.

SAVINGS IN TAXES URGED

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Scrap the Rodney instead of making it necessary for America to pay $50,000,000 to construct a superdreadnought of the Rodney type in order to obtain parity with Great Britain. This is Senator Borah's reaction to reports from London that Prime Minister MacDonald had tacitly agreed to the American suggestion that construction of an American battleship of the Rodney type, with 33,900 tons displacement and armed with 16-inch guns, is essential to equalize the fighting strength of the British and American battleship fleets after the scrapping on each side of a few obsolete vessels.

Senator Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee, reflects a view held on both sides of the chamber in his contention that the Rodney should be scrapped and parity thus obtained without saddling American taxpayers with another $50,000,000 burden.

Members of the naval affairs committee and other senators united in the demand that MacDonald prove the sincerity of the British disarmament plea by scrapping the Rodney and thereby accomplishing precisely the same result as would follow construction of an American Rodney by the United States. There could be no better test for the sincerity of the MacDonald program, it is pointed out. The British prime minister is willing to see America attain parity in battle-

Capital Housewives Praise Third Post Cooking School

American Association of University Women Representative Lauds Mrs. Northcross at First Session of Course in Home Economics at Belasco.

Washington housewives enthusiastically celebrated the opening of the third annual Washington Post Cooking School at the Belasco Theater yesterday afternoon by arriving early and staying late. Many of those in the audience yesterday announced that they had attended every session of previous schools and that the courses have been of great assistance to them in conducting their households. More than 1,200 women were present yesterday.

Mrs. Frances Troy Northcross, who was well known to her audience as lecturer of the other schools as well as this one, was applauded as she was introduced by Mrs. Robert Howard, of the Current Events Section of the Washington Branch of the American Association of University Women.

Mrs. Howard praised The Washington Post for inauguration of the school for which she stated there is a special need in the District of Columbia. At the suggestion of Mrs. Howard the audience gave a rising vote of thanks to Mrs. Northcross and The Washington Post.

In the audience were women from the diplomatic, official and residential circles, among them hostesses who are notable for their dinner parties. In the front rows were many young girls from home econoomics classes of high schools and other schools of Washington. Young brides and mothers of large families and those in charge of the commissary departments of public and private institutions all were eager to learn Mrs. Northcross' system of buying and food planning, cooking and serving.

Many women had notebooks and wrote steadily as the lecturer demonstrated her theories by preparing a real meal on the stage as she talked.

The stage was most attractively set as a modern kitchen and pantry and a dining room. The dining table was set for the meal by Mrs. North-

Four Taxi Drivers Held Up In Night by Pair With Rifle

Desperadoes Add New Crimes to Three Others Already Committed This Week; Activities Confined to Relatively Small Area.

Armed with a small rifle, two Negro desperadoes last night continued their reign of terror among taxicab drivers in the Northwest section with four holdups during the space of several hours, after three similar forays already this week.

Confining their activities to a comparatively small area, the pair of holdup men, unmasked and keeping their single weapon down the pants-leg of one during the greater part of their wanderings, staged two stick-up jobs before midnight and two early this morning.

Francis Golden, of 1232 Delaware avenue southeast, was the first victim last night. The bandits engaged him at Seventh and N streets northwest. When the driver slowed the cab at their order in front of a Girard street house near Georgia avenue, one of the two whipped out the gun, searched their victim's pockets without finding even a penny, and then disappeared.

About a half hour later, George W. Lattisaw, colored, of 1143 Fifth street northwest, took the Negroes as passengers from Fifth street and Florida avenue to Sixth and Fairmont streets northwest. There the men duplicated their stunt, shoved the gun in the taxi driver's face, and disappeared with $5.60 taken from him.

Shortly before 1 o'clock this morning, the pair rode from Seventh street and Florida to Georgia avenue and Fairmont streets to rob the driver, McDonald Newdorn, colored, of 428 Twenty-fourth street northeast, of $1.40.

Less than half hour later they hired Charles H. Johnson, of 137 S street northwest, at Twelfth and U streets northwest. Upon reaching Sherman avenue and Farmont street they alghted, displayed the weapon and obtained $19.

Making their first foray Sunday night, they held up a taxi driver, and followed Monday night by holdups of another cab operator and a Negro taxi driver at short intervals to obtain an inconsequential amount of money.

aide Mr. MacDonald, must have overheard some of this for he looked up at Mr. Gibson and grinned.

Only Resolution of Session.

And then, after America and Great Britain had heard their abolition plea, based largely on humanitarian grounds, denied by French logic and characteristic courteous Japanese clarity and watched the Italian Grandi's dexterous toe dance on the fence, Mr. MacDonald rose to put the only resolution before the plenary session. This was M. Leygues' and it provided that a committee be appointed to prepare an agreement which all the naval powers might sign forbidding submarines to treat merchant ships "otherwise than in strict conformity with the rules either present or future to be observed by surface vessels."

This, Mr. Stimson said in a formal statement hours afterward, was a great step forward, "worth the visit of the American delegation to London." For it meant that France proposes, and all other nations agree, that there shall be no more merchant ships sunk without warning.

But the American delegation was not content with this. Mr. MacDonald, as he rose, had two papers in his hand. He looked at the second as if puzzled, a superb bit of acting. Where had it come from? "I have a second resolution," he said with a glance toward the end of the conference table. "Is this from the American delegation?"

Mr. Stimson nodded.

Regulation of Size Asked.

Mr. MacDonald then read Mr. Stimson's resolution, "That a committee be appointed to study and report to the conference as to the possibility of agreement on the following questions: 1. Abolition of the submarine. 2. Regulation of the use of the submarine through subjecting it to the rules of war governing the use of surface craft. 3. Regulation of the unit size of the submarine."

There was a bomb in the last clause. A real moment of tension. Nearly all the 80 seats of newspaper correspondents were empty. There had been a rush out. When the speeches ceased, everybody supposed appointment of the committee to consider the French resolution would be the concluding formality.

America had thrown into the conference for the first time in public a challenge on figures, and on one of the most delicate and difficult questions of figures that exist, for France is not merely building the world's largest submarine, the Suffren, of 2,880 tons, but she talks of submarine squadrons of monitors, gunboats and cruisers.

French Are Impassive.

The French delegation sat impassive. How would the chairman handle this American attempt to embody the French resolution into one of vaster import? France is known to be ready to accept the challenge, but it was not expected so soon.

The conference drew breaths of relief as MacDonald suggested that both resolutions go to committee No. 1, the conference as a committee of the whole, but in secret session, for discussion and report, since the "American resolution covers a wider ground."

"Do you agree?" chairman MacDonald asked.

Mr. Stimson nodded. M. Tardieu nodded, and M. Briand and M. Leygues nodded, too. So did Signor Grandi.

"Then that finishes our business this morning," concluded the chairman.

Everybody strolled out of the red-and-gold decorated room, which once served as Queen Anne's drawing room, and a moment later Mr. MacDonald, among the first to leave, was talking in the adjoining committee room about Stonewall Jackson.

Big Submarines One Issue.

In American circles it was strongly affirmed after the plenary session that one purpose behind the highly important American resolution, asking determination of the size of future submarines, was the belief, strongly pressed in our delegation though not unanimously, that small submarines, not large ones, should be abolished. Existence only of big submarines it was explained, would enable these ships to carry prize crews and obey the laws of visit and search, capturing merchant ships without destroying them. This doctrine, it is understood, does not meet with British favor.

In addition to this morning's historic plenary session, there were a number of important developments today in the conference situation. Premier Andre Tardieu of France, in an interview this afternoon with Mr. MacDonald, discussed French total tonnage figures. With him at the meeting were Foreign Minister Aristide Briand and Rene Massigli, of the French foreig noffice. With Mr. MacDonald were Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson and First Lord of the Admiralty Alexander.

M. Tardieu is understood to have told the British that France asks a total tonnage by the year 1936 of 724,000 tons against 1,200,000 British tons, a ratio of slightly more than 60 per cent. This is closely in accord with anticipated figures and until it is known how France proposes to divide this tonnage the information is not considered surprising or important.

Stimson Silent on Visit.

Secretary Stimson declined to discuss a visit which he paid, accompanied by Secretary of the Navy Adams and Senator Reed, to Mr. MacDonald. Mr. Henderson and Robert Leslie Craigie, of the British foreign office, at the House of Commons this afternoon.

Japanese headquarters held out strong hopes tonight that a statement of Japan's naval needs will be issued within the next day or two. Twice before this has been suggested and issuance of the statement postponed. It was emphasized that this statement will not be in answer to Mr. Stimson's suggestions or Mr. MacDonald's verbal proposals, but will reiterate the original Japanese position on cruiser tonnage and her claim to a minimum of 78,000 tons of submarines.

Today's Anglo-American attack on the submarine was launched boldly by First Lord of the Admiralty Alexander who proposed abolition of undersea craft in the general interest of humanity. He based his plea on the war-time horror of the "viper of the sea" and mentioned its peace-time calamities.

The peak of the attack was reached when Mr. Stimson, supporting Mr. Alexander, declared in a dramatic hush: "The use of the submarine in the World War revolted the conscience of the world, and the threat of its unrestricted use against merchant ships was what finally determined the entry of my own country into the conflict."

Italy's Approval Conditional.

Italy's support of the British and American spokesmen, voiced by Foreign Minister Dino Grandi, was not 100 per cent unconditional. Signor Grandi declared that Italy approves abolition of the submarine, but made it perfectly clear that this approval is contingent upon drastic reduction in other classes of warships.

France, through Georges Leygues, her minister of marine, flatly asserted that she "can not do without submarines." The French naval minister argued brilliantly that the submarine, like all other warships, is only a death-dealing instrument. Like other warships, he agreed, its use should be limited and regulated.

The Japanese spokesman, Admiral Takarabe, said that his country is "emphatically opposed to unlimited submarine warfare as witnessed during the World War," but went on to defend it as a legitimate weapon of defense, particularly as a scout and in warding off enemies in a nation's home waters.

Concessions Soften Refusal.

The force of the point-blank refusal by France and Japan to abolish the submarine was mitigated to some extent, in the opinion of American and British opponents of undersea craft, by the expressed agreement of their spokesmen with the idea that everything possible must be done to end the inhuman aspects of submarine warfare. France, most outspoken defender of the submersible, declared categorically that she will not give up this defensive weapon and insisted that it is as "legal" as the battleship; but Georges Leygues, French minister of marine, later nodded his approval of American proposals for humanizing the craft.

With the single exception of a cryptic statement by Charles Te Water, South African high commissioner in London, the spokesman of the British dominions aligned themselves with the stand of the mother country.

JAPANESE NAVY MAN DEFENDS SUBMARINE

SEES NEED OF CONTROL

London, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—The text of the address of Admiral Hyo Takarabe, head of the Japanese admiralty, delivered today before the plenary session of the five-power naval conference follows:

It has today been the privilege of all of us here to listen to very enlightening statements on the question of submarines. I can fully sympathize with the high humanitarian motives that are animating the interesting idea of totally abolishing this particular category of warcraft.

I am one of those who deem it most desirable that if war must be fought its destructive powers must be minimized, innocent lives spared and valuable wealth conserved. I am most emphatically opposed to unlimited submarine warfare as was witnessed during the World War.

Not to Be Condemned.

But in one respect I must differ with some of the propositions put forward today by some of my esteemed colleagues. The merits of a submarine are not to be judged by what she does, but by what she is. It is not a ruthless weapon to be condemned in contradistinction to surface craft.

For that matter, what weapons of war can be put to the merciless use of victimizing lives and property to no greater point? Let us take the most obvious instance. Flying machines are being developed day by day and are adding so much to the progress of peaceful communication, but at the same time they are proving formidable weapons and, if abused, would offer a menace to defenseless lives and property even more atrociously than submarines themselves.

They have in one sense a wider range of action. They can, if so willed, play havoc, not only at sea but on land. Nothing can more clearly show the truth of the axiom that the sword will cut both ways. The submarine has its proper legitimate usage.

Appropriate Defense Medium.

It is an appropriate medium of defense as a scout and an instrument to ward off any attack in adjacent waters of a country. Japan, consisting as she does of so many islands scattered so widely on a sea extending from the tropical to the frigid zones, sees in such a kind of arm a convenient and adequate means for providing for her national defense.

With this comparatively inexpensive warcraft she can contrive to look after her extensive waterways and vulnerable points. Japan desires to retain submarines solely for these purposes.

As to the necessity to put an end once and for all to recurrence of the appalling experiences of the World War Japan heartily associated herself with the proposal which is apparently in the minds of many of my colleagues, to submit this category of arms to the strict circumscription of law.

It was Japan's wish that this measure should be adopted early, and she not only signed the submarine treaty agreed upon at the Washington conference but very quickly ratified it. She wishes very ardently that the present conference revive that question and will succeed in discovering a mathematical formula much more strict in its conception so that all the powers represented at this table can unite to make it operative at no great distant future.

Japan will be second to none in giving her full support to an undertaking to outlaw the illegitimate use of a legitimate and defensive agency of war.

Text of Secretary's Speech Before Naval Parley Session Given.

CITES PAST EXPERIENCE

London, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—The text of the address of Secretary Stimson today before the plenary session of the five-power naval conference follows:

At the Washington conference in 1922, the American delegation accepted the view of their naval advisers that the United States needed a large submarine force. They were, therefore, opposed at that time to its abolition. Such a stand was based upon purely naval strategy, without receiving humanitarian considerations, because the conference agreed that the submarine should not be used against commerce except under the same obligations relative to the safety of passengers and crew which apply to sailing craft.

I quite realize that our views on the subject are not shared by all our colleagues. However, we all recognize that solution of our problems can be found only through a frank and friendly discussion. In setting forth the views of the American delegation, I want to make it clear that I am the first to recognize the sincerity of those who disagree with us.

Remarks Not Criticism.

My remarks will be addressed entirely to the question on our agenda and in no sense constitute a criticism of any of our colleagues or of their attitude on this subject. I am, therefore, confident they will not take amiss anything I am about to say. Years of reflection have tended to crystallize the conviction through the world that unhumane use of the submarine should cease. The American delegation believes that time has come for us to deal frankly with this question.

We have sought to examine all aspects of this problem and have given careful study to the arguments which have been advanced in favor of retaining this weapon. They are so well known that I need do no more than mention them at this time.

The argument that the submarine is a purely defensive weapon, seems to us difficult to reconcile with the offensive use which has been made of it at great distances from its home ports. The contention that it is a less costly weapon which affords a maximum of strategic value for a minimum of outlay must be considered in the light of the knowledge that ton for ton the submarine is three or four times as costly as most surface craft and approximately twice as costly as the largest ships of war.

Considerable Numbers Required.

In addition, a nation requires a considerable number of submarines in order to secure effective dispersal. Furthermore, it must be remembered that the life of the submarine is only thirteen years. Thus, we figure that the submarine is three or four times as costly as the largest types of ships. Furthermore, I feel that there is a very weighty argument in the fact that the construction and maintenance of submarines impose upon all navies higher levels in those classes of ships which are used against all submarines; namely, destroyer and light cruisers.

I have recapitulated these technical considerations chiefly because I feel that the picture of the problem before us would not be complete unless they were stated. However, it seems clear to me that we have got to brush aside what are after all secondary considerations. If we are here today, it is because there is an insistent and growing demand on the part of the nations of the world that we revise our armaments in the light of the solemn covenants of the Briand-Kellogg pact, and the mutual confidence engendered by it.

We can not but feel that for this conference, called under such influences to sanction an instrument of war, the abuses of which were directly responsible for calling the western world into the greatest European war of history, would be a contradiction of the purposes for which we have met.

I am not speaking of theory. I am speaking of historical fact, and a fact which human experience shows is likely to be repeated.

The essential objection to the submarine is that it is a weapon particularly susceptible to abuse, that it is susceptible of use against merchant ships in a way that violates alike the laws of war and the dictates of humanity.

The use of the submarine revolted the conscience of the world, and the threat of its unrestricted use against merchant ships was what finally determined the entry of my own country into the conflict. In the lifetime of our experience it seems clear that in any future war those who employ the submarine will be under strong temptation, perhaps irresistable temptation, to use it in the way that is most effective for immediate purposes, regardless of belligerence.

These considerations convince us that technical arguments should be set aside in order that the submarine may henceforth be abolished. We have come to the conclusion that our problem is, whether in this day and age, and after the experiences of the last war, the nations of this conference are justified in continuing to build these instruments of warfare, thereby assuming responsibility for the risk of repeating in any possible future wars the inhumane activities which have been condemned by the verdict of history.

Common Interest in Abolition.

It seems to the American delegation that we have a common interest in the abolition of the submarine; first of all, for the purpose of suppressing costly weapons which we can forego by agreement and by the abolition of which we reduce our requirements in other classes of ships; and, second, for the purpose of eliminating for the future the dreadful experiences of the past.

The American delegation, therefore, urges that they set aside purely technical considerations and give careful study to the possibility of eliminations this whole problem.

In conclusion, I wish to make it clear that we are not disposed, even if it were possible, to carry this proportionally on emotional grounds; we look upon it as a practical and common sense measure directly in line with the limitation and reduction of armaments which the peoples of the world expect us to attack resolutely and successfully.

Text of Leygues' Address Rejecting Submarine Ban

Marine Minister Demands Undersea Craft as Vital Factor to France.

London Feb. 11 (A.P.).—The text of the address of Georges Leygues, French minister of marine, before the plenary session of the five-power naval conference follows:

The French government at the first plenary session of the conference stated their international requirements, such as they result from the metropolitan and colonial situation of France. These latter requirements include the use of the submarine.

The French government considers that the submarine is a warship like all the others; that it is a defensive deapon which all the naval powers can not do without; that the use of the submarine should and can be regulated like any other warship.

These are three points which France will keep in mind in stating her standpoint and drawing up her proposals to be determined by the general structure of her emipre.

Submersion Is Added.

The submarine often has been mentioned as a machine without its like in naval warfare. The above saying can hardly be maintained, either as a matter of principle or as a matter of fact.

Compared with other ships, what are the distinctive features of the submarine? To the gun and torpedo joined together it adds submersion. The latter discovery is never more surprising nor in itself more unlawful than was, at the time of its first appearance, the steamship as opposed to the sailing vessel.

To every improvement of offensive weapons, corresponds a progress in defensive weapons. To the gun and torpedo were opposed the armored bulkheads and the bulge.

Against surprise attacks of submarines, navies protect themselves by nets, mines and listening detectors. Wireless indeed multiplied the military efficiency of the submarine. But some day or other it must be outdone by a new appliance which will not only reduce its offensive or defensive powers to the level of older weapons, but will show its relative weakness.

Only the total abolition of war fleets might put a stop to the continual progress of technical evolution. It has been maintained, on the other hand, that the submarine could only be used against the merchant ship. Comparsion between naval tonnages of warships destroyed during the war period brings forward the following figures.

Loss by Submarines Heavy.

As far as the French were concerned, the loss by submarines was 82,350 tons—that is, three-quarters of the total losses suffered. As concerns the British Navy, 191,090 tons, that is, one-third of the British losses. As concerns Italy, the figure was 20,020 tons, that is, one-fourth of her losses. The tonnage, including Russia, of allied warships sunk by submarines amounted to 312,860 tons.

What warship the submarine does not destroy it will immobilize, or, should they leave their bases, it wears them out. By obliging them to keep higher speeds and be constantly on the watch it tires them out by constantly threatening both crews and engines. The submarine works by surprise. It lies in wait for the enemy, but was ambush ever excluded from warfare? It hides under water, but does not the surface ship sometimes try to hide behind a screen of smoke. It attacks other warships without warning, but does not the most powerful armed surface ship wait to open fire until she is within range?

The submarine, therefore, is a warship like all others—sometimes more efficient, sometimes more exposed to danger. Must it disappear because it disturbs the habits and honored traditions of surface ships. It may happen tomorrow every type of warship in the various navies will belong to the submarine class. As for reproach made to it of not being chivalrous, it already has been made to all new weapons by the older ones—to the firearm by the sword, to the torpedo by the gun.

Sees Dangerous Advantage.

A navy of lesser order with extensive responsibilities can not do without the defensive means offered by submarines. It would, moreover, be impossible to abolish or reduce defensive weapons without the risk of giving dangerous advantage to offensive means.

France, whose territory faces three seas, is further obliged to protect the unity of an empire covering 4,400,000 square miles, with 18,000 miles of coast and lines of communication extending 34,000 miles. She must also secure her free and regular communications to and from northern Africa. The submarine that we rely for:

First, protection against enemy attacks of population and cities along the coast in the absence of the high sea fleets, and the defense of distant dependencies pending the arrival of supporting fleets.

Second, escort and protective convoys transporting men and goods between the mother countries and the colonies.

Third, guarding lines of communication over long distances when bases are lacking between the mother country and the colonies or between the colonies themselves.

Fourth, scouting and protection of the high seas fleets.

For such operations the submarine can not be done without. As a scout it is practically matchless; it is the only type of ship which can without support sail through enemy fleets to observe and report about the enemy's whereabouts.

France Needs Submarines.

"As a convoying ship, by increased tonnage it has become more seaworthy. France, for these various tasks, can not do without submarines. She also needs them because of the comparative weakness of surface craft. When at the Washington conference she accepted, in a spirit of conciliation and in order to emphasize the nonaggressive character of her naval policy, a ratio for capital ships clearly inferior to the level which her position in the world would have allowed her to reach, it was on the express condition that she would keep her entire liberty as concerned defensive ships (cruisers, destroyers, submarines).

"The French point of view has not been altered since then. France still considers the submarine as the defensive weapon par excellence. In particular, she expects from the submarine, as all the lesser naval powers do, the only protection against a long-distance blockade by surface fleets.

We must mention in that respect that all the smaller navies in the making begin by securing submarines as the least expensive means of defense. When the naval status of states asking admission to the League of Nations had to be determined, the league accepted as lawful that they should be provided with submarines. This is a small fact that the present conference, including the five chief naval powers of the world should always bear in mind.

We have yet to discuss the opinion that has been expressed of the submarine being a barbarous instrument of war. It owes such reputation to the use made of it in some quarters against merchant ships, against the principles of humanity which are the foundation of international law.

Depends on Intention.

But the violation of such principles is ascribable to those who have used the submarine to bad effect, not to the submarine itself. The use of submarines against merchant ships is not necessarily unlawful. Everything depends on the intention behind it. There is no weapon which can not be used to criminal purposes.

Surface ship can destroy the enemy as well as neutral trade, against every rule of international law. It can also shell a town on the coast from the offing, and its shells are not likely to single out the fighting from the noncombatant inhabitants.

Mine layers, which are not always submarines, can hardly be certain that the mines they lay will make a distinction between warships and merchant ships or between belligerents and neutral ships. What is certain, at any rate, is that crews, whether combatant or not, can not rely on the mine to pick them up.

Before sentence is passed against submarines, it is necessary to show that they can not be used conformably with international law in the course of their operations against merchant ships. Since then the evolution of the submarine has made it still more capable of proceeding to visits and searches while observing the rules established for surface ships. If submarines can fulfill the same duties, why should they not enjoy the same rights?

The logical conclusion is to treat likewise, as far as both rights and duties are concerned, the submarine and the surface ship and this is the conclusion come to by the French government.

Unrestricted Use Opposed.

The French government is of the opinion that unrestricted submarine war against seafaring trade should be outlawed by submarines under rules of both the present and the future to be observed by surface ships. France accepts the principle laid down in articles 1 and 2 of the Root resolution. She is of the opinion that it is possible in practice to make use of submarines for controlling trade without violating, as was the case during the war of 1914-18, the principles universally accepted by civilized nations for the protection of neutral and noncombatant lives. She is ready to pledge herself by treaty and can rely confidently on the discipline of her sailors.

A motion tending to abolish submarines, would, if insisted upon, lay down three questions and principles:

First, the measure of lawfulness of any weapon of war deriving from the progress of science and technical improvements.

Second, the right of lesser and smaller powers to possess as sovereign states a navy corresponding to their requirements and their means of national defense.

Third, the freedom of the seas.

The French delegation would be ready to discuss those questions should the conference so decide. They think, however, that discussion will proceed on other lines. They remember that at the Washington conference neither the American, the Italian nor the Japanese delegations had asked for abolition of submarines, and that the attitude of these three delegations was very near that presently adopted by the French delegation.

Hope for Justification.

The French delgation therefore hopes that the conference, after discussing the various propositions put forward this morning, may agree and admit that the submarine has fighting value against other ships of war.

They expect that the conference also will admit that the use made of the submarine in the recent war justifies its regulation, not its abolition. Consequently, the French delegation, maintaining their positions as expounded in their statement of national requirements, declare that: First, they can not accept the abolition of the submarine; second, they are ready to concur in international agreement regulating the use of the submarine and to that effect they submit to the conference the following resolution:

"A committee shall be appointed to prepare an agreement open for signature to all naval powers forbidding submarines to act toward merchant ships otherwise than in strict conformity with rules either present or future to be observed by surface warships."

BORAH SAYS BRITISH SHOULD SCRAP SHIP

ships by constructing a battleship to equal the Rodney and the same parity can be obtained by scrapping the British vessel.

The scrapping of a few obsolete battleships which will have to be scrapped regardless of the conference will make no impression on senators who favor the proposal to scrap the Rodney.

"Scrap the Rodney," said Senator Borah emphatically yesterday. "I can see no justification," he continued, "in our building, or claiming the right to build, one battleship. What possible justification can there be for expending large sums of money in building more battleships—a ship which some of the brightest minds in the naval world declare to be obsolete? If parity can be had by reduction, I am for parity. If it can only be had by spending millions on the kind of a ship which will never in all human probability be used, then I feel no interest in parity. The chancellor of the exchequer made a radio speech a few days ago on the subject of armaments and debts, and so forth."

"Can any reasonable person contemplate the burden which all people are now carrying on account of armaments, the weight now resting upon the taxpayers in every civilized country in the world and then contemplate the useless waste of money in the building of a battleship in the name of parity? Oh, parity, what crimes are to be committed in thy name! Great Britain can well afford to scrap battleships and we can afford to scrap battleships rather than afford to build them. At any rate we ought not to think of spending money on battleships simply for the purpose of having parity."

Members of the naval affairs committee pointed out that the United States scrapped $170,000,000 worth of fighting ships at the Washington conference to prove her sincerity. It is now MacDonald's turn to prove his sincerity, they add.

Chairman Britten of the House naval affairs committee stated yesterday that MacDonald should bring about battleship equality by scrapping both the Rodney and the Nelson.

"It was presumed," he said, "that we were attending a naval limitations conference and not an expansion convention."

Roller Skater Injured When Car Strikes Him

Knocked to the pavement by an automobile at Nevada avenue and Thirty-second street northwest while roller skating, 7-year-old Leslie Shorter, of 5801 Broad Branch road northwest, received a fracture of the skull and lacerations over the right eye at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

His condition was reported as serious at Emergency Hospital, where he was taken by Olie Barger, 32 years old, of Ednor, Md., driver of the machine which hit him. Barger was accompanied there by Fourteenth Precinct Policeman James Bigham, who booked the motorist on a technical charge of investigation pending the outcome of the child's injuries.

NAVAL SLASH PLAN SOON TO BE PUBLIC

Limitation Scheme Unites Global and Category Tonnage Schemes.

EARLY SESSION IS SEEN

London, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—At an important conference meeting tomorrow the delegates as a committee of the whole will receive the completed report of the experts who have been consolidating the global and category tonnage limitation schemes into one plan.

Another plenary session may be held Friday, or early next week. The limitation plan then will be made public, marking the successful overcoming of what has for years been a stumbling block on the road to disarmament.

The experts' plan combines, it is reported, the global and category theories by giving what is in essence a global limitation plan to the United States, Great Britain and Japan, and a category limitation plan to France and Italy. The latter probably will be given complete latitude in transferring tonnage from the cruiser category to destroyers, or vice versa.

Sticks to Battleship Plan.

Secretary Stimson and Prime Minister MacDonald also talked over figures together. It is understood that Mr. Stimson told Mr. MacDonald that the United States was standing firm in her demand for the right to build one 33,900-ton battleship of the Rodney type.

The two statesmen went over figures in all categories in a general way, reaching a tentative understanding that France should make the first move in the matter of total tonnage. Mr. Stimson, who saw Mr. MacDonald before Premier Tardieu did, did not expect the French to make a full statement of their needs.

Mr. Stimson considered the day's work a significant achievement for the conference.

Discussing the session with American newspaper men tonight, he said:

"Concerning the plenary meeting this morning, I want to call your attention to the fact that there has been a definite decision by the naval conference today. Not a tentative one—a definite one.

Restriction on Submarines.

"The five powers agreed to restrict the use of the submarine against merchant ships to the same rules which are applied to surface vessels.

"I want to say about that, that I regard that single incident as worth the visit of the American delegation here in London. That marks a step forward in a matter that our country once went to war about.

"There was an agreement. The other things have been referred to subcommittees to investigate and report on, but this, if you read the language of the resolution offered by the French and agreed to by everybody, was a direction to the committee to draft a paper.

"The second thing I want to call your attention to is the impetus that was received for the movement for eventual abolition of submarines.

Opinion Against Submarines.

"I think this debate showed a rising tide in the desire on the part of the Nation for eventual abolition of that weapon of warfare.

"I want to say also that I am very much pleased that the motion to restrict the use of the submarine against merchant ships came from the French delegation. I think it was a very happy augury of the leadership of Tardieu."

ITALY DESIRES NAVY SLASH, ENVOY AVERS

Ambassador Asserts Nation Is Willing to Accept Proportionate Cut.

PEACE CALLED ONLY AIM

(Associated Press.)

Nobile Giacomo de Martino, the Italian Ambassador, said in a radio speech last night that his country is in favor not only of limitation of naval armaments, but of actual reduction.

"We do not put a limitation to the reduction," he said. "We are ready to accept any low level for the Italian fleet, provided, of course, that other nations be ready to make sacrifices in their programs and in their navy, proportional to our limitation, and we consider only fair that the same limitation that Italy accepts be accepted by any other European continental power and we say continental in order to exclude Great Britain.

"This is, I think, a very clear position and, believe me, it is not dictated by any desire of decreasing any one's prestige. Italy feels that there are no nations superior or inferior. The only point that we have in mind is that the world needs peace, economy and understanding, and that an actual reduction of fleets and a parity among the continental powers of Europe will help the financial situation, the understanding and the peaceful spirit of Europe.

"We want work and peace, and I think in your hearts these two words are just as deeply engraved in the hearts of the Italians."

Government Pay, In China Reduced

Nationalists in Financial Straits on Account of Army Disbanding.

Nanking, China, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—As a counter-move against charges of extravagance and financial corruption made by leaders of the left wing of the Kuomintang party, the national government of China has ordered that salaries of government, civil as well as military officials, be reduced during the period of military disbandment enforcement. That period already is under way.

The decision was made to help overcome the difficulties the government is facing in its attempt to raise $35,000,000 by bond issue to push through the disbandment program.

The government, being exceedingly poor, has found that even disbanding an army is a huge task, for disbanded soldiers must be paid even though the regulars may not have been paid for months. By the government's present method of figuring the $35,000,000 disbandment bond issue and the slice in government salaries will just about carry the disbandment program through.

Five-Day Week Planned For Union Bricklayers

Local contractors and builders have been notified by union bricklayers that effective May 1, they will work on a five-day or 40-hour week schedule at a wage of $1.75 an hour, an increase from $1.62½. The proposal is now under consideration of the Mason Contractors Association and, according to present indications, there is a good possibility of its approval.

With the bricklayers on a five-day week, practically all of the major structural trades will be on this schedule with the exception of the carpenetrs and ironworkers, who are also considering it. Those close to the building industry concede that all Washington construction will soon be on a five-day week basis.

to the treaty by which the powers of Europe pledge the neutrality of Belgium without sanctions.

While such a treaty would relieve American naval strategists of taking into account possible naval operations of foreign powers near the Philippines, the treaty would also demonstrate to the world that Japan has no intention of seizing the islands by force and is sincere in her claim that all she wants is protection.

Since the Philippines and Singapore are the two naval bases from which the largest navies of the world, the American and the British, could cooperate in Japanese waters, neutralization of the islands, it is believed, would profoundly alter Japanese demands at the conference.

It is believed that if anything comes of the Philippine discussions, Japan would try to bring Singapore into consideration. While the New York World News Service's information on the Philippine situation comes from authoritative discussions, it is known that if any snag develops they will never be heard of officially.

Thugs Toss Theater Man Over Balcony in Holdup

Charlotte, N. C., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Bandits early today forced Howard Thomas, 23, assistant manager of the Carolina Theater, to accompany them to the theater and open the safe and then tossed him over the balcony railing to the main floor, where he was discovered several hours later by a police officer. In his fall his leg was broken and his back was injured. Although theater officials refused to make any statement, Thomas told police he thought about $1,500 was taken.

Thomas said he was walking from the end of a street car line in a suburb of the city to his home when an automobile drew near the curb and two men jumped out. Brandishing pistols, they forced him into the automobile and took him back to the theater, he said.

DISPATCHER IS SLAIN; POLICE HOLD WOMAN

Railroad Man Shot in House of Friend Who Claims He Forced Entrance.

CITE PACKET OF LETTERS

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Mrs. Reggie French, 35, was in jail tonight while police investigated her relations with John S. Garmon, 41-year-old night chief train dispatcher, who was slain in her apartment today.

A packet of letters figured in the evidence. Police said Mrs. French told them she and her husband had known Garmon and his wife for eight years and through her attorneys she issued a statement that she killed him in self-defense after he attempted to enter her apartment.

J. M. Colley, Garmon's friend, who had driven him to Mrs. French's apartment and waited in an automobile while he was shot to death, told police the woman had broken into Garmon's apartment last Thursday and taken a packet of letters. Garmon, he said, was seeking to recover them when he was killed.

Note Found in Pocket.

Police said they found in Garmon's pocket an unsigned, unaddressed note that started off: "Dearest and sweetest girl," and said, "I couldn't believe you mean what you said when you told me you would not see me again forever. I am determined to see you again and deliver this note, come what may. You can not resist true love."

Mrs. French, police said, admitted Garmon held out the note to her when he entered the apartment, but she refused to take it.

Mrs. French said Garmon called her by telephone shortly after 2 a. m. today and told her he was going to see her. She said she called the police. Finally, she said, she let him in. They struggled, and she drew her gun and fired.

Woman's Eye Discolored.

The police report said previous to the shooting a woman had called them from Mrs. French's address. Officers who investigated the killing said her left eye was discolored and slightly swollen. Garmon was shot three times.

Garmon's widow, from whom he had been separated, told police it was Mrs. French who called Garmon instead of him calling her.

Mrs. French's husband, Harley L. French, a traveling salesman, arrived in Atlanta today and engaged an attorney for his wife. A coroner's inquest will be held tomorrow.

DIED

CORLEY—On Tuesday, February 11, 1930, at his residence, 5649 Western avenue northwest, Dr. KARL C. CORLEY. Notice of funeral later.

—By JAMES HAY, JR.—

IN language sweet and smooth as the murmurous flow of limpid brooks, the Honorable and Democratic James Hamilton Lewis, of Chicago, condemns the prohibition laws as "national tyranny" and announces that he will try to come back to the Senate.

If he wins, what glories will return to Washington! Once more the Capital will be blessed, beautified and bedecked by the marvel of his cerise and rolling whiskers. Once more the city will revel in the elegance of his immaculate and impeccable sartorial splendor.

Once more the halls of legislation and the drawing rooms of society will be held in thrall by a winning and Old World courtesy as irresistible as it is unique in this abandoned age of red-hot mammas.

* * * *

FOR James Hamilton Lewis, though he has wandered far and adventured politically as a Representative from the State of Washington and a senator from Illinois, though he served on Gen. Grant's staff in the Spanish-American war, and though he has been knighted by the kings of Greece and Belgium, was born in Danville, Va., suh, and is a high-strung, warm-blooded and chivalric Southern gentleman from the top of his plumed and plumigerous head to the soles of his small and highly polished boots.

He is the glass of fashion and the mold of form. He has an air. In the draping of raiment upon his imposing and pulchritudinous person, he is the envy and despair of all the dudes and dandies of the earth, and not even the Prince of Wales speaks with such unimpeachable authority on the existing mode and manner of masculine attire.

Neither man nor woman ever breathed who had his unfailing eye, his unerring sixth sense, for the effectiveness of tints, shades and delicate nuances of coloring in the garments that comprise the complete costume of the well-dressed man, from cravatte to cravanette and from cuff links to handkerchief and hose.

* * * *

BUT, in addition to all that, Mr. Lewis is the beau ideal, Le Bel Knight and Prince of Politeness. His shaking of a man's hand is a ceremony delightful to see.

The manner of his bowing, deep, and from the hips, over a woman's glove is the poetry of motion and pinnacle of art, the sort of thing which instantly transports the beholder into that era of the Old South when milady, in the magic of moonlight and roses, made of flirtation a consummate art, and when a gentleman charged to the limit with chivalry and adoration, would fight a duel as quickly and joyously as he would swallow a julep to prove the sincerity of his devotion to his incomparable heart's choice.

Sincerity, by the way, is what so endears "Jim Ham" to his multitude of friends and admirers. The light in his blue eye and the warmth in his melodious voice always convince you that, when he asks how you are, he is sending up a fervent prayer that your answer will give him good news.

And what better or more infallible way is there for a man to make himself beloved than this—to display a caressing courtesy and make it ring true?

BORAH AND GLASS LAUNCH FIGHT ON HUGHES IN SENATE

upon these vital questions and whose views are not views that ought to be incorporated and made a permanent part of our judicial system."

He cited the celebrated WGY radio case in which Mr. Hughes appeared before the court and argued that whoever required a license also acquired a vested right in the air.

"A Shocking Proposition."

"This," he said, "is almost a shocking proposition when we are just starting in the development and use of the air for transmission and entertainment."

He cited several antitrust cases in which Mr. Hughes had appeared for the defendants.

"His expressions while on the court, his expressions as an attorney and his public expression leave no doubt as to his view on these questions," Senator Borah declared.

Senator Shortridge, of California, asked Senator Borah if it was not a practice for lawyers to contend for things in practice which would not necessarily be their judicial views, and Senator Gillett, of Massachusetts, subsequently made the same point.

Senator Borah replied that he appreciated that this was a legal practice, but he was willing to give "Mr. Hughes credit for sincerity when he appeared before the Supreme Court of the United States and advocated a policy that would stand as the rule of the land."

Senator Glass made mockery of the clause in the Constitution that the judiciary should be appointed "with the advice and consent of the Senate."

Senators Not Consulted, He Says.

Senators whose States are most affected are not being consulted, he charged, and in the case of Mr. Hughes no one was even "apprised" of his consideration.

Senator Glass said he opposed Mr. Hughes first because of his "lack of sensibility."

"I believe this whole country felt a shock," he said, "and it was grievously distressed that he resigned to be a candidate for President of the United States."

And for him, after doing this to accept reappointment now, Senator Glass said, "does not become a man who is to pass in the final analysis upon the great concerns of this Nation."

Senator Glass developed at length the celebrated Shreveport case which Senator Borah had also touched upon, and the opinion of which Mr. Hughes wrote. Senator Borah said this case, which extended the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission in intrastate matters, "if carried to its logical conclusion would cause State regulatory agencies to pass out of existence."

Antipathy to State Rights Seen.

Senator Glass said:

"Any man who has indicated such a perfect antipathy for the rights of States as this man is not fit to sit upon the Supreme Court."

Furthermore, Senator Glass declared, when the Senate was making its oil investigations, President Coolidge submitted a brief prepared by Mr. Hughes which challenged the right of the investigations.

Senator Borah, incidentally, attacked Mr. Hughes because of his "method of defense in the Newberry case." Senator Borah said he had no quarrel with Mr. Hughes for defending Newberry, but that the nature of his defense, which, Senator Borah said, was the only one by which he could save Newberry, was that Congress had no right to question the manner in which a man came by election.

"If Mr. Hughes had been Chief Justice then, instead of Mr. White," he declared, "Congress today would not have the right to question how men came to this Senate."

Senator Blease, of South Carolina, in his inimitable way, subsequently said that he agreed with this view. However, he still thinks Mr. Taft's retirement was part of a plot of "certain interests to put Mr. Hughes on the court to pass upon their cases."

He said he had talked with the Taft family about Mr. Taft's condition and without revealing any secrets he could say that he had been assured that "Mr. Taft is improving rapidly." He didn't like the business either of the passing of public office from father to son, agreeing with Henry L. Doherty, the public utilities magnate, that an oligarchy is growing up in this country.

Senator Fess, of Ohio, rose twice in succession, first to tell the South Carolina senator that Mr. Taft's son, Robert A. Taft, had authorized him to tell the Senate that his father could not possibly resume his duties on the court, and secondly to say that young Taft had also authorized him to say that although he had not been tendered the place of solicitor general, to be vacated by Mr. Hughes' son, Charles Evans, jr., that if it were tendered he could not possibly accept it. Whereupon Senator Blease sat down.

New York Senators Defend.

Senators Wagner and Copeland, of New York, made perfunctory speeches in defense of Mr. Hughes.

"Mr. Hughes needs no defense from me," Senator Wagner said. "The esteem in which the public holds him would completely answer that question. I do want to tell of the pride of the people of the State of New York upon the selection of one of its most distinguished citizens."

Senator Wagner said that his feeling was not only a "neighborly" one, but was based on his "high regard" for Mr. Hughes' distinguished service as Governor of New York.

Senator Wagner said he served in the Legislature under Mr. Hughes and supported him in many matters that worked for the welfare of the State.

"I have regard for his splendid statesmanship as Secretary of State," Senator Wagner continued, "and high regard for the splendid contribution he made to the Supreme Court when he was a member of that body."

Gillette Also Defends Choice.

When Senator Wagner had concluded, Senator Gillette arose and said:

"I think some one on this side should say something in defense of Mr. Hughes."

After arguing the difference between the lawyer as an advocate and as a judge, he said that there was nothing political in his resignation from the Supreme Court to run for the Presidency.

"I do not think the country was shocked," he said, answering Senator Glass. "The Democrats may have been, although as it turned out they were not for long."

He declared that Mr. Hughes' nomination was not because of "political decisions" on the court but because of his distinguished service and he undoubtedly thought that he could render more of a public service as President.

There was a strictly political angle to the case in the morning when Senator Norris in a statement declared that Mr. Hoover's appointment of Mr. Hughes definitely marked where he stood as between the regular and progressive wings of the party.

There have been some progressives, at that, who clung to the hope that Mr. Hoover leaned their way rather than toward the regulars.

ANOTHER HUGE FIRM FALLS IN DORAN NET

Hubinger Brothers Company and Thirty-one Others Are Indicted.

CHARGE BOOTLEGGER AID

Chicago, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Another indictment of a corn products company for furnishing sugar to bootleggers was announced by Federal authorities at Springfield, Ill., today. At the same time James M. Doran, United States prohibition administrator, made known a policy of "continued wholesale action against firms contributing to prohibition law violations."

Mr. Doran, at a conference with district administrators in Milwaukee, said the move of the Government in indicting business firms, was the first attempt to "block higher ups" who, either consciously or unconsciously, contributed to prohibition law violations.

The firm indicted today was the J. E. Hubinger Brothers Co., of Keokuk, Iowa, which is supposed to have shipped corn sugar by carload lots to a group of illegal distillers in central Illinois. This indictment followed similar ones yesterday against the Corn Products Refining Co. and the Fleischmann Yeast Co., of Cincinnati Ohio, both accused of supplying bootleggers with materials needed in the manufacture of illicit liquor.

31 Other Firms Named.

Thirty-one other firms, legitimate and otherwise, were named in other indictments in Chicago yesterday, charging conspiracy in the unlawful diversion of Government alcohol. These indictments named 155 individuals.

Doran, commenting on the Federal prohibition department's action against business firms, said: "If we can show that individuals and firms knowingly supplied law violators with materials to manufacture illicit liquor and beverages, the courts will be called upon to give an exact interpretation of the scope of the prohibition laws."

Doran discredited the likelihood that indictments would be extended to still manufacturers, bottle works and allied industries as "contributors to law violations."

Favors Williamson Bill.

Mr. Doran expressed himself emphatically in favor of the Williamson bill proposing the transfer of the Federal prohibition enforcement from the Treasury to the Justice Department.

Meanwhile, Federal authorities here began the task of rounding up the 155 persons and 31 firms named in the conspiracy indictment. Assistant United States district attorneys were assigned to go to New York, Cleveland, St. Louis and other large cities in which the conspiracy was alleged to have operated to institute removal proceedings. The whereabouts of Dominick Tarro, described as an important Government witness in the case against the yeast company and the corn products company, remained unknown tonight. He disappeared two weeks ago.

British Ship Reports Rescue of Brazil Crew

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—The Norfolk Hydrographic Office was advised today that the British steamer, Balour, last night at 7 o'clock rescued the crew of the little Brazilian schooner, Dorothy Baird, which was waterlogged and afire, 600 miles east of Bermuda. No details of the rescue or the number of persons taken off the schooner were received here.

The Dorothy Baird is a three-masted vessel with a gross tonnage of 241. It is presumed that she did not carry more than six in her crew. The vessel is 118 feet long and was built two years ago in Nova Scotia. She is owned by J. J. Macedo & Co., a Brazilian corporation.

HOTEL, RESTAURANT RAIDED IN NEW YORK

Dry Administrator Warns Individual Tipplers They Face Arrest.

PADLOCKS TO BE ASKED

New York, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Twenty-four hours after raiding the Hotel Manger, Federal prohibition agents tonight descended on the Cornish Arms Hotel, in Twenty-third street, and the nearby Cavanaugh's restaurant, one of the oldest and best known dining places in the city.

Four prohibition agents, who had been living in the Cornish Arms since January 1, swore out ten warrants before United States Commissioner Francis O'Neill, and nine agents and three Federal marshals went to the hotel with the warrants.

At the same time, nine other agents, not armed with warrants, raided Cavanaugh's. Nine of the ten warrants for persons in the Cornish Arms were served tonight. The tenth warrant was for John P. Murray, described by Maj. Maurice Campbell, prohibition administrator for the New York District, as receiver for the hotel, which is in bankruptcy.

Murray has been in Florida for the last five weeks, Maj. Campbell said, adding that he expected him to be served there shortly by a Federal district marshal.

Two of the nine men arrested at the hotel were described by Maj. Campbell as the hotel barber and the hotel bootlegger. The others were bellboys and waiters.

Maj. Campbell said he had a much stronger case against the Cornish Arms than against the Manger, raided last night, since, he said, the bellboys had accepted money for liquor and made deliveries. He added that he would seek to have the hotel entirely padlocked, not merely the rooms in which the alleged offenses were committed.

The prohibition administrator issued a warning to other hotels to cease liquor sales under pain of padlock proceedings if they do not. He also threatened to padlock restaurants and night clubs which serve "accessories" to patrons who bring their own liquor.

He announced that from now on persons who drink or display liquor publicly in restaurants and night clubs would be arrested by Federal agents. Hitherto, he pointed out, such arrests have not been made, but from now on such persons "must be prepared to accept the consequences of their law violations."

Those arrested at Cavanaugh's included High Small, the president; Maurice Moynahan, secretary treasurer, and Frank Sarnouski, the cashier, and six waiters and a bartender.

Earlier in the day the eleven employes and two alleged bootleggers arrested in the raid on the Hotel Manger were arraigned and twelve were held in $1,000 bail each. Joseph Golden, a bell boy, was held in $2,000 bail. Bail was supplied by a surety company.

Robert O. Watts, assistant U. S. attorney in charge of prohibition cases, said no attempt will be made to padlock the entire Hotel Manger Padlock action will be brought against the grillroom, he said, and various rooms in which Federal prohibition agents had liquor delivered to them.

DRY LAW HEARINGS WILL START TODAY

House Judiciary Committee to Hear Advocates of Modification.

DRYS WILL SPEAK LATER

(Associated Press.)

Legislative doors to the whole prohibition question will be thrown wide open today when the House judiciary committee opens hearings on measures to repeal or modify the prohibition laws.

With the aid of prominent advocates of their cause, the wets have prepared a plan of procedure which they hope will result in modification and ultimate repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Once they have had their say the drys will be heard.

While this phase of the prohibition controversy was being awaited eagerly, sentiment increased in both the Senate and House against the Christopherson bills. These were intended to carry out the recommendation of the Law Enforcement Commission to relieve court congestion by allowing Federal commissioners to try minor dry cases.

Sentiment in House.

Further consideration of the bills was postponed indefinitely yesterday by a House judiciary subcommittee. A strong sentiment has developed among some members of that group that the measures would not accomplish what the commission expects, unless the Jones law is amended to define casual and slight offenses of the dry law.

Although administration followers in the committee believe the measures will reach the floor of the House, some are doubtful of their passage in their present form. The Stobbs bill, introduced after the appearance of Chairman Wickersham and Roscoe Pound, of the commission, before the group, to set out in the Jones law slight and casual offenses, has attracted the attention of most of the members as a possible solution of the problem.

The crux of the problem presented by the commission's bills is that which places in the statutes the now implied authority for district attorneys to try dry offenders for a misdemeanor as well as under the Jones law.

Funds Are Approved.

While this opposition continued to develop, the Senate appropriations committee approved the $15,000,000 fund for prohibition enforcement for 1931, carried in the Treasury-Postoffice annual supply bill.

Representative Christopherson (Republican), South Dakota, chairman of the subcommittee, said last night that the group had simply deferred action on his two bills until after hearings of the full committee on suggested legislation to repeal or modify the dry laws.

All of his group would be busy in the hearings of the full committee, he said, and when these have been concluded he explained that he expected the subcommittee to take them up again. The South Dakota member added that several members of the subcommittee had been assigned the task of procuring statistical information regarding court congestion.

Representative Michener (Republican), Michigan, a member of the group, said that if the measures should be passed as they are, there was a possibility that they would be overruled in a test case in the courts.

Bullets Spatter El Paso In Border Whisky Battle

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Rifle bullets, fired from the Mexican side of the Rio Grande, zipped into El Paso's downtown section today as Mexican rum runners tried unsuccessfully to cross the river into the United States with liquor. No one was hit but three Americans had narrow escapes.

One of the liquor runners was captured by three border patrolmen as he stepped upon American soil. Two others had started across the river unaware of the arrest of the first man, but snipers posted on the Juarez side of the stream had noted the capture and fired over the heads of the smugglers, intending to scatter the patrolmen and permit the landing of the liquor. The officers, however stood their ground and returned the fire, the rum runners turning back to the Mexican side.

For several minutes the firing was heavy and several business structures and a home in the line of bullets were scarred and windows were shattered.

Carl Thomas of Chicago, in a room on the eighth floor of the Paso Del Norte Hotel, took refuge in the hallway when a bullet crashed through his window. Windows were broken in the home of Mrs Elenea Caseras but Mrs. Caseras and her baby, alone in the house, were not injured.

Tate Choice Approved By Senate Committee

(Associated Press.)

The Senate interstate commerce committee, without a record vote, yesterday approved the nomination of Hugh M. Tate, Knoxville, Tenn., attorney, to be a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and early consideration of his name by the Senate is in prospect.

In view of the committee's action, confirmation is expected despite signs of opposition. Objections were raised by Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama, immediately after President Hoover's choice of Tate was announced, and he repeated these yesterday before the committee. On a viva voce vote in executive session on the committee no voice was raised against Tate, but Senator Smith (Democrat), South Carolina, announced he was not voting.

Murder Feared as Girl Is Found Shot to Death

Sellersburg, Ind., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—The body of Vada Weaver, 13-year-old daughter of George Weaver, cement worker, was found at her home here late yesterday, the top of her head blown off by the charge from a shotgun.

Authorities of Clark County, after conducting an all night investigation, today abandoned the theory of accidental death, and said the girl either committed suicide or was murdered. Officers said they found the shotgun and a poker on her body, and discovered gashes in her face. According to Sheriff Hal K. Hughes, the gashes appeared to have been inflicted with a hatchet.

Justice Officials Deny Mitchell-Oftedal Talk

(Associated Press.)

Department of Justice officials yesterday said that Alf Oftedal, former assistant commissioner of prohibition, had not conferred with Attorney General Mitchell here Monday relative to his appointment as prohibition commissioner, as had been reported in San Francisco.

It was also said that nothing was known of the reported move to place Oftedal in charge of the prohibition enforcement unit after its contemplated transfer from the Treasury to the Justice Department.

CHICAGO INDICTS 19 HELD IN GANG DRIVE

800 More Taken in Round-Up of Thugs; Business Men Aid Campaign.

HIGH BONDS DEMANDED

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Chicago showed today that it meant business against crime. The Cook County grand jury swung into action to back up the sweeping drives conducted by city and county authorities and laid a heavy hand on nearly a score of known gunmen brought before it today. Indictments were reported to have been returned against nineteen men alleged to live by pistol and machine gun, and bond on each was fixed at $10,000.

Meanwhile, spurred on by public indignation at the recent outburst of murder and bombings, police continued to comb the half world and by sunset had ferreted out another 800 hoodlums and gangsters.

2,000 Arrests Expected.

The total enmeshed in police toils and brought to the bureau of identification since the city-wide clean-up started Saturday is expected to reach 2,000 by tomorrow; and with another week of strenuous activity on the part of police, Commissioner William F Russell hopes to have broken the back of hoodlum lawlessness in Chicago.

Col. Robert Isham Randolph, head of the secret "committee of seven," representing the allied business interests of Chicago arrayed against crime, today reported to State's Attorney John A. Swanson that unlimited financial support had been pledged his investigators, and the work of the latter was meeting with "gratifying results."

Industrial Heads Lend Aid.

Several of Chicago's most powerful industrial heads were lending full cooperation, he said, and had even postponed business trips and vacations to devote their entire time to the cause. He intimated that the committee might spend as much as a half million dollars to help eradicate terrorism here.

Those against whom true bills were reported to have been voted today were Wm. Williams, Abe de Boekan, Nick Rosko, Salvatore Espinoza, George Mootz, Albert Carter, Harvey Grandes, William O'Connor, Harry Janks, Carl Hansen, James Riley, Andrew Taylor, Herbert Allen, Joseph Honsik, Jerry Van Kura, Charles de Voto, Joseph Maciong, Abe Rudsky and Woodward Clardy.

State's Attorney Swanson declared that he would seek speedy trials for all gunmen seized in the clean-up.

AGENT MAKES CHECK ON ROVER'S OFFICE

down said the department man was going over the pending cases.

Both Justice Stafford and Justice Siddons told the subcommittee that the United States attorney's office was doing its best to try cases involving people in jail before it scheduled cases in which the defendants were on bond. Each of the justices pointed out that very often all scheduled defendants pleaded guilty and that this disrupted the calendar. They also stressed that on some occasions the attorneys were not ready when the case was called.

Mr. Simmons, at that time, declared he had turned the time table of the judges over to the Department of Justice and intimation was that he would turn over the transcript of their testimony.

While neither affirming or denying that the check being made yesterday was an aftermath of Mr. Simmon's threat, Mr. Rover's office force unanimously declared yesterday that the office of the United States attorney is in better shape than it has been in years.

"Why!" said one assistant, "we are trying cases now that originated in December. That's fast work. True, there are a number of old cases on the dockets, but we expect to clean them all up within a short time. Look at the strides made by our prohibition unit in Police Court. They have brought the docket practically up to date. If they can do that there—where Mr. Simmons says 95 per cent of the criminal cases of the District are settled—we can do it here."

CAPITAL HOUSEWIVES VISIT COOKING SCHOOL

Patrons of The Washington Post's Cooking School yesterday outside the Shubert Belasco Theater, where instruction in culinary arts was given by Mrs. Frances T. Northcross, in the first of a series of talks there this week.

COOKING SCHOOL IS PRAISED

cross with flowers and silver. Stage equipment was furnished by Washington merchants.

The lecturer explained the system of marketing and the contents of the rows of market baskets on the platform, which were distributed later in the day to individuals in the audience.

She complimented many of the Washington merchants on their wares, and the equipment many of them have for furnishing pure food to their customers. Mrs. Northcross stressed the value of pur milk and advocated at least one quart a day for the growing boy and girl.

She pointed out that the wife and mother does not only have to keep on hand the nutritive values of food but their effects on the digestions of her family when she plans her meals.

The Washington women are particularly fortunate, Mrs. Northcross ponted out, because they can secure leaflets on cooking and food values from the Bureau of Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture. She advised the women to provide themselves with sets of these documents.

Sessions of the school will be held today and tomorrow and Friday from 2 to 4 o'clock. The doors will be open each day at 1 o'clock. Those in charge of the school urge all interested to come early and to bring notebooks.

Awards Are Announced.

The following were awarded market baskets:

Mrs. D. S. Pitcher, 3910 McKinley street northwest; Mrs. James Giffen, 1450 Spring road northwest; Mrs. C. M. Godfrey, 3323 Upland Terrace; Miss Carrie E. Weitzel, 2540 Massachusetts avenue northwest; Mrs. Emma F Robey, 3944 Morrison street northwest; Mrs. R. D. Voshell, 3427 Quebec street northwest; Mrs. F. E. Murphy, Mount Vernon Seminary; Mrs. Lawrence Trumbull, 214 Massachusetts avenue northwest, and Mrs. M. J. Sullivan, 658 E street southeast.

The cake prizes were won by Mrs. C. W. Steers, 1213 Emerson street northwest; Mrs. Anne H. Mitchell, 2901 Connecticut avenue; Mrs. J. H. Bryce, 504 Tudor Hall, and Mrs. Charles Adams, 318 La Veine avenue, Alexandria.

The dripolator was awarded to Mrs. H. H. Nichols, 1201 Thirteenth street northwest; the bouquet of flowers to Mrs. Mary L. Boswell, 507 B street northeast, and the roast to Mrs. Charles J. Rohland, 2953 Tilden street northwest.

RACKETEERS REFUSE TO TELL ON POLICE

Turn Deaf Ears on Pleas for Information About Detroit Officer.

FORMER MAYOR ACCUSED

Detroit, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—A half dozen men called from the hoodlum world today turned a deaf ear to the pleas of Police Commissioner Harold H. Emmons who asked them to help the police department straighten out the tangled skein of charges and countercharges involving Inspector Henry J. Garvin and others in the detective bureau.

With a single exception the gamblers, racketeers and hodlums stood on their constitutional rights. One of them, Jimmy Bond, said "If you want to find out things about the department you will have to ask those connected with the department. It's not up to us racketeers to give you information."

Bond and the others were called at the conclusion of an eventful day's session of the trial board, which was organized to hear charges of unbecoming conduct against Detective Adolph Van Coppenolle and quickly developed into a sort of public grand jury, interested principally in the record of Inspector Garvin, who is recuperating from wounds inflicted by a gangster ambuscade on January 2.

Through two detectives, William De Lisle and Roy Pendegrass, it was brought out that on December 17, 1927, a report of the arrest of five members of the notorious "purple gang" was altered so that it was impossible to obtain a concealed weapon warrant for them.

The detectives today said that their first report, that loaded revolvers were found on the men, was correct and that the second report, stating that the weapons were found on the ground, was made on orders of Inspector Garvin. The inspector, they said, told them that the then mayor, John W. Smith, had ordered that no warrant be obtained for the men.

Smith this afternoon went to the trial board and denied that he had ordered the report changed. He branded the charge a "black lie."

Thousands See Sailor Leap 12 Stories to Die

New York, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—In sight of thousands of home-bound workers, a man bearing two bank books identifying him as Nicholas Dembinski, 44, a sea captain, committed suicide tonight by jumping from the twelfth floor of the New York Stock Exchange Building.

Besides the bank books, which showed deposits of $12,000 in two banks, cash aggregating $3,898 was found in his pockets.

YOUNG PLAN STIRS REICHSTAG UPROAR

Hugenberg Greeted by Turmoil as He Clashes With Curtius on Debts.

TWO FASCISTS EJECTED

Berlin, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Foreign Minister Julius Curtius and Alfred Hugenberg, National leader, today fought out the first round of the parliamentary battle for the approval of the Young reparations plan and legislation connected with it. Leader of the government parties seconded Herr Curtius, and the Fascists and the Communists joined the Nationalist leader in opposition.

Curtius admitted that the German delegation had returned from The Hague conferences in no spirit of elation. He added that the only thing for the government to decide was whether the bills before the Reichstag constituted an improvement over the Dawes plan.

He said that the government had unanimously decided that the Young plan was a real improvement over the Dawes plan. The great importance that the government attaches to the five bills giving effect to The Hague agreement is apparent from the fact that every member of the cabinet has affixed his signature to them.

Today's debate showed that the cabinet and the coalition parties fully realize their grave responsibility in indorsing arrangements that in their very nature had to be a compromise and therefore do not fully meet German popular wishes.

Foreign Minister Curtius and the party leaders with great frankness pointed out the shortcomings of the plan, such as its failure to settle the Saar Valley issue, the concessions to Poland, and the size of the annuities due, from the German point of view. But they also showed the points in which they consider the Young plan preferable to its predecessor.

A violent parliamentary outburst occurred when Hugenberg, for the first time since 1922, mounted the rostrum to speak. The left and the center attempted to shout him down, and the right attempted to shout down the left and the center, with the result that nobody was heard. One Socialist finally broke in, accusing Hugenberg of profiting financially from the Ruhr occupation.

President Loebe finally restored order after ordering three Fascists ejected and calling several members on the left to order

The why of a clear skin

A clear, smooth, lovely skin speaks of rich, red blood within. It is Nature's outward reflection of internal healthfulness.

First impressions cannot be good without a clear skin—first impressions are quickly made and are not soon forgotten. Old friends may excuse pimples and secretly sympathize but new acquaintances may not be so charitable. Skin blemishes are not inviting. They cannot be covered up. They embarrass. Hold people back. Steal away joy and happiness.

Men and women, both, justly covet admiration and all may expect such satisfaction to its fullest extent if they are the possessors of a clear, unblemished skin.

If you are unfortunate in this respect you owe it to yourself and friends to remove the cause. Nature will then provide the complexion which is so much desired.

More important still, strong healthy blood nourishes the body and fights against infection and disease.

YOUTHFULNESS and BEAUTY are dependent upon a strong body— firm flesh— a clear skin

Loss of strength, flabby flesh and skin eruptions are but a few of the symptoms of a deeper and more dangerous trouble—a lack of the normal count of red-cells in the blood.

NOTHING is more beautiful, more inspiring, more glorified than the supreme manifestation of Nature in the human body. Those sparkling eyes, that clear skin, that firm flesh, and that vigor of action denoting vitality, bespeak loveliness and internal healthfulness.

And so, is it not our birthright to be masters over our own bodies? To be sure not much is said openly about personal handicaps—skin blemishes—sallow complexion—poor health—but secretly they influence many important affairs.

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of skin blemishes, lack of appetite, flabby flesh and loss of energy as an indication that the body's power of resistance is low—that there is a deficiency of red-blood-cells.

When you build back your red-cells to the correct number you will have followed Nature's own way of regaining Health. Your skin should clear up and you should have the body strength to fight against disease and infection. You should get hungry again and sleep soundly. Firm flesh should take the place of that which was once flabby. You should feel strong; your nerves become steady.

This is why so many thousands, seeking youthfulness and beauty, have taken a course of S. S. S. It helps Nature restore the blood to its normal state. Without plenty of rich, red-blood-cells there would be no strong, sturdy, powerful men or beautiful, healthy women.

PRESIDENTIAL HOOK SNARES SEVEN FISH

Hoover Spends Eight Hours in Open Boat and Gains Coat of Sunburn.

NEW TERRITORY IS TRIED

Long Key, Fla., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—President Hoover kept union hours today, spending exactly eight hours in an open fishing boat. He caught three game barracudas and four bonitas in his second day of deep sea fishing off this small island.

His companions in the boat, Dr. Vernon Kellogg and Mark Sullivan, each captured a sailfish, Dr. Kellogg's catch weighing 52 pounds, or 7 pounds more than the one the President caught his first day out.

Lawrence Richey, one of the President's secretaries, who yesterday went all day without catching anything, got three barracudas and one large Spanish mackerel. Dr. Joel T Boone, the White House physician, landed two barracudas and one bonita. Justice Harlan F. Stone did not get a nibble.

Mrs. Hoover, who was with the President in the Goofus Boy, took her turn trolling, but failed to catch anything. The other women in the party, Mrs. Stone and Mrs. Sullivan, did not fish.

The party did its fishing today in the waters of Alligator Lake, 12 miles north of here. Alligator Lake is not really a lake, but a body of water lying between two keys. The President's fishing fleet left Long Key at daybreak, taking breakfast at Alligator Lake before entering the small boats. They took their lunches in the old shoe box or its equivalent.

Another shark story came back to port today. Mark Sullivan's hopes of landing two sailfish were spoiled by a shark that took one of the two that he hooked during the day. Justice Stone encountered a similar experience yesterday.

Mr. Hoover was ruddy from sunburn received under the semitropic blazing sun today. Tomorrow he will attempt to land another sailfish, which fishermen reported today as being abundant in the waters near the Key.

90 Dogs Die as Former Dancer's Kennels Burn

Chicago, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Ninety dogs were burned to death early today in a fire which destroyed Irene Castle McLaughlin's refuge for stray dogs at Deerfield, a suburb. Cries of the helpless animals awakened nearby residents. Firemen lacked water with which to fight the flames.

Telephones in the kennels, known as "orphans of the storm," and at the McLaughlin home in suburban Lake Forest were out of commission, and police said the possibility of arson was under investigation. They said the fire broke out simultaneously in three kennels. Mrs. McLaughlin actively engaged in fighting the blaze, but without an adequate water supply, all efforts was useless.

Man Admits Killing Girl And Chopping Up Body

Muskegon, Mich., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Forest E. Weaver, 28, pleaded guilty in Circuit Court today to having shot and killed Mrs. Gladys Echardt, 20, and attempting to conceal the crime by chopping up her body and burying it in a wooded section on the outskirts of the city. Mrs. Echardt disappeared last Friday and her body was found the next day.

Judge John Vanderwerp said he would withhold sentence until he could determine whether the killing had been premeditated.

COMMUNITY CHEST CAMPAIGN CLOSES $219,233.61 SHORT

now of the problems and difficulties with which they must contend, as well as of the factors that make for success, so that there is little doubt that the 1931 campaign will be a thorough success.

John Poole, chairman of the campaign, pointed out that there were apparently three unavoidable factors which blocked success of the campaign this year. The first of these he described as the bad weather, which marked the opening of the drive, and the effects of which could not be overcome, although the campaign was extended for an additional three days.

The fact that there is more unemployment now than a year ago he emphasized as the second deterrent to success of the drive, pointing out that many who were working and gave last year, this year are out of work and themselves in need of the ministrations of the Chest.

The third factor which blocked the solicitors this year, he said, was the prevalence of the "stock market blues," which he declared was an actual state of affairs with many who would otherwise have contributed, but was used by many others as an alibi when they had not been affected by the fluctuations of Wall street.

Mr. Poole declared, too, that many who had given last year are now out of the city and have not yet been reached for their subscriptions. It is these, it was pointed out, upon whom the Chest officials are relying to contribute the $50,000 still expected to swell the 1930 fund.

Elwood Street, director of the Chest, paid tribute to the 4,500 workers who have participated in the drive, and pointed out that although their intensive work is ended for this year, it is still planned by the executive committee to continue its solicitation of prospects by mail in the hope that additional contributions may be obtained. He echoed the belief of other speakers that accomplishments in future years would more than offset the apparent failure of the 1930 campaign.

After all possible contributions are received, he explained, any deficit will be met by paring down the budgets of the 75 organizations supported through the Chest to the point where their appropriations will not exceed the fund available.

"If Washington will not give the minimum needed to carry on the work of these organizations," he declared, "then we must carry on with what Washington will give, and see to it that Washington is brought to realize fully the necessity for supporting its institutions in future years."

Mgr. P. C. Gavan, of Sacred Heart Church, pointing out that "giving is not a matter of choice, but a duty imposed by God," expressed a hope and belief that "the heart of Washington will be enlarged to hold this huge Chest in years to come."

Dr. Kelly Miller, chief of Region 5, of the metropolitan unit, who was in charge of all solicitation among the colored population, explaining that "Washington has many cross lines," declared that "all creeds and colors have been amalgamated in the Community Chest."

The $93,663.98 reported yesterday as representing the total of contributions received since the previous meeting last week, included $62,247.97 from the metropolitan unit, which included $8,186.20 from Governmental departments; $22,203 from the group solicitation unit, and $12,213 from the special gifts committee.

PUMPHREY INDICTED ON MURDER COUNTS

Father Is Accused of Slaying His Two Children in Marital Tangle.

EARLY TRIAL PROMISED

Albert T. Pumphrey, 37-year-old employe of a baking concern, was named in two indictments, charging first degree murder, returned yesterday by the District of Columbia grand jury.

Pumphrey is charged with the murder of his two children, Doris T. Pumphrey, 5 years old, and James T. Pumphrey, 4 years old, who were slain with a gun last December 3 at the home of Mrs. Thomas Watts, the mother of the indicted man.

According to the indictment, the children were in the front room of Mrs. Watts' home at 1207 B street southeast with their father, when other persons in the house, hearing pistol shots, rushed into the room. They found the two children dead and Pumphrey armed with the smoking pistol. A boarder at the house disarmed the man and called the police.

The slaying of the children is said to have followed the separation of Pumphrey and his wife. The latter had custody of the girl child, who was attending school. She was on a visit to her father at the time of the slaying.

Pumphrey, police are said to have alleged, had learned that the court was preparing to give the boy also to the mother.

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover announced that he planned to put Pumphrey on trial at an early date.

Diabetes

Sufferers from other diseases little know the fear of coma that haunts the diabetic every minute, every hour, day and night. It takes courage to fight it and wise choosing. Water is one of your important allies. The right water. One of hundreds of recent letters reads, "I am pleased with the help Mountain Valley Mineral Water brought in a severe diabetic condition." Certainly it allays thirst more pleasantly than ordinary water. Certainly, too, the mild minerals, subtly combined by Nature, aid in the everlasting battle against ketone acidosis. In the vital problem of elimination, also, it helps safely and easily to keep active all four of the natural channels. Drink plenty of Mountain Valley Water. Race in Colombia Favors U. S. Envoy

Herrera Is Leading Other Candidates, Early Reports Show.

Bogota, Colombia, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Senor Enrique Olaya Herrera, liberal candidate and Colombian Minister to Washington, will be the next President of Colombia, it was indicated tonight in unofficial figures.

Latest reports received at the Liberal party's headquarters showed that Senor Olaya Herrera, who still is officially Minister to Washington, had received a total of 322,960 votes, against 180,670 for Gen. Vasquez Cobo, and 174,500 for Guillermo Valencia. His rivals are both candidates of the Conservatives, whose ranks were divided during the presidential campaign.

Although about 50 towns have not yet filed their results, the opinion here is that their figures will not have much effect on the final count.

SUBMARINES.

The spokesmen of the five great naval powers discussed the submarine yesterday at the London conference. The British and American spokesmen advocated the abolition of the submarine, and the Italian spokesman concurred, with the safe reservation that unless all nations scrap the submarine, none shall do so. France and Japan frankly opposed abolition of the undersea boat. All of the delegates favor an agreement that will "humanize" the operations of submarines.

The American delegate utterly misrepresented American policy by stating that the United States favors the abolition of the submarine. Instead of wishing to abolish them, the United States intends to use them and will not consent to their abolition. In the present state of the art of science of war they are an indispensable weapon. The security of the Panama Canal depends largely upon the skillful use of defensive submarines.

Mr. Stimson supports the British demand for abolition of the submarine on the ground that it is "a weapon particularly susceptible to abuse; that it is susceptible of use against merchant ships in a way that violates alike the laws of war and the dictates of humanity." Any war vessel can be misused, in violation of the laws of war and the dictates of humanity. A submarine, used in war against other warships, is as legitimate a weapon as a battleship.

The offensive capabilities of surface ships are curtailed in waters defended by submarines. Hence the British demand that submarines shall be abolished. The British fleet can not blockade enemy coasts when submarines are about. A fleet employed for purely defensive purposes in home waters is not in much danger from enemy submarines. When it goes out on an errand of offense it takes its chances against undersea and air attack.

Mr. Stimson's argument that the submarine is a costly weapon of war is puerile. It is the cheapest form of sea defense, and for this reason it will not be abandoned by small maritime nations.

The powers represented in London should agree to regulations that will forbid the sinking of merchant ships by submarines before the personnel of such ships is taken off. If the great naval powers are so wicked that they will find it impossible to resist the temptation to use the submarine in the fiendish manner that was adopted by Germany in the late war, as Mr. Stimson fears, they have no right to assemble in London and talk of "humanizing" the use of submarines. Since no nation except Germany used the submarine for piracy and murder it is fair to presume that they will fight fairly in future wars. It will do no harm, however, to make an agreement forbidding the murder of noncombatants by submarines.

While they are about it, the powers should provide that submarines shall never pass submerged through the territorial waters of a foreign nation, but shall always remain visible, with their colors in sight. In time of war the passing of a submerged submarine through neutral waters should be classed as an act of piracy, punishable as such. These rules, with the added rule that submarines shall never murder noncombatants, will keep the submarine where it belongs, in the category of legitimate warships.

The United States is building submarines and intends to build more to suit its needs. It will not use those vessels murderously. If any foreign power shall employ them murderously against Americans, the United States will, if necessary, punish the offender, as it did Germany.

FOREIGN OBSCENE LITERATURE.

A second vote on the Cutting amendment to the tariff bill, which would permit the importation of obscene literature, is promised in the Senate this week. Senators Smoot and Watson are scheduled to lead the attack. Mr. Smoot will ask that the Senate close its doors while its members are enlightened as to the kind of filth that is being confiscated by customs officials.

The Cutting amendment is supported by two classes of people. The first includes disreputable booksellers who are interested in the profits that may be obtained from surreptitious distribution of obscene books from Europe. The second group fears that some of the classics and much of the modern literature of Europe is excluded under customs censorship. The great majority of this group are not informed as to the type of books that are actually prohibited.

The books that have been collected for the enlightenment of senators in the proposed secret session are utterly lacking in the decency to which the American people are accustomed. No publishing company would dare to print such works. They are privately printed and distributed. There can be no valid argument for admitting this stream of filth into the country.

SENATOR CAPPER'S STARCH.

The Senate on Monday defeated by a substantial majority the Capper amendment, introduced in behalf of the farmer, having to do with the duty on starches. The amendment proposed to take starches "not specially provided for" that are now on the free list and transfer them to the dutiable list, not at 1½ cents per pound, at which rate all starches except potato are dutiable under the House bill, but at 2½ cents per pound. In addition, the Capper amendment proposed to raise to 2½ cents a pound the duty on such of the starches as under the present law are dutiable at 1½ cents per pound. The Capper amendment was supported by farm organizations.

Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, led the fight against the amendment. He pointed out that starch is obtained from a variety of raw materials, but that the several varieties are not interchangeable so far as their industrial utilization is concerned. Textile manufacturers, for example, who use potato starch in the finishing of certain fabrics, have found through experiment that substitute starches are not practicable. Woodworkers use a tapioca starch in preparing the wood glue that is used to attach veneers, and they claim that no substitute starch can be used for this purpose. The Capper amendment was offered on the ground that a duty on starches other than that produced from corn would stimulate the demand for corn starch, thus benefiting the corn grower.

The cornstarch industry is prosperous. Domestic production in 1925 amounted to 854,000,000 pounds, of which about 25 per cent was exported. In the same year imports of cornstarch amounted to but 64 pounds. It can not be truthfully contended that the cornstarch industry needs protection against dangerous foreign competition.

But Senator Capper believes that imposition of a duty on starches produced abroad would in the end result in the adaptation of cornstarch to certain industrial processes in which potato, tapioca and other starches are now used exclusively. He would use the tariff to compel industry to use the kind of starch it does not want. If Senator Capper represents the farmers in this, don't let anybody tell you that the farmer is asleep.

GERM OF PSITTACOSIS.

Psittacosis, or parrot fever, has spread to many sections of the United States since making its first appearance about a month ago, but it is not prevalent enough to cause serious alarm. It was thought that the disease was contracted from ailing parrots only, but a dispatch from Newport News, Va., reports two cases of psittacosis which were contracted from a sick canary bird. Doctors are undertaking extensive research work in connection with the disease. Harry B. Anderson died recently from the disease, which he contracted while making research work in the laboratory of the Public Health Service. Dr. Charles Armstrong, of the Public Health Service, is at the Naval Hospital with an undiagnosed illness, presumably contracted in experimental work.

The research work is following three lines: The strain itself is being kept alive by transfer from parrot to parrot; the bacteriologists are searching for a bacterium, a unicellular plant organism, similar to the various paratyphoid organisms; and the third line of research is an effort to obtain a filterable virus if possible. These three lines of exploration have not yet proved successful.

The organism which the scientists are seeking may be among the filterable viruses, which means it is less than one micron or one-thousandth of a millimeter in diameter—small enough to escape between the minute particles of an earthenware tube. According to Dr. George W. McCoy, director of the hygienic laboratory, some investigators have claimed to have seen under high-powered microscopes movements in liquids which they thought were due to the motions of minute living things, but this is debatable.

At present the medical world is almost helpless in its fight against the disease, which broke out in Annapolis early in January. It has resulted in sixteen or more deaths since that time, and many other victims have suffered serious illness.

EXPORTS OF FALSE TEETH.

What do people in foreign countries think of the United States? Only a small percentage of them ever pay a visit to America. Many come in contact with American tourists in their own land, but they seldom become well acquainted. What one people reads of another is seldom assimilated so as to give rise to concrete ideas. It is no doubt safe to conclude that this country is largely judged by the common people of other lands by what it exports to them.

Many foreigners have a more accurate conception of what American exports are than the Americans themselves. It is common knowledge that the United States sends large quantities of cotton, automobiles and packing house products abroad. Petroleum products, machinery, wheat and other exports are shipped in gross lots. But few are aware of the fact that the United States furnishes 25,700,000 false teeth to the mouths of Europe, Asia, Africa, Latin America and Canada. Nor is it generally known that the United States, which is almost wholly dependent upon other countries for rubber, ships $368,086 worth of rubber erasers abroad annually.

These and many other curious facts about American exports are brought out in a report from the Department of Commerce. Oyster shells exported are valued at $443,789, and the value of flypaper, swatters, traps, insecticides and similar household articles runs into several millions. Toy balloons and rubber bathing caps bring more than $1,200,000. Bathtubs, horseshoes, windmills, wheelbarrows, playing cards and billiard tables are other articles which bring considerable returns. The export list is supplemented by such goods as cosmetics, bicycles, shoe polish, souvenir postcards, garters, bee keeping equipment, needles and dolls. Exportation of phonographs and records is a $12,000,000 business.

Each of these varied articles plays a part in the conception foreign peoples form of America. Automobiles sent abroad can not compare, either in number or the intimate position they occupy in life, to false teeth. Raw cotton does not find its way into the foreign home, while toy balloons and playing cards do. All that many foreign people know of America is gleaned from the character of these humble articles of export.

ANOTHER LINCOLN ANECDOTE

By WILLIAM H. SMITH.

In the middle years of the last century travel in what is now called the Middle West was mainly by private conveyance or by stage coaches carrying the mail, as railroads had not been introduced. Those old Concord coaches, with their rocking motion, on great leathern springs, were the pride and joy of the people. They were built to carry six passengers inside and two or more on top. They were drawn by two, sometimes by four, gayly caparisoned horses, and the entrance to a village or town was sure to be made at full gallop.

One day in the fall of 1847, as the coach from the West drew to a stop at Terre Haute, Ind., two young lawyers stood waiting for it for passage to Indianapolis. On entering they found a lone passenger, a man with a long body and long legs, lazily reclining in one of the back seats, his legs stretched out over the seat in front of him. He was dressed in an ill-fitting suit of clothes, and wrapped around his shoulders was a gray shawl, then a popular part of male attire. They sized him up as a back-country farmer probably on his way to Indianapolis to witness a sitting of the Legislature.

It at once occurred to them to have some sport with the farmer. They were not vicious, but were young and giddy. One of them later became a popular political orator and an accomplished diplomat. They began laying siege to their victim by asking the crop outlook in his section. He replied to their questions in regulation country drawl and accent.

Presently the farmer became loquacious and talked much about the hardships of farm life; the failure of the crops owing to the long dry spell, &c. He said the "colry morbis" had got among the hogs, killing most of them, and that the others were so poor they couldn't be fattened by killing time in January. He said the soil was so hard in his section that it wore the horses out in plowing. Some of his neighbors were experimenting with oxen, but they were too slow to suit him, and he was thinking of trying mules. On being asked if he had bought any mules he replied he had not, but that he had his eyes on a couple he thought he would get.

The talk turned to politics and the farmer said that in his section the people were not taking any active part. They had grown tired of having young snappers from the city sent out to tell them how to vote. Most of the farmers took a paper and could make up their minds without help from "politicianers." The Whigs, he said, generally took the New York "Trybune," and the Democrats the Chicago Times. He was a Whig and took the "Trybune."

They asked him what social enjoyments were had in his section. He replied:

"The boys and gals have their dances, spellin' bees and singin' schools, while the older ones among the men take to pitchin' horseshoes and the wimmen to quiltin' and soap makin'."

"So the young people like to dance, do they?" asked one of the men. "What do they dance mostly?"

"Wall, there is what they call the cotilliyon they like pretty well, but they mostly like the munny must, pop goes the weasel and the kiss-me-quick. The gals like that one the best."

At that period a flaming comet was making nightly visits and there had been much discussion in the papers as to the probability of it coming in contact with the earth. This now furnished a topic of conversation between the young men, and they thought to astonish their traveling companion by their scientific learning. He "didn't know why they called the blarsted thing a com-it. It seems to me it ought to be called a go-it." They asked him what he thought would happen if the comet should strike the earth.

"It'll be pretty bad for that-air com-it, I guess. If it hits in our neighborhood the boys'll lasso th' pesky thing."

Thus the conversation went on hour after hour as the stage rolled along over what was called the National road. When it stopped in Indianapolis the three passengers alighted and entered a hotel, the supposed farmer entering first. There happened to be a member of the United States Senate and a member or two of the House of Representatives in the hotel. When they saw the new arrival they came quickly forward with "Hello, Lincoln, are you on your way to Washington?"

This enlightened the two young men, informing them, as it did, that while they thought they were making an innocent country farmer the butt of their wit, they had themselves been joked by a distinguished member of Congress who had a national fame as an orator. They quietly slipped out of the door and went to another hotel. The years went on without their again meeting Mr. Lincoln. They often thought of the stage episode, however.

In 1860, after Mr. Lincoln had been chosen the Republican nominee for President, a party of Indianians visited Springfield to call upon him, one of the young men, now a popular political orator, being among them. He thought Mr. Lincoln had long since forgotten the stage ride, or would not recognize him after the lapse of a dozen years. When he stepped forward to be introduced, Lincoln, with a merry twinkle in his eye, thus hailed him: "I say, Tom, did that air com-it hit the yearth?" The party at once knew there was a story behind that remark and insisted on hearing it. Lincoln related it in detail. The story caused much laughter, which was increased when one of the visitors inquired of Mr. Lincoln if he got the two mules he had his eyes on. "No," was the reply. "They slipped away at Indianapolis and went to another hotel."

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE DESIRE OF ALL.

I warned the maiden beautiful and fair:
"My dear, of marriage fearfully beware;
Behold your parents; count their troubled years,
Still fresh upon their cheeks are sorrow's tears.
Happy together? Yes, despite the woe
And heavy heartaches they have lived to know.

"What pains they've borne; what sacrifices made,
To keep the little garden where you played!
In youth they dreamed of luxury and fame
And endless lesser joys which never came;
Safe sheltered now, why risk the smart and sting
And bitter trials married life must bring?

"You want a home which you can call your own?
This house your parents have is yours alone.
To build another like it means that you
Must suffer all the hardships they've been through.
They've struggled long, faced debt and grief and doubt,
And braved deep hurts they've never talked about."

The maiden smiled and said: "I understand
How patiently this home for me was planned,
But now I want the joys of struggle, too.
The very tasks they've done, I want to do,
I want to risk the losses they have known;
In fact, I want some sorrows of my own."

Better to Cultivate One Acre Well Than to Scratch the Surface of Ten.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

FREQUENTLY I get letters from young people who hunger for education and are unable to profit by the academic courses offered in the schools.

"What must I do to be educated?" they cry.

And all of them think of an education as a definite goal—like a college degree or a seat in Congress or a million dollars.

But education is not a goal; it is a road to travel—a means to an end—a tool to use.

The dog that has learned to herd sheep is educated, and the man who has learned to remove a gall sac is educated; but the dog hasn't learned as much as it can and the man has acquired but a drop from the vast sea of knowledge.

Dr. Johnson compared learning to a feast where one man might get a little of this and another a little of that, but no man could hope to get all of everything.

And Emerson, speaking of good books, said a man could spend his life in the great library of Paris, reading from dawn to dusk, and never get out of the first alcove.

If the word "educated" defined a definite achievement, as the words "vaccinated" and "grown" and "buried" define something complete and final, the educated man would be one who had acquired the whole sum of human knowledge.

But time alone fixes a limit far short of that perfection, and since it is impossible for anybody to learn everything, the wise and profitable course would be to pursue a definite portion of knowledge.

It is generally conceded that everybody should have sufficient general knowledge to understand the basic principles of science, to comprehend and envision the history of the race, and to enjoy the arts.

Given this much—which might be acquired in fewer years than now are devoted to high school—a man of sound sense would be free of superstitions and fears, would be able to vote and live intelligently, and would be able to appreciate the luxuries and refinements we call culture.

Thus equipped to live, he should limit his further education to some branch of knowledge that would enable him to justify his living.

In short, he should learn a job—should acquire skill in some service the world needs and pays for.

He must specialize, for one short life allows too little time to learn one job perfectly; and if he acquires an outline of knowledge and learns to do one necessary chore with superb skill, he is well and profitably "educated."

The "traveled" man is one who has gone far on one road—not the man who has gone a little way on many roads.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

IS THERE NO JUSTICE?

Take a deep breath, girls, and be as composed as possible while you hear the latest news. Don't get excited! Lissen: Paris has come out for skirts with bathing suits!

• • • •

Just when the daughters of our very best people had become accustomed to parading up and down the beaches looking just about the way they looked getting in and out of a bathtub, Patou will be the smart thing this summer.

• • • •

The situation calls for a revolution.

• • • •

Up, bathing girls, and at 'em!

Are you going to yield meekly and walk up and down a beach so attired that nobody will turn around and lose a couple of eyes? Are you going to consent to go bathing in a costume that won't agitate a single censor? Will you be satisfied to be seen at a shore resort in attire that even your best friend will agree is modest and decent?

• • • •

No, ten thousand times no!

• • • •

You know what will happen if you yield. Once those French dressmakers get a skirt on a bathing girl again they will come out for stockings. Then there will be an edict that bathing shoes are the smart caper.

• • • •

After that—Heaven forbid—Mons. Patou will come out for the old-fashioned blouse that mother used to wear.

• • • •

It will be but a step from that to bathing corsets, a high collar and one of those big straw beach hats you see in the family album when you turn to the picture of Aunt Arabella and Uncle Jim snapped with Cousin Minnie and the pug dog at Glen Island the summer before they blew up the Maine.

• • • •

It will mean a return to the days when it took weeks for a nice girl to recover from the humiliation she suffered when a male person saw her on the bathing beach with a run in her stocking.

Or when young Otis Presbury noticed as she came out of the water that a half-inch of bare flesh showed between the tops of her stockings and her bloomers.

• • • •

Oops, my dears!

Call the protest meetings now before it is too late. There are limits to what American womanhood will endure.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Army Officers Willing to Leave Pay Question to Joint Committee, Says Capt. Waitt.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The editorial, "Beggarly Service Pay," in today's Post states that "Army circles are not satisfied with the make-up of the joint pay committee that will study the pay situation." As an officer vitally interested in having the pay schedule corrected, I wish to comment on this statement.

The Army is not concerned with the make-up of the joint committee. It is concerned that an investigation be made. Authority having been granted to investigate the pay situation the services are or should be satisfied that a careful examination of the facts will result in the passage of legislation to correct the obvious pay inequalities that now exist. How this is to be done rests with Congress. I, for one, am satisfied that the matter now safely may be left to the gentlemen of Congress. Relying on their sense of justice, I am sure that they can not fail to correct a situation which already has become desperate. It is incontrovertible that the present pay schedule is insufficient to permit an officer to live decently and meet his obligations to his profession and to his family.

The attitude of The Post toward adequate pay for the services has been most helpful. The criticism I have made is intended to be constructive, and having made it, I am glad to take this opportunity to express my appreciation of the cooperation being rendered by your great newspaper in presenting to the public the pressing need that exists for a new pay schedule.

What Washington Needs Is a Soldier Commission to Check Banditry, Says Mrs. R.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: For the life of me I can not understand why the citizens of Washington should object to the appointment of Gen. Crosby as a District Commissioner. It strikes me that the fact that he is a military officer makes his appointment especially desirable at the present time.

Accounts of successful crime by bandits have become so common as to receive but slight attention as we read them from week to week. To judge from the way they talk, there are some who seem to consider it a mere joke. But it is anything but a joke to the woman who can not go shopping or, in fact, anywhere without being held up and robbed by some brutal pocketbook-snatcher.

These desperadoes grow bolder and bolder because they are seldom punished. It has been so for a long, long time, and you can not make me believe that our civilian Commissioners, if possessed of a reasonable degree of virility, not to mention gallantry, could not have done something to make the streets safer for the women of the community.

What we need is a man of force, a soldier Commissioner, to take arms against the District's lawbreaking element, and that is why, if Gen. Crosby is confirmed by the Senate, it will please me very much.

A Former President Served in the Senate—Andrew Johnson.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is generally accepted as an historical fact that John Quincy Adams was the only ex-President to serve in the National Legislature, and that no ex-President has ever been elected to the United States Senate.

This legend, though widely accepted as true, is without historical foundation. John Quincy Adams, as is universally known, did serve in the House of Representatives after the expiration of his term of office as President. But Andrew Johnson was also elected to the United States Senate from the State of Tennessee in 1875—six years after he had retired from the Presidency. He served at the special session of Congress, but died July 31, 1875, about four months before the regular session convened.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: This present week has been one of apprehension to many of our citizens, as to the ultimate success of the Community Chest collections.

May I suggest to our young generation and even to the older one, to begin a Community Chest Fund now, following the plan of the Christmas Club Savings Fund in our banks.

This would prove an education as well as a good opportunity to fall in line for next year's collection, and a great privilege possibly to many, who would otherwise find it impossible to make a contribution.

The sky was empty till this spire uprose,
A liaison between humanity and God.
Throughout exacting days men swiftly trod
Counting percents and wary of their foes;
But now, when near decided to foreclose
A long due debt or send to dreary quod
A refractory sinner, some imperious odd
Emotion of compassion will interpose.
Christ and Lincoln! Lincoln and Christ! Both sons
Of the Eternal Father! Brothers of all
Who suffer onslaughts of man's wayward will
Against the strength of spiritual garrisons . . .
Theirs the voice that drowns the petty brawl
And rouses the hearer with an ecstatic thrill.

RIVER POWER GROUP POLICIES REVIEWED

Worthington's Aid Quizzed About Muscle Shoals by Senators.

TO QUESTION ENGINEER

(Associated Press.)

Investigation into the lobbying activities of persons interested in Muscle Shoals legislation was begun yesterday by the Senate lobby committee with a charge by Chairman Caraway that J. W. Worthington, chairman of the executive committee of the Tennessee River Improvement Association, is "dodging" the committee.

Mr. Worthington, whose association has advocated the proposals of Henry Ford and the American Cyanamid Co. to operate the power and nitrate plant at Muscle Shoals, was reported ill at Tate Springs, Tenn. Mr. Caraway said he did not believe he was sick, and that when the committee was ready to question him, he "disappeared."

In the absence of Mr. Worthington, the committee questioned Earl Cooper, one of his stenographers, and was told that Henry Parsons, of New York, who finances public utilities, was one of the contributors to the Tennessee River Improvement Association.

$12,000 Annuity Mentioned.

The witness did not know how much had been contributed, but said he understood that Mr. Worthington received a $12,000 annuity from Mr Parsons for selling some of his property at Sheffield, Ala. The budget of the association in recent years was not brought out, but the witness said it was $72,000 in 1923.

Interest was shown by the committee in correspondence between Mr. Worthington and Chester Gray, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation. Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, produced a number of letters which he said had been found by a committee investigator in Mr. Gray's files but had not been in Mr. Worthington's files.

"Don't you know that somebody destroyed the correspondence?" Mr. Caraway asked.

Inference Is Denied.

"I know of no such a thing," Mr. Cooper replied.

Later, he said that sometimes Mr. Worthington requested that no copies of letters be made but did not know whether that had occurred in connection with the letters to Mr. Gray.

The witness testified that W. G. Waldo, consulting engineer of the association, who is scheduled to appear today, has been promoting Southern industries and utilities, incorporated, to build the Aurora dam in Kentucky. He said the present capitalization was about $200,000, but the cost of the dam was expected to be $17,000,000 and Mr. Waldo hoped to obtain assistance from the Continental Illinois Co.

Mayor Will Act In School Strike

40 Chicago Students Still Refuse to Accept Transfer.

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Mayor William Hale Thompson today was called upon to settle the controversy between the board of education and parents of striking students at Burbank Junior High School after a week of parley between leaders of the two groups had ended in an impasse.

Although the number of "strikers" had dwindled perceptibly since the walkout was precipitated, some 40 of the 200 pupils transferred from Lovett School to the newly opened Burbank School remained away from classes at the latter school today and attended those established by the parents themselves in a nearby church.

Attorney William J. Mannion, representing those opposed to the transfer, conferred with the mayor late today, asking him to take a hand in the situation. The mayor promised to study Mannion's submitted reports. Counsel for the parents explained that the latter were opposed to the transfer because of sixteen railroad tracks their children must cross to reach the Burbank School, and detailed a racial prejudice issue mentioned by some of the militant parents today.

DEMOCRAT WINNER AT BAY STATE POLLS

just before the primaries that he would recognize the recent referendum vote of this district on the repeal of the eighteenth amendment as mandatory upon him and that he would vote for modification. Mr. Granfield is wet.

Mr. Granfield carried Northampton, home of former President Coolidge, with 2,891 votes to 1,743 for Griggs.

(Associated Press.)

The success of a Democrat in the special election in Massachusetts was interpreted last night by Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, chairman of the Democratic congressional committee, as indicating resentment against the Republican administration "because it has failed to deal courageously and constructively" with the unemployment problem.

"For a Democrat to have won the Second Massachusetts District is a particularly striking victory for our party," Mr. Byrns said. "It is the home district of former President Coolidge and of former Speaker, now senator, Gillette, who represented it for nearly thirty years. It has had unbroken Republican representation for nearly forty years and has been regarded as safely Republican at all times.

"When we consider that the late Representative Kaynor, Republican, won the district in 1928 by a majority of 8,500, for a Democrat to have won it today by 7,500 votes must be accepted as significant."

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

DEL MONTE, Calif.—Franklin Fort's declaration that it is legal to make beer at home was oil on the prohibition fire in California. It was alleged home-brew that sent Mrs. Sue Brown over the hill to jail, there to bear and lose a child without medical attention, and to cause more conversation up and down the State than was caused by the "I'm Alone" case of last year.

The wets have been busily trying to make a sort of Joan of Arc of her. The drys say regretfully that, of course, the whole thing was incredibly stupid, but insist that the woman kept a speak-easy. Trustworthy and observing local residents assure the writer that in order to get from his own home to where Mrs. Brown lived in Monterey, if he went by the most direct route, the arresting officer passed 50 speak-easies! She was bundled off to Salinas, the county seat, and there occurred the tragedy which has the whole State by the ears.

Monterey, just adjoining Del Monte, is a fishing village with a very large foreign population. The Italians, Portuguese and Greeks are alleged to care very little about the prohibition law. The only surprise to anyone hereabouts is that it was beer which the prohibition officers found and not wine.

* * * *

BUT the story has persisted in the California papers for a surprising length of time. It figures in conversations almost as much today as it did ten days ago when it was fairly fresh. Every day or so a new angle is discovered, while the wets rub their hands gleefully. After the first "horror" story of the still birth there were revelations about the undercover man—how he had made such a strong case in persuading the woman to let him have some beer for a friend that she offered to give him some. How he got a percentage of the fine, &c.

Then came the political development. The San Francisco Call Bulletin quotes predictions "throughout Monterey County" that "every official involved in the 'railroading' of Mrs. Sue Brown faces the prospect of being swept from office at the next election."

By the time the primaries roll around the story may be very different, but to the inquiring outsider the indictment against the local officials should include the words "political stupidity."

* * * *

MR. FORT'S suggestion that home beer-making is legal, while temporarily reviving interest in the Sue Brown case, is being studied very carefully, with widely varying hopes and opinions, by vets, drys and neutrals—if there be such—alike. One element which is very strong in this State, the enthusiastic friends of President Hoover, may almost be classed as neutrals on prohibition because, regardless of their wet or dry leanings, and there are plenty of both persuasions, they are more concerned about his political welfare than any other issue.

"I think Mr. Fort has hit on the real solution of this whole prohibition question," said one of the President's closest friends, who is about to start to Washington to consult him on another matter. "If the people can make beer at home and drink it, they will soon stop patronizing bootleggers, or at least so many of them will that this terrible orgy of graft and corruption will end."

The drys call attention to the fact, however, that the White House specifically disavowed Mr. Fort's declaration about the legality of home brewing.

So, "Stand by the President," continues to be their slogan.

Edison, 83, Flatly Opposes Modification of Dry Laws

Veteran Inventor Passes Birthday in Attendance at Unveiling of Plaque in His Honor and Annual Interview With Reporters.

Fort Myers, Fla., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Emphatic opinions on prohibition, disarmament negotiations, science and invention were scribbled with a stubby pencil here today by Thomas A. Edison, on his eighty-third birthday.

Mr. Edison believed that absolute prohibition eventually will be enforced and that manufacture of light wines and beer in the home through modification of the Volstead act would not aid temperance. The inventor said that the age of fully automatic machinery would find the laborer with a home and many new things providing alcohol does not intervene.

Belief that the London disarmament conference will "arrive at a sane compact to limit future troubles," was expressed by Mr. Edison. He cautioned, however, that developments in electrical and poisonous destructive elements have not made a future world war impossible or improbable.

Asked regarding his health, and how old he actually felt, Mr. Edison's eyes twinkled as he replied that he "generally felt 50 years, but lately some microbes have spotted me and done some experimenting with my internal machinery, so I feel about 85."

Mr. Edison, who is recovering from a recent attack of pneumonia, appeared to be in only fair health. Although he went through the ceremonies with high spirit he retired to his home after the unveiling of a plaque in his honor, and rested.

The ceremonies of unveiling the memorial plaque were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Edison and Henry Ford, and Harvey Firestone and their wives together with a large crowd of citizens and visitors.

Dr. Hamilton Holt, president of Rollins College, gave the dedicatory address.

Mrs. Edison walked to the base of the memorial plaque to express Mr. Edison's appreciation for the hour. She said the inventor had not desired to make a speech because it would spoil his pleasure on the occasion.

During the newspaper interview, held in Mr. Edison's workshop, announcement was made that the inventor planned to create another scholarship to "encourage the youth of America to take a greater interest in science and invention."

Although he answered some newspaper questions concerning his rubber experiments, Mr. Edison spoke of them again in talking into a sound moving picture machine. He said he wanted to correct the impression that he was working on synthetic rubber, "by stating that it is the real rubber I am to produce, not synthetic."

"So far," he said, "I am feeling quite satisfied with the outcome of my work, but at this time have no definite report to make. It may be compared to a man plodding along the way to a goal. Every step brings him a trifle nearer, but does not in itself tell the entire story. This can not be told until the journey is completed."

Group to Consider Municipal Airport

Establishment of Landing Field to Be Reviewed After Long Lapse.

The joint congressional committee, which was created last year to bring about the establishment of a municipal airport in Washington, will meet Friday morning.

The call for the meeting was issued yesterday by Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, who heads the senators on the committee.

Last spring, the committee reported out a resolution authorizing a Federal contribution of $500,000 toward a municipal airport here, but it has never been acted upon.

SENATE VOTE CUTS PLATE GLASS DUTY

Rate Slash Brings Tariff on This Commodity to 1922 Level.

COALITION RULES VOTE

(Associated Press.)

Democrats and Republican Independents continued their rate slashing drive in the Senate tariff contest yesterday by cutting to the level of the 1922 law the duties on window and plate glass proclaimed under the flexible provisions.

By a vote of 41 to 40, approval was given part of an amendment by Senator Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, to cut the window glass rates. Then, without a roll call, the remainder of the reductions were adopted.

The plate glass reduction amendment was offered by Senator McMaster (Republican Independent), of South Dakota, and carried, 43 to 36. Senator McMaster asserted there never had been "a more deliberate misuse of official power" than in the proclamation of these increases.

Twelve Republicans and 29 Democrats combined to put over the Barkley cuts, while 36 Republicans and 4 Democrats opposed them.

The McMaster reductions gained 16 Republican and 27 Democratic votes and were opposed by 33 Republicans and 3 Democrats.

By the votes the rates proclaimed by the President last year on window glass, ranging from 1⅝ to 3¾ cents a pound, were lowered to a range from 1¼ to 2½ cents, and the plate glass duties were cut from 16 to 22 cents a square foot to 12½ to 17½ cents. Senator Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, one of several speakers who opposed the cuts, asked reconsideration of the viva voce vote by which approval was given the remaining Barkley amendments on the ground that he had requested a roll-call vote and was not heard by Vice President Curtis. Senator Barkley objected.

Urging adoption of his proposal, the Kentuckian said conditions had changed in the glass industry since the Tariff Commission investigated the rates and found increases necessary to meet foreign competition. He contended the increases were recommended when 60 per cent of the industry was using the hand-blown and cylinder-blown process, and that now virtually all the manufacturers were using the more modern and cheaper sheet-drawn method.

Capper Lauds U. S. Purchasing Power

Senator Says in Radio Talk That Money Makes World Great.

This would be a great world if it had purchasing power, that is, money, Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, declared yesterday in the National Radio Homemakers Club period over a network of the Columbia Broadcasting System from Station WMAL.

Comparing the high purchasing power of the average American with that of the rest of the world, he said the spreading of the former standard "offers the promise of the future, if the statesmen of the world are wise enough to realize it and the statecraft of the world has the patience and the ability to work out a program with that end in view.

Senator Capper quoted statistics from a report of Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, to show that Americans, while comprising only a small percentage of the world's population, buy a large proportion of its goods.

U. S. TARIFF PARLEY NOTE GIVEN LEAGUE

This Government Will Have Observer Present, Reply Promises.

DUTY TRUCE IS SOUGHT

Geneva, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—The American Government notified the League of Nations secretariat, through the Berne legation today, that the United States would not participate in the international conference for a tariff truce beginning at Geneva February 17, but would have an observer present.

Edwin C. Wilson, first secretary of the American Embassy in Paris, will attend this diplomatic gathering "with a view to obtaining information regarding developments of the conference."

Word of the American action was conveyed to the secretary general of the league in a note from Pierrepont Moffat, charge d'affaires in Berne. The note covered telegraphic communication from the Department of State at Washington.

This conference, the department's communication recalls, will seek an agreement whereby states engage not to increase the levels of existing tariffs or create new customs duties during a period of two to three years. Regarding these aims, the State Department communication said:

"The American Government views with approbation any endeavor to facilitate world-wide economic relations and to remove discriminatory economic measures, and has with this object signed and ratified a convention for the abolition of export prohibitions and restrictions. It has cooperated with other international activities looking to the betterment of economic conditions througnout the world.

"The Government of the United States does not feel, however, that it could at this time usefully participate in the conference * * * The American Government nevertheless will follow with sympathetic interest any action which may be taken by States participating in this conference to promote by nondiscriminatory measures their economic welfare."

At league headquarters it was felt that the meeting of Government economic leaders—including 15 ministers of commerce—is one of the most important ever engendered by the league.

Government Takes Over Brewery on Tax Liens

Chicago, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—The Government of the United States today became owner of the Standard Brewing Co., erstwhile property of Terry Druggan and Frank Lake, reputed beer barons.

The property, appraised at $550,000, was offered for sale at public auction by the Government to satisfy income tax liens, but Myrtle Tanner Blackledge, collector of internal revenue, three of her assistants and four newspaper photographers were the only ones present. With no other bidders, the brewery was sold to the Government.

SHE WONDERS why he chooses her above all other girls. It wasn't far to find—she had a clear complexion, bright, snappy eyes, lots of pep and vivacity. Before he knew her, she had a pimply skin, no color, felt drowsy—no strength—no appetite. In her miserable state she wrote Dr. Pierce's Clinic in Buffalo, N. Y., and they advised her about herself so that she now is most admired by all. Many have received this free medical advice and it put them on their feet. Why don't you write?

One who has used Dr. Pierce's remedies said: "I recommend Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for bronchial weakness and as a blood enricher. I had bronchial trouble and a severe cough, I became terribly rundown and was full of aches and pains. I took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it cleared my system of the poison, enriched my blood, strengthened my bronchials and restored me to health. Since it proved so very beneficial at that time I have always taken it when I needed a tonic."—Miss Lilian Perkinson, 1423 Farmer street, Petersburg, Va.

British Actors In Shakespeare Roles Are Due

Stratford-Upon-Avon to Send Company to Washington.

By JEAN ELIOT.

HERALDING the appearance of the Stratford-Upon-Avon Festival Company in Shakespearean repertory in Washington, Sir Archibald Flower, chairman of the board of governors of the Shakespeare Memorial Theater, will come avisiting in the Capital toward the end of this month and will be accompanied by Lady Flower and Miss Evadne Flower. Preparations are already being made for their entertainment by old friends, among them Representative and Mrs. James M. Beck.

When the American Shakespeare Foundation was busy raising $1,000,000 as its contribution toward the rebuilding of the Shakespeare Memorial Theater at Stratford, Sir Archibald and Lady Flower visited this country and at this time were guests of the President and Mrs. Hoover—then the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Hoover—at their home in Palo Alto, Calif. Their country seat, the Hill, is at Stratford-on-Avon, one of the show places of the beautiful English country round about; and there they have entertained many distinguished Americans who have made pilgrimages to the birthplace of Shakespeare.

Sir Archibald has been one of the organizers of the movement to rebuild and endow the Shakespeare Memorial Theater, to which the American Shakespeare Foundation contributed so liberally under the leadership of Mr. Elihu Root, president; Mr. Otto Khan, treasurer, and such distinguished Americans as Mr. Beck and Mr. John W. Davis, former United States Ambassador to Great Britain.

While Sir Archibald is not due in Washington until February 26, Lady Flower and their winsome daughter, Miss Evadne Flower will arrive on February 21. They will remain until March 2, when they will leave for Philadelphia to keep various social engagements. Meanwhile Miss Victoria Powell, who is serving as a sort of unofficial social secretary for Sir Archibald and Lady Flower, is in town and is staying at the Hamilton Hotel. She is, officially, lecturer for the Stratford-Upon-Avon Festival Company.

This group of players, which toured the United States and Canada last year and met with enthusiastic support of its Shakespearen repertory, is playing return engagements this season and will appear at the National Theater on the week beginning Monday, March 3. Profits from the tour will go toward the rebuilding and endowment fund of the Memorial Theater.

The corner stone of this great edifice was laid last July, and it is expected that the theater will be opened in the spring of 1931. Incorporated under royal charter, the Memorial Theater is under the patronage of his majesty King George V.

The Bard of Avon seems to be holding the center of the stage in Washington these days. Not only is this visit of this internationally supported group in prospect but this very week the Chicago Civic Shakespeare Society is presenting Fritz Leiber and his distinguished supporting company in a really thrilling repertory at Poli's Theater. And today will come the first of a series of lectures by Dr. Louis K. Anspacher, a Shakesperean authority, who has chosen the greatest dramatist produced by the English-speaking people as the subject of his course this year. The talks, which will be held at the Willard on Wednesday mornings, will deal with various aspects of Shakesperean genius.

Mrs. Frederick W. Rhinelander, of New York, who, with Mr. Rhinelander, is passing some time at the Wardman Park Hotel, entertained at a tea in her apartment yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Rhinelander was assisted by Mrs. Freeland Peter, Mrs. Charles Woodhull, Miss Anna McGowan and Miss Virginia Raeburn. Mrs. Rhinelander will entertain again at tea next Tuesday afternoon.

Miss Catherine Critcher to Speak on Art

Miss Catherine C. Critcher will preside at a studio assembly of the Art and Archaeology League of Washington on Saturday at 4:15 o'clock at No. 1 Dupont circle, at which meeting she will speak on "Indian Art." Miss Critcher will display a collection of her paintings by way of illustration of her talk. Miss Margaret Comegys will make a comparison of fine and commercial art.

Mrs. Lloyd Thurston, wife of Representative Thurston, of Iowa, will entertain at luncheon tomorrow at the Congressional Club.

Mr. John Baldwin Cochran and Mr. William Bowie Clark, who are passing a part of the season in Florida, were honor guests of Mrs. W. Harry Brown at the Royal Poinciana in Palm Beach at a series of week-end festivities.

A reception will be given February 12 from 9 to 12 o'clock at the Washington Club in honor of Mrs. Albert N. Baggs and the candidates on her ticket for the State officers of the District of Columbia D. A. R.

Miss Julia Schelling to Appear in Sketches

In a program of dramatic sketches with music interpretations Miss Julia E. Schelling will appear in an all-Liszt afternoon in the Italian Garden of the Mayflower on Thursday, February 20, at 4:30 o'clock, when she will be assisted by Miska Merson, Hungarian pianist. Ten numbers comprise the dramatic sketches chosen for presentation of Miss Schelling, who is a sister of Ernest Schelling, composer and pianist. The patrons for the afternoon include Mme. Peter, Mrs. Copley Amory, Mrs. Henry Dimock, Mrs. Charles Warren, Mrs. Karl von Lewinski, Mr. George E. MacLean, Mr. Ernest Schelling and Dr. and Mrs. James E. Ament.

Miss Schelling will go to Bayreuth next summer for the purpose of interpreting in English the music dramas of the Wagner festival of 1930, thus presenting for the first time lectures in English preceding each performance. Permission has been secured for the lectures from Siegfried Wagner.

Mrs. Phyllis Lamar to Hold Reception

Mrs. Phyllis Lamar, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Howard Felix Moore, will entertain at a reception on Sunday at her home in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Martineau Nebeker. Mrs. Nebeker, before her recent marriage, was Miss Florence Virginia Bishop, daughter of Mrs. Howard Livingston Bishop, of Washington and Virginia. Mr. Nebeker is the son of Judge and Mrs. Frank Knowlton Nebeker and the nephew of the former Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. William Jardine.

Miss Elizabeth M. Bailey, daughter of Justice Jennings Bailey, of the District Supreme Court, will be hostess at a bridge party to the members of Washington Alliance of Delta Delta Fraternity at her home Friday evening, February 14, at 8 o'clock. The assistant hostesses will be Mrs. Marion Harrell Brown, Mrs. Amos A. Steele and Miss Gertrude Van Riper.

Mrs. Jefferson Myers, wife of Commissioner Myers, of the United States Shipping Board, was hostess Friday at a bridge luncheon.

Fifth Ave. Fashions NEW YORK

A NOVELTY silk and wool crepe in purply-blue tones dips its back hem and accents normal waistline with belt of plain crepe which appears again in scarf neckline.

The double-tiered skirt rather suggests peplum with the upper tier fitted snugly through the hips.

The bodice is severely simple save for scarf collar that reveals a bit of Spanish, falling softly over shoulder.

Style No. 8214 is designed in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. In the medium size it requires 4⅛ yards of 39-inch materials with ¾ yard of 39-inch contrasting.

It makes up very attractively for afternoons because of its fluttering lengthened dipping hem, in black chiffon, which is equally suited for informal evenings and restaurant wear.

Black silk crepe with the scarf collar lined with eggshell silk crepe is very distinctive.

Dark dahlia purple crepe marocain is smart suggestion.

Independence blue chiffon, navy blue wool crepe and crepe de chine in tomato red are fascinating combinations.

New Cuban Singer Pleases Audience

Senorita Otero's Rendition of Operatic Arias Is Impressive.

Emma Otero, new Cuban prima donna, was heard in concert here yesterday at Poli's Theater for the second time this season and she repeated the favorable impression made earlier at one of Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's musical mornings. Yesterday she was presented under the local management of Mrs. Wilson-Greene.

Her voice is an ample coloratura soprano of natural beauty and well handled for the main part. That it is a well trained voice was shown in the ease with which she sang difficult operatic arias, notably the "Shadow Song," from Meyerbeer's "Dinorah."

Another facet of her vocal genius was portrayed in her rendition of a group of ballads, including two selections by Rossini, his "La Promessa" and "Pastorella Della Alphi."

The emotional qualities of her voice prevailed in the recitative and aria, "O Luce di Questi Anima," by Donizetti, in which she exhibited vocal pyrotechnics with accuracy and skill. One of Senorita Otero's songs, "Pastorale," by La Farge, was dedicated to her by that composer.

MacDonald's Son On Way to Capital

Leaves Hollywood by Plane and Expects to Arrive Here Tonight.

Los Angeles, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Allastair MacDonald, son of the Prime Minister of Great Britain, Ramsay MacDonald, left here by airplane today for Washington on his return trip to England after sojourning a week in Hollywood.

Mr. MacDonald expects to reach Washington tomorrow night. There he will confer with English diplomats before sailing.

While here the 31-year-old English architect studied the Spanish architecture of Southern California and watched the wheels of the motion picture industry run. Asked once whether he ever would enter politics, Mr. MacDonald replied:

"If I weren't already an architect, I'd certainly be a movie technician."

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

ALWAYS on the lookout for potential stage talent, since he has an opera company of his own, Mr. S. E. Cochran, manager of the National Theater, calls attention to the remarkable stage presence of young Dick Douglass, the Georgetown University sophomore, who is giving a sort of travelogue this week in connection with the picture, "Across the World With Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson." Young Robert Dick Douglas hails from North Carolina, he makes a personal appearance each night at intermission time and tells of his experiences while in South Africa, with two other Eagle Boy Scouts. So great is his appeal that even smokers remain inside the auditorium, forsaking the weed for a vivid description of lion hunting.

"THE IVORY DOOR" by A. A. Milne, is the play chosen by the Junior Theater for the opening of their 1930 season which begins in the Shubert Theater next Saturday, with a matinee at 2:30 and an evening performance at 8:20.

A splendid group of players has been retained by those interested in the Junior Theater. Included is William S. Johnstone, who will appear in the role of the young King Perivale. Mr. Johnstone has spent two seasons with the Theater Guild, appearing in "Caesar and Cleopatra," "The Goat Song," "Chief Thing" and "Androcles and the Lion." He also played in "Fog Bound," with Nance O'Neill; "Him," with the Provincetown Players; "The Medicine Man," produced by Sam Harris; "These Days," an Arthur Hopkins production, and many other successes.

Leading feminine roles will be played by Betty Beeman, who has had years of repertory experience with Edith Wynne Mathison. Miss Ruth Guiterman, niece of Arthur Guiterman, the poet, is a member of the company.

At Poli's Theater next week, commencing Monday evening the 17th, Eleanor Painter will appear in Victor Herbert's melodious gem, "The Fortune Teller." This little prima donna has achieved one of the most distinctive successes of her career as the star feature of this very prosperous Victor Herbert festival. Since her last visit to America, Miss Painter is said to have improved a great deal, both vocally and histrionically. In "The Fortune Teller" she has to essay three distinct characters, Musette, a ballet dancer; Irma, a gypsy fortune teller, and Fedor, a young officer in the Hungarian army, each of which has a different singing range and a diametrically opposite medium of presentation.

MITZI, one of the most popular musical stars in the country, will be seen at the National Theater for a week's engagement, commencing Monday evening. She comes here as star in the greatest success of her career, "Sari," that delightful Kalman operetta, which overnight made her famous throughout the musical world. "Sari" is one of those delightful Hungarian operettas that has lived for many days and its popularity seems never to wane. Mitzi will be surrounded by a company of singers and dancers. An Albertina Rasch ballet is one of the featured attractions.

FEDERAL EMPLOYES INDORSE DALE BILL

Conference on Retirement Holds Measure Best for Workers.

OPPOSE LEHLBACH PLAN

Voicing their opposition to the proposed Lehlbach retirement bill, the joint conference on retirement, representing more than 300,000 civil service employes, unanimously voted at its meeting, last night, to indorse the Dale bill, as passed by the Senate and instructed its members to request early approval of the latter measure by the House civil service committee.

Spokesmen from the several organizations representing the postal employes expressed the view that the Lehlbach bill was not as acceptable as the Dale bill, inasmuch as the latter measure provides the largest benefits for the greatest number of employes.

It was pointed out that under the Lehlbach plan the average employe would receive no greater annuity than under the Dale bill for years to come, and in addition their contributions, in part, are subject to forfeiture.

Another objectionable feature to the Lehlbach bill from their standpoint is that it would be impossible for a $2,000 employe to purchase an annuity in excess of $1,200 for at least 15 years, while the higher paid workers would not receive any substantial benefits for at least eight or ten years.

It was further pointed but that under the Lehlbach bill, in the case of the death of an employe after retirement, and before he has received in annuities the amount that he has contributed to the fund, the unpaid balance reverts to the Government, while the present law provides that this balance shall revert to his estate.

During the debate on the new bill members of the conference stressed the inequalities of the proposed measure in respect to employes who leave the service, or who died before reaching retirement age. Statistics were presented which showed that only one employe in ten reaches the age of retirement.

"This means in the aggregate a tremendous loss to the employes because of the impounding of $1 monthly, which is not returned by the Government," said Chairman Robert H. Alcorn. "Under the existing law all contributions are returned. Under the proposed new bill there is too much uncertainty as to the amount of the annuity."

Continuing, Mr. Alcorn said: "Inasmuch as the older employes receive a higher annuity there would be a tendency on the part of many to remain in the service just as long as possible, thereby defeating the aims of the retirement principle."

Dr. Claude S. Hudson, professor of chemistry in the hygienic laboratory, United States Public Health Service, will address a meeting of the Washington Chemical Society at 8 o'clock tomorrow night at the Cosmos Club. His subject will be "The Ring Structures of the Sugars."

CLEVELAND RIOTERS CLUBBED BY POLICE; 22 ARE INJURED

group downed Lieut. Oliver Torrence. Then other policemen were attacked, each one a center of a little riot of his own. There were 30 rioters and policemen rolling and fighting on the sidewalks and pavements at once, showing signs of injury and bruises. The policemen used their riot sticks freely. Some of the 50 women in the crowd scratched and screamed at the policemen and tore at their hair and coats.

Officer Loses Coat Tail.

There was an element of the grotesque. Inspector Matowitz, seeing one of the men who had struck him, arose, almost breathless, and chased him down the street. Another man had torn off the tail of Lieut. Torrence's coat, and shouting, waved it in the air.

Before the riot had subsided, about 200 policemen, from all parts of the city, had been called in by Director of Safety Edwin L. Barry. Several fire squads had arrived and attached their hose, ready to cool off the mob if the police could not.

When the rioters were quieted, they were escorted back to Public Square by a police guard, almost as peaceably as they had come. At the square, speakers mounted the pedestal beneath the statue of the benevolent Tom Johnson, former Mayor of Cleveland, and continued to harangue the crowd until dusk.

Meeting Set for Tonight.

The orators announced a mass meeting at Public Square at 6 p. m. tomorrow as a protest against "the brutality of the Cleveland police department."

"Every time we go to see the city council we are treated like dirt," one of the speakers declared, "and we suffer because of the brutality of the Cleveland police department." The riot was practically without a leader, police said tonight. Leaders of the "council of the unemployed" were all in the city council chamber when the riot occurred, and were discussing their measure to provide more jobs.

The "council of the unemployed" was organized two weeks ago by Sadie Van Veen, a commercial artist; Israel Amter, her husband and alleged professional Communistic agitator, and John Foley, another alleged Communist.

The followers of the unemployed group are those who happen to be out of a job and at Public Square when the speakers are on the stone "soap box," erected several years ago by the city for all who desire to "blow off steam," regardless of what they have on their minds. It had been noticed recently that an unusually large number of jobless had been congregating at the square, many being attracted here from other cities.

Chief Graul told the Associated Press tonight that he did not believe the Communists directly the cause of the riot, but it was due to the "excitment of the mob losing its head."

Safety Director Barry said he would start no offensive against Communists or the gatherings, but would let speakers have their say and take precautions against future riots.

Assault Charges Made.

Charges of assault and battery on Lieut. Torrence were placed tonight against Tom Rider, 40, and Basil Lignos, 32. Adolph Svoboda, 19, who was alleged to have urged Lignos and Rider on, was charged with disturbance.

The more seriously injured were:

Sol Jagoda, 21, broken spine and lacerations on the head.

William Lux, 25, deep scalp wounds.

Lieut. Torrence, cuts and scratches on the face, and possible internal injuries.

May Force Chief to Quit.

Duluth, Minn., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—The resignation of Police Chief E. H. Barber will be asked by Safety Commissioner James E. Foubister Wednesday unless he can make a satisfactory explanation to the Duluth city council why he refused admission to the city hall late this afternoon of a group of alleged communists who were to present a resolution demanding "relief for the unemployed."

Three young men and two women, said to be leaders of the group, were arrested by police when they stormed the entrance of the city hall after Chief Barber refused to allow only a committee of three to enter.

A meeting of the communists with the city council, at which time the "unemployment" resolution was to be presented, had been arranged, and Chief Barber had been instructed by the commissioners to allow them in the city hall, the commissioners said. The communists, after parading through the downtown district, halted on the steps of the city hall to address a gathering of about 100 men and women.

Telephone Heads Fete Federation of Citizens

Officers and delegates of the Federation of Citizens Associations were guests last night at the central office of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. More than 100 delegates and their relatives were escorted through the building by guides. Dr. George C. Havenner, president of the federation, headed the party.

Hosts at the reception were Hanse Hamilton, general manager of the company; Charles T. Clagett, assistant to the geenral manager; F. G. Macarowe, general traffic manager, and R. V. Russell, general commercial manager. A reception was given to the guests following a tour of inspection.

No schedule of liabilities or assets is filed, the company reserving the ten-day period of grace allowed by law. Attorneys Vandoren, Rafferty & Rogers appear for the petitioner.

Anniversary Is Noted By Sorority Members

The three Washington chapters of Beta Chi, naitonal sorority, celebrated the twelfth anniversary of the order last night with a dance at the Congressional Country Club. More than 60 couples were present.

The committee in charge of the program included Mrs. James O'Neill and Mrs. Claude Clagett, Alpha Chapter; Miss Miriam Draeger and Miss Alice Morgan, Gamma Chapter, and Miss Martha Burch and Miss Shirley Kellam, Eta Chapter.

Auto Shop Theft Reported.

Isadore Glasser reported to police yesterday that the office of his automobile shop on Florida avenue near First street northeast was broken into during the night and 44 automobile tires and 25 batteries, totally valued at $75, were stolen. Entrance was gained by smashing a lock on a door to the office.

CABINET AIDS SEEK BOOST IN SALARIES

Assistant Secretaries Say They Can Not Live on $9,000 Per Year.

WANT SCALE AT $10,000

(Associated Press.)

Flanked by members of President Hoover's Cabinet, assistant secretaries who comprise the "Little Cabinet" yesterday besieged the House expenditures committee for a raise in salary for themselves.

All were agreed the sums of from $7,500 to $9,000 now paid these officials were far less than they could command in commercial fields. Under the bill urged by them the solicitor general, undersecretaries of the Treasury and State Departments and the budget director would receive $12,000 a year, while other assistant secretaries would be paid $10,000.

Secretary Lamont, when asked if a man without independent means could live in Washington on the social scale required by a "Little Cabinet" position on the salary paid by the Government, replied:

"From my own experience I would hate to try it."

"Then a poor man could not hold the job even if he was qualified and capable?" Representative Swing (Republican), California, asked.

"I don't think so," Mr. Lamont replied.

He added Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, had received no raise when promoted from director of foreign commerce, but had been offered four times as much salary by outstanding industrial organizations.

Secretary Wilbur said:

"The second string men under the Cabinet officers run the departments, yet they have no guarantee of jobs beyond one administration. We are in competition with the commercial world, where men of administrative ability are being sought constantly."

Ogden Mills, Undersecretary of the Treasury, added:

"If the Undersecretary is not worth $12,000 a year, he is worth nothing."

Acting Secretary Cotton of the State Department urged the provision of allowances to ambassadors and ministers which would enable them to fulfill social obligations of the American Government without relying upon their personal finances.

Solicitor General Charles Evans Hughes, jr., told the committee it was difficult to obtain Assistant Attorneys General because of poor pay.

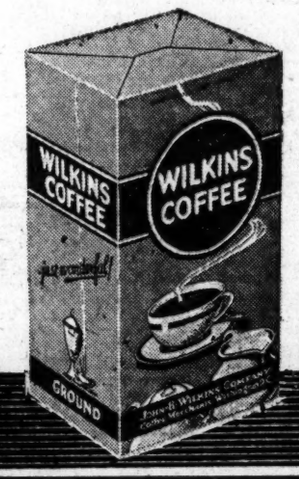
WILKINS COFFEE



—just wonderful!

FRANCES T. NORTHCROSS says:

"IN our Home Economics Service Schools we have made many discoveries—of utmost importance to housewives.

"For example, we have found by actual test that Rinso soaks out dirt and spots with little or no rubbing. It washes clothes bright and snowy without boiling. Naturally that saves the housewife's hands; and the clothes last much longer, too.

"In our home-making demonstrations we show women how safe Rinso is for their finest cottons and linens. We advise them to use it always in their washing machines and tubs. And in our demonstrations we tell them how fine Rinso is for dishes, too—and for all household cleaning."

HOME ECONOMICS SERVICE SCHOOLS

Home-making Expert of this newspaper invites you to see

Clothes washed snowy . . . . without scrubbing or boiling!

The WASHINGTON POST Expert
MRS. FRANCES TROY NORTHCROSS
(of the Home Economics Service Schools) will continue her demonstrations at BELASCO THEATRE
at 2 P. M. Today and also Thursday and Friday at 2 P. M.

"LIKE magic!" women tell the lecturer of the Home Economics Service Schools when they see, right on the platform, how clothes are washed snow-white and gleaming . . . without scrubbing or boiling.

The Home Economics Service Schools' classes are always filled to capacity. So come early to today's demonstration. Note the time and place above.

Here's what you will see

In today's demonstration the Home Economics Service Schools' expert takes a little Rinso and whips it into a tubful of thick, soapy suds. Into these suds she puts an armful of soiled clothes.

While the clothes soak, the action of Rinso is explained. How it loosens dirt — whitens and sterilizes without boiling—saves hands and clothes —does all the hard work of washday without washboard, bar soap, chips or powders.

When the lecturer's assistant rinses the clothes, you will be amazed. Snow-white and gleaming, yet they weren't scrubbed one bit!

So compact—one cupful of Rinso gives more suds than two cupfuls of lightweight, puffed-up soaps. Get the BIG package. You'll like Rinso's soapy suds for dishes, too.

For washing machines—great!

The makers of 38 leading washing machines recommend Rinso. 32,000 demonstrators use this soap to help them make sales. Come and see why!

Guaranteed by the makers of LUX—Lever Brothers Co., Cambridge, Mass.

THREE DIE AS HOME IN VIRGINIA BURNS

Mother and Two Children Victims of Tragedy at Norton.

THREE OTHERS INJURED

Norton, Va., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Three persons were burned to death and three others seriously burned in a fire which destroyed the home of J. Harmon Mullins, on Bush Creek, Dickenson County, this morning.

The dead are Mrs. J. Harmon Mullins, Emma Lee Mullins, 14, a daughter, and Vernie James Mullins, 12, a son. The injured are Mrs. Jack Robinson, 23, of Clinch County, daughter; Clovis Mullins, 20, son; Joan, 10, daughter.

Twins, only four days old, were saved by J. Harmon Mullins, the father, who wrapped them in a feather-bed and tossed them out of a window, escaping himself with a few burns before the house collapsed.

Clovis Mullins was in a serious condition at the Dickenson County Hospital, having received burns while dragging his sister, Joan out of the flames.

The bodies of Mrs. Mullins and two children were found in the embers. The fire is supposed to have started from a kitchen stove.

Fire Damages Navy Station Office.

Damages estimated at $500 was done to a frame building used as a flight test office at the Naval Air Station shortly after 7 o'clock yesterday morning when a fire, originating from an overheated furnace, swept the building. None was hurt and firemen succeeded in confining the blaze to the frame building.

Joe Opportunity Gets Gun Of Riveter for Door Knocks

Post Campaign Conductor Asks Aid of Commerce Building Worker to Make Sure People Will Hear Him When He Calls at Homes.

"May I borrow that for a day or so?" asked Old Man Opportunity, as he examined a riveting hammer, high up on a girder of the new Department of Commerce Building.

"Who are you, and what do you want it for?" countered the riveter.

"I am Opportunity," said the old gentleman, "and I am conducting a $20,000 Opportunity Campaign for The Washington Post. My knuckles are calloused from knocking on so many unresponsive doors, and it occurs to me that one of these things would be sure to command attention."

"I thought every one listened for your knock," remarked the riveter.

"Every one claims to do so," answered Opportunity, "but it is remarkable how few recognize me when I appear at their doors. For instance," he continued, "during this campaign of The Washington Post I am giving every man and woman in this territory a chance to secure one of twelve brand new automobiles or sixteen radios or to increase their income by cash commissions, paid for securing subscriptions to The Washington Post. And in spite of these great rewards and the fact that there will be no losers, approximately only one-third of the number who should be interested have sent in their nominations."

"Say," inquired the riveter, "are you knocking on my door?"

"Where is it?" asked Opportunity as he gazed around at the vast open spaces.

"This girder will be a door-post," explained the other.

"Consider it knocked on," exclaimed Opportunity as he seized a sledge hammer and pounded upon it.

"Come right in," invited the riveter. "Sit down on this keg of rivets and tell me all about it."

"Well," responded the old man, "just send in the nomination blank that appears in today's Post. That entitles you to 5,000 free votes. Then during your spare time, ask your friends and acquaintances if they would not like to have this newspaper delivered to their homes 'the first thing in the morning?' Every subscription which you thus secure will count for thousands of votes, in accordance with the table which will be furnished to you by the campaign manager—whose office is located on the fifth floor of The Post Building. And your first subscription will earn you an additional bonus of 25,000 votes," he added.

"After that," he continued, "it is only a matter of accumulating votes, and the person who secures the highest total will be presented with a Cadillac Sedan. Other prizes will be awarded in direct relation to their value and to the standing of the contestants."

"I'll bring along the riveting gun and start tonight," promised the new candidate as he deftly caught a glowing rivet and turned on the air.

"Remember, you also get 100,000 extra votes for each $20 worth of new subscriptions turned in before 9 p. m. on February 19," called Opportunity as he grasped a derrick hook and swung off the building.

JURY FINDS WOMAN GUILTY IN RUM CASE

Gordon Reserves Sentence for Tessie Richards on Selling Charge.

NEW TRIAL IS SOUGHT

Tessie Richards was found guilty by a jury in Criminal Division No. 1 of the District Supreme Court yesterday on a charge of possessing liquor in violation of the national prohibition law on October 25, 1928. The offense was not under the Jones act, according to Assistant United States Attorney James Kirkland, who prosecuted.

Justice Peyton Gordon reserved sentence, and Attorney Bertrand Emerson, defense counsel, announced he would seek a new trial and, failing that, would carry the case to the Court of Appeals.

The woman faced the jury on three counts of an indictment which was returned November 19 last. She was acquitted on the first two counts which charged sale and possession respectively.

During most of the trial the woman was in tears.

Policemen George C. McCarron, William F. Burke and Richard Cox, of the First Precinct, were the principal witnesses for the Government. They testified that the woman was arrested by them in October, 1928, following information that Morton A. Anderson had purchased whisky in the woman's establishment. Records in the United States attorney's office show that during the past few years she has occupied many premises in the vicinity of Thirteenth and C streets northwest. Padlock proceedings are now pending in the District Supreme Court against at least one of these establishments.

YOUR INCOME TAX

No. 10.

The term "net income" means gross income less the deductions allowed under the statute. Such deductions include business and professional expenses, pensions to employes, taxes, losses, interest paid, bad debts, depreciation, depletion, contributions, &c.

Having arrived at the net income, the next step is to deduct the personal exemption—$3,500 for married persons living together and heads of families, or $1,500 for a single person plus the $400 credit for each dependent, &c. The normal tax is computed on the remainder at the rate of one-half of 1 per cent on the first $4,000, 2 per cent on the next $4,000, and 4 per cent on the balance. Failure to understand the distinction between deductions against gross income and credits against net income has resulted in numerous errors on the part of taxpayers.

Business expenses form a large item in the return of many taxpayers. Typical business expenses of a mercantile establishment are amounts paid for advertising, hire of clerks and other employes, rent, light, heat, water, telephone, property insurance, and delivery expenses. The expenses of a manufacturing business include labor, raw materials, supplies, repairs, light and heat, power, selling cost, administration and other similar charges.

A professional man, such as a lawyer, doctor, architect, dentist, &c, may deduct the cost of supplies used in his practice, expenses paid in the operation and repair of an automobile used in making professional calls, dues to professional societies, subscriptions to professional journals, office rent, cost of light, fuel, water and telephone used in his office, and the hire of office assistants.

Mail Fraud Trial Is Set for Today

Three Men Will Face Jury After One Defendant's Case Is Dismissed.

Charges of using the mails to defraud against Frederick E. Lewis, of New Haven, Conn.; Edward Fell Lukens, of Philadelphia, and Butler Kellogg, of New York City, are scheduled to go to a jury in criminal division No. 2 of the District Supreme Court today.

Motions of the attorneys for the three men were denied by Justice William Hitz, although a similar motion in regard to Warren T. Godfroy, an attorney, of Louisville, Ky., was sustained, the justice directing the jury to return a verdict of acquittal in regard to the latter.

Testimony has been to the effect that the three men whose fate will be decided today were interested in the firm of S. B. Thayer Son & Co., which came to Washington from Wilmington, Del., in 1923. Testimony also has been that the company operated here until 1925, when some of the men on trial were arrested. During the time the company operated in Washington, it is charged, they made contracts for loans and bond issues which never were carried out, although approximately $150,000 was paid to them for the performance of the contracts.

$7,500 Suit Filed Against Moffatt

Woman Alleges He Failed to Account for Stock She Ordered.

William L. Moffatt, former investment broker, who on Saturday was sentenced to serve five years in jail on charges of false pretense in connection with a promotion scheme, yesterday was named defendant in a suit filed in District Supreme Court in which Maybell LeB. Merhige, of 100 Leland street, Chevy Chase, Md., seeks to recover $7,500.

The plaintiff alleges that in October, 1929, Moffatt induced her to convert a number of securities into 200 shares of Cities Service stock. She states that she surrendered the securities to Moffatt, but that he converted them to his own use and never has delivered the other stock.

Moffatt is now under four pending indictments charging embezzlement or false pretense and is scheduled to be tried on them at an early date. Attorneys James J. Slattery and Francis D. Alexander appear for the plaintiff in the suit.

[COOKING SCHOOL NEWS]

Two fine cakes

and a new cake-making secret

If you have been in the habit of using only butter in your cakes, it may, at first, be a little hard to understand how Crisco can make cakes that you simply can't tell from butter cakes. But it's true!

One taste of Crisco just as it comes from the can will tell you why. Did you ever imagine a shortening could be so sweet and fresh?

Now, don't you understand why more and more fine cooks are using Crisco alone in all their cakes? Especially so when you discover how quickly and thoroughly Crisco blends with the other ingredients, giving you lighter, more tender cakes with a nice, even texture.

Date Cake

½ cup Crisco
1½ cups brown sugar
4 eggs
3¼ cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups dates, stoned and cut in small pieces
¾ cup milk

Cream Crisco and sugar together. Add well-beaten eggs and mix well. Mix and sift flour, baking powder, cinnamon, nutmeg and salt and add alternately with the milk to the first mixture. Beat thoroughly. Add dates and mix well. Pour into a greased tube or loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 50 to 60 minutes. Cool. This cake may be frosted, if desired.

Featherweight White Cake

½ cup Crisco
1 cup sugar
½ cup milk
2 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
3 egg whites
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream Crisco. Add sugar gradually. Stir in alternately milk and sifted dry ingredients. Fold in thoroughly stiffly beaten egg whites. Add vanilla. Turn batter into 2 greased layer cake pans. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.). Ice with any desired icing.
(To make it into a Lady Baltimore Cake, use a filling of dates, figs and nuts moistened with lemon juice, and ice with boiled icing.)

These recipes have been tested and approved by cooking authorities. You will get best results by using level measurements and the ingredients specified.

CRISCO is used in the Cooking School now being conducted by this paper

Mrs. Frances Northcross, in The Washington Post Cooking School, makes a point of modern methods in cooking. Naturally, then, she uses Crisco, the modern shortening. Not only is Crisco easy to use; in addition, it helps you secure better, surer results.

Crisco is the registered trade-mark of a shortening manufactured by The Procter & Gamble Co.

The Other Night at the Brown's

MR. and Mrs. were having an after-dinner confab. "Yes," she was saying, "the man was here this afternoon and I had him put it in the downstairs hall where it will be handy to both the living room and the kitchen. I've used it twice already. Really, I don't see how I ever got along without it."

That's what most people say after they've added a telephone to the other comforts and conveniences that go to make life more livable. It's the one sure way of keeping in touch with things nowadays. It puts you within quick range of your friends, relatives and all of the business people with whom you have daily dealings.

Ask at our business office about the rates. You'll be surprised to find how low they are.

Wouldn't it be a good idea to see us right now about having a telephone installed?

Bridge Play Over Radio Is Analyzed

Experts From Los Angeles, Newton, Mass., Cincinnati and New York City Take Part in 13th Game of Series.

Featured in the thirteenth of Milton C. Work's radio bridge games, which went on the air yesterday afternoon from Station WRC, were Mrs. Catherine A. Streeter, of Los Angeles, Calif., Mrs. Prescott Warren, of Newton, Mass.; C. J. McDiarmid, Esq., of Cincinnati, Ohio, and E. V. Shepard, of New York City, all of them noted figures in the bridge world.

Their cards were:

Mr. McDiarmid, as dealer, South—Spades, K, J, 3; Hearts, A, J, 8, 2; Diamonds, Q, J, 10, 6; Clubs, A, 9.

Mr. Shepard, West—Spades, A, Q, 9, 5, 2; Hearts, 7, 6, 4; Diamonds, 7, 3; Clubs, 8, 4, 3.

Mrs. Warren, North—Spades, 8, 6; Hearts, K, Q, 3; Diamonds, A, 9, 5, 4; Clubs, K, J, 10, 2.

Mrs. Streeter, East—Spades, 10, 7, 4; Hearts, 10, 9, 5; Diamonds, K, 8, 2; Clubs, Q, 7, 6, 5.

Mr. McDiarmid, South, opened the bidding with one No Trump. Mr Shepard, West, passed. He appreciated that his best hope of saving game was to have the No Trump bid stand and lead Spades against it. He figured that if he did bid his Spades, a risky venture at best, the result might be that opponents would shift to a suit declaration at which their chance of game, from his viewpoint, would be increased.

Mrs. Warren, North, had ample strength to bid two No Trumps, but she deemed it inadvisable to increase the contract in view of her worthless doubleton in Spades. She thought it unlikely that East would be strong enough to bid, therefore she need not attempt to shut out a lead-directing call by that hand. However, in case East did bid, North was strong enough to bid or double on the next round. Mrs. Streeter, East, of course, was obliged to pass, giving Mr. McDiarmid the bid for one No Trump.

Mr. Shepard, West, opened the play by leading the 5 of Spades, his fourth best. Though an Ace-Queen suit is not opened against a trump contract if it can be avoided, the longest suit generally should be led against a No Trump, regardless of what cards it contains, unless that suit has been adversely bid.

North's hand became Dummy, and from it Declarer played the 6 of Spades. Mrs. Streeter, East, played the 10, and Declarer the Jack. With the lead in his own hand, Declarer was then in a position to finesse the Diamonds, of which he held eight in his combined hands; but he appreciated that if the finesse lost, Mrs. Streeter, East, would lead Spades through Declarer's King-3, and West, holding Ace-Queen, as was clearly shown by the cards played to the first trick, would be able to capture Declarer's high Spade and then run the entire suit, saving game. A finesse lost to West would not have the same dire result, because a Spade lead would be up to Declarer's once-guarded King.

Therefore, to trick two, Declarer led his Deuce of Hearts, to which West played the 4, Dummy the Queen and East the 5. Declarer then prepared to take a Club finesse, in the right direction, by leading Dummy's Deuce of Clubs. East played the 5. Declarer the 9, and West the Trey. Even if Declarer had not won this finesse, he still would have been in position to take three Club tricks, and East would not have been in the lead. These three Club tricks, with the one Spade and one Heart already won, the three more Hearts he was sure to win, and the Ace of Diamonds, were all he needed for game.

So he proceeded, at trick four, to lead the Ace of Clubs. West played the 4, Dummy the 10, East the 6, Declarer then led the 8 of Hearts; West played the 6; Dummy won with the King, and East followed suit with the 9. Dummy cashed the King of Clubs, East playing the 7; Declarer discarding the 6 of Diamonds, and West playing the 8 of Clubs. Dummy's next lead was the Trey of Hearts, to which East followed with the 10, South with the Jack and West with the 7. At trick eight, Declarer continued with the Ace of Hearts. West discarded the 9 of Spades; Dummy the 8 of Spades, and East the Deuce of Diamonds. To trick nine, Declarer led the Queen of Diamonds, West played the 7, Dummy the Ace, and East the 8-spot, Mr. McDiarmid refusing the tempting Diamond finesse because his Ace of Diamonds insured game. He did well to take the certainty; had he finessed East would have won and the adversaries would have taken the remaining tricks.

Mr. McDiarmid then had nine tricks and game. Regardless of what Dummy led to the tenth trick, Mrs. Streeter, East, was bound to win with either her King of Diamonds or Queen of Clubs, and obviously East and West would take all the rest of the tricks. Declarer scored 30 for tricks and 30 for his three Aces.

In commenting upon the game, Mr. Work called particular attention to one point which he says the expert never overlooks, but which the average player or beginner sometimes fails to see; the situation in which, as in this game, one of the adverse hands can be permitted to win a trick without serious consequences, but in which it is probable that the game would be saved if the other adverse hand should win the trick. This is because one adverse hand, East in this case, would be able to lead through a tenance or honor, whereas the other adversary would have to lead up to it. The hand which might make the game-saving lead is called the "danger hand," and the expert tries to manipulate his play so as to keep that hand from obtaining the lead, as Mr. McDiarmid did in this game when he determined to play his six-card Club suit instead of the eight-card Diamond suit, because the Diamonds could have been finessed only up to the danger hand.

Another feature in the game which might be passed unnoticed as it did not affect the result and was therefore seemingly unimportant was Mr Shepard's expert defensive play to tricks eight and nine. With the lead of the Ace of Hearts at trick eight Declarer had won the first eight tricks; his ninth trick and game was in sight in Dummy's Ace of Diamonds.

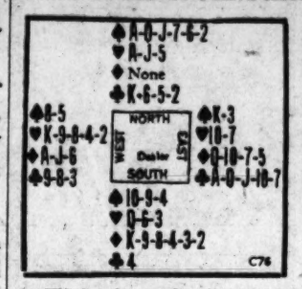
Mr. Shepard considered that Declarer might have a Diamond holding in his combined hands with which a finesse would give him a small slam if the King of Diamonds happened to be in the West hand. Therefore, hoping to mislead the Declarer into thinking he was protecting the King of Diamonds, Mr. Shepard, West, took care to discard the 9 of Spades on the Ace of Hearts, playing the 9 instead of the Deuce to give the impression that he had only a four-card Spade suit originally.

Mrs. Streeter, appreciating that her partner was trying to make Declarer misplace the King of Diamonds, did her part by discarding the Deuce of Diamonds on this trick. On the next trick Mr. Shepard continued his deceptive tactics when the Queen of Diamonds was led by playing the 7, not the Trey. But Declarer did not swallow the bait offered him by his adversaries. It did look to him as if Mr. Shepard had the King of Diamonds, but the business of the Declarer is to win a game when he can * * * not to risk it for a possible or probable slam * * * so he refused the finesse. Mr. Shepard's clever effort went for naught, but that did not detract from its merit.

Had the hand been played at Contract, South, using the No Trump count generally employed by Contract players, would have figured his Spades as 4, his Hearts 5, his Diamonds 3 and his Clubs 4 * * * a total of 16, just one less than the minimum for an original bid of two No Trumps. So he would have started by bidding one No Trump, West would have passed and North, with a count of 13, would have bid three No Trumps. A count of 12 is sufficient to jump dealer's one No Trump to three. The play would be the same in both games.

WORK ON BRIDGE

INTERESTING HANDS I HAVE MET.



THIS hand was played in a game of Auction Bridge; had it been played in Contract the same situation would have arisen. It was handled by Mr. R. R. Richards, of Detroit, who sat North, and the hand is destined to go down in history as one of the most brilliant ever played.

THE BIDDING.

In the Auction bidding, after two passes, North bid one Spade, East two Clubs and, with all four players sharing in the bidding, it finally reached four Spades which East doubled.

In Contract North would have bid two Spades, East three Clubs, South three Spades, West four Clubs and North four Spades, which East would have doubled.

THE PLAY.

When the hand was played, East led the Ten of Hearts, dummy and West played small, and North won with the Jack.

The Declarer then appreciated that he must lose one Heart, one Club and one Spade; it being reasonable to suppose from East's double that he held the Spade King. Consequently to secure his game he must ruff North's three losing Clubs in dummy. Should North lead a small Club to trick 2 it doubtless would be taken by West who then would lead a Spade to reduce the number of dummy's trumps But if North led the Club King, East (who had bid Clubs) doubtless would win the trick and probably would not lead Spades up to North as it would be apt to cost the loss of his King if he did so.

Consequently to trick 2 North led the King of Clubs which East won with the Ace and continued the Hearts; but although North's Ace was forced and a Heart established for the adversaries, the Declarer was able to make the game by ruffing three Clubs with dummy's three trumps, the Diamond cross-ruff enabling him to reenter the North hand for that purpose.

Jane Claire INTERPRETS the MODE

Paris, Feb. 11.

TOO bad we can't regulate our coiffures as we regulate our skirts! What could be nicer now than to have a short wind-swept bob for sports and morning wear generally, a semi-long bob with a few deft twists at the back of the neck for afternoon teas, matinees or bridge, and then a far more elaborate coiffure for evening wear.

All of which not being possible and practical unless you want to revert to grandmother's trick of taking off this, that and the other thing before you go to bed each night, fashion has hit upon the semilong bob—long hair, just long enough to make a comfortable coiffure, or a tiny chignon in the back without any undue weight or bulk or any necessity for hat trouble.

1930 charm and dignity! Modern women do what they like but they are not boisterous about it. I wonder if it is the influence of our more gracious clothes and coiffure or, becoming dignified, have we created more fitting fashions?

To quote a certain famous person: "The modern woman has made it." Made the grade as it were. The grade of being her very own modern self, but a lovely and dignified self.

O-o-o-o, a dress so gor-licious! You wouldn't even try to live without it, not this lovely black crepe marocain dress, which bespoke Ardanse elegance and distinction in every line. And then, what do you think? Long black suede gloves stitched in white, but very, very finely, which were worn over the long tight sleeve of the dress.

And then, furnishing just the note to the entire ensemble, odd, heavy white crepe de chine cuffs, sewed to the top of the gloves.

O-o-o-o, they are absolutely as cute as a bug's ear—'n if you never saw a bug's ear, that's your own fault! But if you want to see what's "as cute as," then look at the little cape businesses that Heim is making for late summer wear with evening clothes.

They are shorter than short, there's no question whatsoever about that. In fact, one would almost accuse them of being a bolero, if they were just cut differently. And some have sleeves and some have not, some tie and some button—'n I just think the best thing to do altogether is to draw you one one day.

Are you snooping around the shops madly and in vain for a spring jacket or sleeveless blouse? And finding only chic ones that you can't afford to have? Don't hunt any more—send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for an illustrated leaflet telling you how to put a chic touch to your spring ensemble.

Ideas for blouses, sweaters and jacquettes, cute tricks for spring. Better send for them!

LAMB STEW.

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

2 pounds lean raw lamb.
2 tablespoons butter.
½ cup sliced onion.
3 cups diced rutabaga turnip.
1 green pepper, chopped.
1 quart water.
Flour.
Salt and pepper.

Breast, shoulder, neck, flank, and trimmings are all good for lamb stew Wipe the meat with a damp cloth, cut into small pieces, and roll in flour. Melt the butter in a skillet, add the onion, cook until it turns yellow, and add the meat. When the meat and onion have browned delicately, transfer them to a kettle, and add the water, after first pouring it into the skillet so as to get full benefit of the browned fat. Cover and simmer for one hour. Then add the turnip, green pepper, and seasonings and cook 20 minutes longer. If the stew is not thick enough, add 1 tablespoon of flour mixed with 2 tablespoons of cold water, and cook for several minutes longer, stirring constantly. Serve piping hot with browned potatoes and garnished with parsley.

Wives of Tomorrow

"SHY LOVERS" AGAIN.

DEAR Miss McDonald: You are an interesting and gifted person, and I always like what you say and the way you say it, but I am prone to think that your education in the species has been a bit neglected when I hear you assert with so much assurance that the "man does not exist who has not the courage to declare himself when in love." You may not observe them in the herd, but there are still plenty of Miles Standishes in the by-ways who are "sitters" in the girls' homes simply for this reason, and I dare say if you would throw out the challenge that some of them under sure disguise would admit it. I could cite a number of instances if space would admit. One just now comes to mind of a charming woman of middle life who told us this story in speaking of these "sitters."

For nine years Dick had called on her. She never knew in all that time by word or look if he meant to marry her. She had other friends and by and by she married Thomas and one was impressed that her feeling for him was more that of friendship than love. Some years after her marriage she met Dick, and his suffering had enhanced his courage and he told her that she was the only woman that he had ever loved. In her amazement she exclaimed, "Well, Dick! Why did you not tell me then?" He admitted that he just didn't have the courage and that he thought she cared for the man she later married. He said, "My wife has always been jealous of you, even to a calendar picture that looks like you."

A young man that we had known from childhood, one well to do and highly respected, the sort that mammas wanted their daughters to wed, once appealed to us to help him in his frantic desire to find tongue to propose to a girl that he did want to marry. He wanted to hide under a leap year and see if she would not do the proposing. We finally induced him out of sheer justice to the girl to tell her in some way. If his tongue would not speak, to write it down and let her read it. He finally succeeded in crowning her with her orange wreath and in sheer gratitude we were honored with an invitation to both wedding and reception.

A young woman whose name you would recognize in the field of authors today, who had been so impressed with the want of courage in men not only in love affairs, but in public life, and who had grown weary of the jibes of editors about leap year and its advantages, decided to find out more about this want of courage in the male species. She disguised her identity and proposed to a dozen men. One after one fell into the trap. They all took it seriously, and one man who was out of the "sitter" type, became so brave that she just had to drop out of sight to keep him from carrying her off. The most of them disclosed that they were in the market without the courage to approach the women they would admire, and were glad for leap year, not taking into consideration a girl who would play pranks. Another man who had lost the woman he loved through his cowardice, admitted that "Men are not all cowards in a business way, but when it came to the woman they love that he believed they were," that they did not feel it easy to approach her. He was suffering because of his loss, because he had not the courage to tell her what he had done in time to make amends.

ROMOLA.

Well Well! Well! Can all this we read be true? What bold, bold men we must have met!

But we just can't even see what woman would want one of these shy lads.

Speak up, girls. Are we really heartless when we say that a man who sits four years on the davenport without a word as to why he picked your particular davenport is poor matrimonial material?

This column is for you! Your experience, opinions and suggestions will help all who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign your name.

"AQUARIUS."

IF February 12 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 4 p. m. to 6 p. m. and from 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m., and from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m.

Events which will be of interest to the State or Nation are prognosticated for this date. The influences will be stimulating, but rather upsetting, and there will be much petty quarreling and foolish misunderstandings, especially within the home. Business interests should be guarded!

Children born on this February 12 with have a deep love for what they call "their own people," but they will not readily make or desire outside friends. They will have thoughtful natures, and will suffer somewhat from moods, which will make them despondent at times.

You possess grit, determination and, above all, a fine courage which enables you to see the shafts of silver even in the encircling gloom. The faith that is in you is strong and undying, and it keeps your glances ever upward and your heart eternally young.

You have an exceptionally well balanced mind—suffering from neither an inferiority or superiority complex You have a very keen and correct sense of values, and have few distorted views about things.

You will always have many friends, who help to make your life so well worth the living. The evidences of comradeship and affection which you receive are lovelier and infinitely more satisfying than any material gains which you may accrue. In fact, you have no great desire for wealth, and none for fame. You are destined to become a leader and you will be able to maintain your position of honor without arousing the enmity of your associates. You never talk down to any one or patronize an inferior or subordinate. You are the same person, with the same way, to everybody—yesterday, today and tomorrow. Your enthusiasms and your ideas are not changed by moods, as they are not a factor which enter into your make-up. You exercise considerable influence over others, and it is uplifting and kindly in character.

Successful people born February 12: John Winthrop, a colonial governor of Connecticut.

Abraham Lincoln, sixteenth President of the United States.

William W. Story, sculptor and poet.

Alfred C. Howland, artist.

Lord Dunraven, yacht owner and racer.

You can't help but notice how much softer and lighter Kotex is

And Kotex deodorizes; it is adjustable; you can wear it for hours with a feeling of perfect safety.

TODAY, with smartness a guide to every costume detail, women appreciate Kotex more than ever. For this sanitary pad is designed to fit securely, designed to protect adequately, without being in the least bulky. And it is soft . . . even after hours of wear!

Used in great hospitals

If you were to think of the one source of authority on sanitary protection, what would it be? The medical world, certainly. Then you'll be glad to know that 85% of the country's leading hospitals not only approve of, but actually use Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding today!

Please remember that Cellucotton is not cotton—it is a cellulose product which, for sanitary purposes, performs the same function as the softest cotton, but with 5 times the absorbency.

Kotex is so soft and comfortable because it is made up of layer upon layer of this unusual absorbent—Cellucotton. Each layer is a quick, complete absorbent in itself. And you can easily separate these layers, using only what needs demand.

The way the corners are rounded and tapered makes for further comfort. It explains, too, why Kotex leaves no revealing outline under the most close-fitting of frocks. Kotex deodorizes . . . gives that final measure of daintiness no smart woman dares overlook. Buy a box. Try it. After all, how else can you tell? Kotex Company, Chicago, Illinois.

SAFE . . . SECURE

1—Keeps your mind at ease.

2—Kotex is soft . . . not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.

3—Fastidious . . . the sign of true daintiness.

4—In hospitals . . . Kotex is the identical material used by surgeons in 85% of the country's leading hospitals.

OPPONENTS OF FOX'S IDEA THWART ACTION

$65,000,000 Securities Issue as Planned by Film Head Objected To.

COST CALLED TOO HIGH

New York, Feb 11 (A.P.).—Action on a new recapitalization plan to extricate the Fox Film Corporation from its financial difficulties, which had been proposed by William Fox, was postponed today by Federal Judge Frank J. Coleman after objections voiced by some stockholders and one of the principal creditors.

Samuel Untermyer, counsel for Mr. Fox, said the plan, which involved the issuance of $65,000,000 worth of securities through a banking syndicate headed by Lehman Bros., had the informal approval of Mr. Fox and a large majority of the directors.

After hearing objections of minority stockholders, represented by Stanley Lazarus and Lawrence Berenson, and the statement of Milton Bogue, counsel for Halsey-Stuart Co., one of the largest creditors, Judge Coleman postponed action on the plan until Thursday, after a meeting of the board of the Fox Corporation, when Mr. Untermyer expects formal approval will be given.

Receivership Is Alternative.

Judge Coleman said that, in his opinion, the only alternative to acceptance of the new plan is a receivership, and that he will take definite action Thursday.

Mr. Untermyer told the court at the adjourned session of the receivership hearing this afternoon that the new plan of financing involved the issuance of $40,000,000 of 7 per cent debenture bonds, carrying stock purchase warrants and $25,000,000 in 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock.

This would raise $60,000,000 to care for the obligations of the company, Mr. Untermyer said the bankers' commission would consist of 135,000 shares of common stock plus the usual 9 per cent underwriting commission and 65,000 shares of stock in connection with the $65,000,000 financing. A voting trust agreement of ten years' duration and an arbitration board are other features of the plan.

Berenson Fights Plan.

Mr. Berenson, representing stockholders with 620 shares of stock, opposed the plan, saying the cost was too great, while Mr. Lazarus suggested that perhaps Halsey Stuart Co. could present a better plan.

Mr. Bogue said that his concern had not been asked to submit a plan of refinancing, but he felt that his concern was being "pushed out of the picture." Judge Coleman said he would be allowed time to present the matter to his client, but made clear that no other plan could be considered until the present plan is acted upon.

Mexican Incident Draws Soviet Note

Search of Envoy's Trunks by Vera Cruz Police Is Protested.

Moscow, U. S. S. R., Feb. 11 (A.P.). Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet vice-commissar for foreign affairs, tonight dispatched a sharp note of protest to the Mexican government for the treatment given the Russian minister Alexander Makar by Mexican police.

Litvinoff declared that the search of the minister's trunks at Vera Cruz yesterday and the detention for three hours of the minister and his wife were "flagrant violations of the rules of international conduct."

Reproving the Mexican police, he insisted that the Russian minister was entitled to all extraterritorial rights and diplomatic immunity until the moment he left Mexican soil.

OCEAN LINER SUNK BY BLASTS; HUDSON TUBES THREATENED

the Hudson River tubes leading to New Jersey, causing the closing of the tunnels to traffic and forcing thousands of commuters to wend their way Jerseyward by devious routes.

The Muenchen was tied to pier 42, in the Hudson River at the foot of Morton street when the fire, of as yet undetermined origin, was discovered in the aft hold No. 6, in which was stored potassium carbonate and varnish.

The blaze, the most disastrous marine fire in the harbor in 30 years, claimed two lives and injured seven persons before it was brought under control. Damage to ship and cargo was estimated at from $3,000,000 to $6,000,000. None of the passengers was injured.

Firemen fought the flames with caution, owing to the danger of additional explosions in the cargo.

Spontaneous combustion in these stores was blamed by firemen as the cause of the blaze. It also was blamed for the terrific blasts which ripped up the Muenchen's deck plates, twisted her railings and funnels and littered her decks with debris.

The second of the blasts, which followed in rapid succession, blew several members of the crew of the firetug Thomas Willett into the river, resulting in the drowning of John Harvey, 48, pilot of the tug. The other firemen were saved, but four were taken to the hospital suffering from submersions. The other man to lose his life was an electrician named Franke, who was trapped in the hold and burned to death.

Windows were broken for blocks around and the explosions shook the entire waterfront. Black smoke belched from the Muenchen's hatches as members of two land fire companies ran to the safety of the pier, beating the shower of missles sent up by the third explosion by inches.

With her stern resting in the mud near the Hudson River Transit Tunnels, fire inspectors feared that an explosion within the ship might rip open the tubes.

All but a few of the ship's third-class passengers were off and most of them had passed through the customs inspection when the fire was discovered.

Members of the crew rallied at the fire call, but dense smoke drove them to the decks and a fire alarm was turned in, bringing fireboats and land apparatus to the pier.

Several members of the crew were overcome by smoke. Capt. Feodore Bruenings, commander, was the last to leave and said every one was off. Most of the crew escaped with only the clothing they wore.

The Muenchen was built in Germany in 1922 and was the first German vessel to enter the New York harbor following the World War. Officials of the North German Lloyd Lines said it would take $6,000,000 to replace her.

General Manager Heinz Schungel, of the North German Lloyd Line, issued a statement tonight in which he said the cause of the explosions remains a mystery.

He said that the sacks in hold No. 6 had been referred to as containing "nitrate and nitrate of potash," but that this was incorrect. He said the sacks contained "simple potash," properly known as potassium carbonate, which is considered a harmless cargo.

10,000 Canaries Killed as Steamship Is Burned

New York, Feb. 11 (N.Y.W.N.S.). In the haste to clear the liner Muenchen of its passengers' luggage the 175 members of the crew of the burning steamer today forgot about 10,000 Harz Mountain canaries imprisoned in long wooden series of cages in one of the holds.

Their constant chirpings were heard during the earlier part of the forenoon, when the crew started to disembark. There was no chance to remove them, or even free them.

Then came the three explosions and heavy acrid smoke fumes permeated the ship. The canaries stopped their chirpping, and "they won't start again," a fireman said.

American U. Wins In Debate Contest

The debating team representing American University won its third straight debate of the season last night when by a vote of 2 to 1 of the judges they defeated a team from Ohio Wesleyan University. Judges were Representative Don Colton, of Utah; Frank M. Parrish and Carl S. Dow.

The subject of the debate was, "Resolved, That the policy of providing a liberal arts education for high school graduates who seek it is sound." The American University trio took the negative view of the subject.

The winning team was composed of Bruce Aitchison, James Swan and Dan Murphy, while Phillips Moulton, Donald Sherbondy and Joseph Rinnert represented Ohio Wesleyan.

Capital Woman Dies In Blast at Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—A gas explosion and fire today caused death of Mrs. Ida Ward, 35, of Washington, D. C., who was visiting at the home of a relative here.

Police said Mrs. Ward apparently had lighted a gas fire in her bedroom and then left the room, that the flame probably was blown out and Mrs. Ward apparently had struck a match to relight it. The explosion shattered windows in the room. The woman's clothing was set afire

POLI'S

"King Lear," Shakespeare's immortal tragedy of filial ingratitude and regal intrigue, was presented last evening by Fritz Leiber and his repertory company as number two in the present series.

Mr. Leiber, in the role of Lear contributed another of his sterling characterizations, rising to especial heights during the latter part of the play where he must portray the king half crazed by exposure and by the piercing unkindness of two of his daughters.

Second only to the impersonation of Mr. Leiber is that of Lawrence H. Cecil, as the Earl of Kent, chief among the remaining loyal followers. He follows his difficult role with sympathy and is an admirable supporter of the king both dramaturgically and histrionically.

The daughters—Goneril, played by Vera Allen; Regan, portrayed by Virginia Bronson, and Cordelia, interpreted by Marie Carroll—are well chosen for their several vastly different parts.

The play is admirably mounted and the whole thing run off with clocklike precision.

650 CHILDREN FLEE ANNAPOLIS FLAMES

Blaze of Unknown Origin Does $25,000 Damage to High School.

FIVE FIREMEN SUFFER

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 11.—Nearly 650 pupils and a staff of 27 teachers marched quickly to safety this afternoon when fire swept the top floor of Annapolis High School Building, a three-story brick structure in Green street. Aside from the damage wrought by the flames the entire building was damaged by water, inflicting loss estimated at $25,000 by George Fox, county superintendent of education.

The origin of the blaze, as yet undetermined, has stirred school patrons and citizens generally, especially in view of the fact that less than two weeks ago destruction of the grammar school building, also a large structure only 30 feet removed, was seriously threatened by a blaze under similar circumstances. The damage at that fire was put at $12,000.

Today's blaze started in the assembly hall or auditorium near the stage, as was the case of the grammar school fire, and is believed to have been smoldering for some time. Discovery of the blaze was made by several pupils just after classes had reassembled following the luncheon recess. Howard C. Kinhart, school principal, spread the alarm quietly. Only those on the floor knew what was going on at the time, and all hands marched from the structure in short order. Two girls fainted during the excitement, but soon were revived.

Meanwhile volunteer fire fighters of Annapolis, Eastport and West Annapolis had assembled. Three firemen were overcome by smoke and two others suffered minor injuries in hauling lines of hose up the fireproof stairways.

Most of the children carried their books out with them, but some of the larger boys remained in the building and threw books and examination papers from the building. Others carried typewriters. One boy carried out an armful of flower pots.

Dowd Still Lacks Subpena in Death

Will Not Return Here for Dreyfus Case Until After Chicago Hearing.

James E. Dowd, Chicago broker, has not been served with a subpena to testify at the reopened grand jury investigation here into the death of Mrs. Aurelia Fisher Dreyfus and he does not plan to leave his home in Chicago pending the settlement of certain charges against him in the Illinois metropolis.

His attorney, Arnold Harris, was authority for this statement in Chicago last night, according to Associated Press dispatches. Mr. Harris said that while no subpena had been served as yet, he expected that his client would be served when appearing in court there Friday in connection with charges growing out of the operation of his brokerage house. He added that Mr. Dowd, however, would not go East until the case had been settled.

Mr. Dowd formerly was a business associate and close friend of Edmund J. McBrien, New York broker, who escorted Mrs. Dreyfus to the dance at the Patomac Boat Club here on October 20 which terminated in her death, when she tumbled from a balcony. Mr. McBrien was exonerated by a coroner's jury.

Police-Fire Raise Receives Support

Columbia Heights Business Men Indorse Bill to Increase Salaries.

Support of the bill to increase the salaries of police and firemen of the District was voiced last night by the Columbia Heights Business Men's Association at a meeting at the New Amsterdam Hotel. A resolution, approving the proposed increase, was passed. The action of the association will be made known to the District Commissioners and the District committees of the House and Senate.

Plans for the developments of the Columbia Heights section into a central shopping district for the city were outlined. It was suggested that one day a week be designated as "trade day," on which the stores would remain open until 10 o'clock to enable Government clerks to do their shopping on the heights.

Alvin B. Carty, chairman of the committee on streets and public safety, reported that the parking problem on Monroe street, which was the source of dissatisfaction on the part of merchants, had been remedied by police cooperation.

Woman Found by Son Overcome by Gas Fumes

Mrs. Elsie Parsons, 27 years old, of apartment 303, 4817 Thirty-sixth street northwest, was discovered by her small son, Wallace, in an unconscious condition in the kitchen of the apartment yesterday afternoon. The room was filled with deadly carbon monoxide fumes that had escaped from an open jet on the stove.

The son and Victor White, elevator operator, summoned Dr. Russell J. Jansen, 4707 Connecticut avenue, and the Fire Rescue Squad. Mrs. Parsons was soon revived and was not thought to be seriously enough affected to go to a hospital. Police reported that the jet had been left turned on accidentally.

Lieut. M. Monssen, Naval Hero, Dies

Officer Saved Battleship From Destruction by Magazine Blast.

New York, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Lieut. Mons Monssen, 62, U. S. N., retired, who, in 1904, won the Congressional Medal of Honor for heroism in the battleship Missouri disaster, died yesterday in the Brooklyn Naval Hospital. He had undergone an operation for appendicitis.

Lieut. Monssen was one of three sailors whose courage in saving the Missouri and the crew from destruction when she took fire during target practice off Pensacola, Fla., was described by President Roosevelt as one of "history's most heroic acts."

Lieut. Monssen was said to have done probably more than any other man to prevent the explosion of the magazine, which would have blown the ship to pieces. Badly burned, he fought his way into the magazine. He whipped off his cap and beat at the flames closing in on several hundred charges of powder, keeping them away from the explosives until aid came.

22,000 VOTES TO END GARMENT CONFLICT

Strike That Cost One Life Is Settled by Approval of Union Agreement.

JOBBERS STILL CLASH

New York, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Striking garment workers, meeting in fifteen halls throughout the city, today ratified tentative agreements which their union officials had made with various employer groups.

Their action virtually brought to an end a strike that for a week has tied up the needle industry and has resulted in one killing and several clashes. About 22,000 workers are affected by the agreements.

Formal end of the strike will come when new contracts have been signed, probably tomorrow, by the union and the manufacturers in the presence of Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, who has been acting as mediator.

Strike leaders said the only possible impediment to an immediate termination of the strike was the fact that jobbers and contractors have not yet reached an agreement on the one point at which they have been at loggerheads throughout the strike. This concerns the contractors' demand that the jobbers confine their production to shops that are members of the contractors' association. While the tentative agreements were ratified today, the various shop chairmen of the union voted to contribute a half day's pay to continue the strike in non-union shops, which employ about 7,000 persons.

The one slaying, occurring yesterday, caused Benjamin Schlesinger, president of the union, to issue a statement tonight saying that blame for the death of Jacob Rothenberg, a manufacturer, was being placed on the union in an effort of operators of sweatshops to discredit it.

Capital Association Hears Talk on Subject by Southerner.

The District of Columbia Retail Druggists Association held its monthly meeting and social in the Oak Room of the Raleigh Hotel last night, more than 100 of the membership and their invited guests being in attendance.

Following a showing of a film by the Master Photo Finishers, entitled the "Three Call Line," the membership indulged in an open discussion of the subject, "What is the Individual Druggist Going to Do to Meet the Chain Store?"

During the discussion an address by Philip Lieber, president of the Shreveport Mutual Building Association, on "The Chain Store Menace," which was recently read into the Congressional Record by Representative Sandlin, of Louisiana, was discussed. In addition to the entire official personnel of the association being present, E. C. Brokmeyer, general attorney for the National Retail Druggists Association, was present and addressed the meeting.

Air Foes Who Fought Each Other Now Meet

New York, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Wartime enemies who believe they fought each other personally in the air met for the first time today and became friends. Commander Rex F. Gilmartin, of the Aviators Post of the American Legion, brought them together at the aviation show.

The former enemies were Lieut. Marcel La Mans, ace of the Lafayette Escadrille, who lost his sight in the war, and Capt. Franzcarl Schleiff, who lost his left arm in combat.

After Commander Gilmartin introduced them, Capt. Schleiff acted as guide to Lieut. La Mans. The two men, after discussing battles, said they believed they had engaged in an indecisive air conflict.

VATICAN AND ITALY MARK YEAR'S ACCORD

King's Envoy Presents Gift to Pope on Anniversary of Concordat.

BLACK SHIRTS PARADE

Vatican City, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Italy today celebrated the first anniversary of the signature of the Lateran accords, which settled the long-standing controversies between church and state. The Italian Ambassador to the Holy See, Count de Vecchi, presented the government's felicitations to Pope Pius, giving him an official present of a rochetto of fine old Venetian lace. It was one of the richest ecclesiastical vestments ever made in Italy.

Rome hung out its flags in honor of the occasion, and the papal flag was run up for the first time on the Castel Gandolfo, which Pope Pius will use as a summer residence. A parade of Mussolini's black shirt musketeers of his personal guard of honor roused rumors that the Duce himself would visit the Pope.

After a day spent in receiving congratulations on the anniversary of the treaty signature, which put an end to his voluntary imprisonment in the Vatican and confirmed him as a free and independent ruler, Pope Pius this evening retired to his private chapel to pray in preparation for tomorrow's ceremony commemorating the eighth anniversary of his actual acession to the throne of St. Peter. The ceremony will be held in the Sistine Chapel.

He was elected Pope on February 6, 1922, on the fourteenth ballot of the secret conclave of the cardinals.

The Pope himself will not chant the anniversary mass, that privilege being accorded to Cardinal Locatelli, the first prelate whom Pius XI "raised to the purple" after his accession. At the conclusion of the mass, however, he will rise from his throne and impart the apostolic benediction.

CHAUFFEURS AND DEAFNESS.

CHAUFFEURS are becoming deaf. This is one of the conclusions of a commission on noise as a hazard to health and noise control as a public health measure. This commission was appointed three months ago by Dr. Shirley Wynne, health commissioner of New York City. They expect to be on the job for some time, to spend a large sum in research and to report on many phases of the noise question, including methods of control.

They have issued a preliminary report in which the following points occur:

Noise interferes seriously with the efficiency of the worker.

In the attempt to overcome the effect of noise great strain is put upon the nervous system, leading to neurasthenic and psychasthenic states. Because of the incessant noise of the city, quiet needed for recuperation has to be sought in the country.

Noise interferes seriously with sleep even if we become tolerant.

The normal development of infants and young children is seriously interfered with by constant loud noises.

The commission began by asking for complaints of noises. Many thousands were received. These were classified. Nearly four out of each ten related to traffic noises such as noise from automobiles, trucks, buses, horns, cutouts and brakes. More than one of each ten related to noise of loud speakers, some in stores and others in homes. A larger group complained of street car and elevated train noises. Collections and deliveries of such commodities as ashes, garbage, ice and milk cause one-tenth of the complaints. Noisy parties and dogs were the subject of eight complaints out of each one hundred; building operations for seven.

Among the methods of noise prevention under consideration is the substitution of welding for riveting. If rivets are heated somewhat higher than they now are they could be fastened in place without the rattle of the pneumatic hammer.

The commission will make use of scientific instruments to measure, register and classify noises. They will also study physiologic effects by means of delicate apparatus.

ONE OF CHEMICAL ELEMENTS.

Anxious writes:

1. What is calcium?
2. Has it food value?
3. In what foods is it most abundant?

REPLY.

1. It is one of the chemical elements. We think of calcium as lime.

2. Yes, particularly in pregnant women and growing children. It is used to build bone and teeth. It has some relation to poise and calm.

3. The foods richest in lime, or calcium, are milk, cheese, cream, butter, salads and greens, and some other vegetables, particularly peas and beans, molasses, nuts and bran breads.

Rival League Has Rival of Shires

Jim Faulkner Talked Way Into Berth on Brooklyn Staff.

Insists He Is Greatest Southpaw Since Rube Waddell.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

IF reports emanating from Brooklyn may be taken at face value, Art ("Whataman") Shires, of the White Sox, will have a National League rival in the person of one Jim Faulkner, a left-handed pitcher. Faulkner has never made a name for himself in the pugilistic game, but for holding a modest opinion of his prowess and the art of expressing the same either in public or in private, Faulkner is just a step or so behind the great Shires.

As a matter of fact, it was his insistence that no left-hander since the days of Rube Waddell could compare with him, which led to the nickname of "Elmer the Great" for Faulkner when he was serving with the New York Giants a couple of years ago. "Elmer the Great," it may be remembered, was the moniker tacked on to a windy, blustery pitcher depicted in a baseball play which was the rage at that time.

Out-Talked Clymer At Buffalo.

It is said that Faulkner talked himself away from the Giants, went to Buffalo, where he even-outtalked his manager, "Derby Bill" Clymer—no easy task, either—and then talked Wilbert Robinson into buying him from the Bisons at the December major league meetings.

Robinson, needing southpaw flingers, took a chance on Faulkner despite the fact that International League hitters grooved his slants for 300 hits in 37 games and that he granted more earned runs than any other pitcher. However, "Elmer the Great" managed to win 16 games as against 12 losses, and Robinson is hopeful that at last he will find himself. "It's really a pity," the Brooklyn manager remarked in Faulkner's case, "that they don't win games verbally. If this was the case, Big Jim would lead the league."

According to Connie Mack, he has a real diamond in the rough in Eric McNair. The latter should be something like that, for Mack paid the Knoxville Club $25,000 for the rookie shortstop, who has not yet reached voting age.

Rookies Bearing Impressed Mack.

"The first glimpse I had of McNair," the mahout of the White Elephants recently declared, "I felt that he was going to make good. There was an indescribable something about his swing and gait on the ball field that impressed me. I knew that he was one of those players always on his toes and hustling. At the plate, he was always the personification of confidence. His batting manners were good and he quickly proved that he could hit major league pitching. It is too soon to give a final verdict on him, but if he does not become an outstanding American League player, I will be much surprised."

McNair joined the Mackmen late last season after the Sally League ended, but too late to be eligible for the world's series. With Knoxville, the young shortstop led the circuit with a .391 average in 91 games and hid among his 134 hits were four homers, five triples and 25 doubles. He may not displace Joe Boley this season, but he should be ready to put up a real fight for the shortfield berth by the time 1931 rolls around.

Malevich Offers to Fight Pair to Aid C. U. Ring Team

Captain Volunteers to Battle Twice in W. & L. Match.

By JACK ESPEY.

JACK MALEVICH wants to take care of the boxing situation at Catholic University this week. The Cardinal ring team has no light heavyweight for its match with Washington and Lee Saturday night at Brookland.

Malevich, captain and heavyweight, yesterday offered to fight both in his class and the light heavyweight division, and Coach Ted Mitchell accepted the offer conditionally. Mitchell said only the failure of intensive efforts to muster a new 175-pounder would allow Malevich to attempt double duty.

The rugged Cardinal athlete is not one who would avoid a chance to do double duty. He likes athletics, particularly boxing, that much.

Possibly he was prompted in his offer by a desire to make up for time lost during the last football season. He was forced to the sidelines by a leg injury after the opening game, much to his disgust.

Has Won All But 3 Of 14 Bouts.

Malevich, leading figure in Catholic University sports for the last three years, is exceptionally proficient in boxing, football and track. But he favors the ring sport.

In fourteen bouts since 1927 he has won all but three times. Two of his victories have been scored this season. He has an extraordinary knowledge of boxing, considering that he is a collegiate exponent, and he has demonstrated his ability to beat much heavier foes. His weight is 178.

If he fights in the two classes Saturday night, he will meet in the light heavyweight bout an opponent named Heaps whom he defeated last winter in the Generals' ring. In the heavyweight bout his foe is as yet undetermined. Heaps represented Washington and Lee in the heavyweight class last year but now is fighting at 175 pounds.

JACK MALEVICH.

Murphy, Grid Star, Joins Team.

Gene Murphy, who starred with Malevich in the Catholic U. backfield the last three years, has joined the boxing team to fill the middleweight vacancy caused by the loss of Tom McCabe. Murphy gained some experience in boxing in 1927, when he fought in one bout against Navy. He lost the decision.

Coach Mitchell is considering another change in his line-up. He may shift Harry DiGiacomo from the featherweight to the lightweight class and place Chick Scuderi, a novice, in DiGiacomo's old position. DiGiacomo would meet Capt. Black of the Generals if the change is effected. He defeated Black last year as a featherweight.

Old Line Five Beats V.P.I. By 34-23

Maryland Sets Pace Throughout; In Van at Half, 17-12.

Ronkin, Radice and Chalmers Lead in Heavy Scoring.

Special to The Washington Post.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Feb. 11.—University of Maryland basketers set the pace all the way here tonight to score a well-deserved victory over Virginia Poly, 34 to 23. The Poly Team played fast ball throughout most of the first half and pressed the Old Liners until intermission, but wilted in the final period before the attack of Chalmers, Ronkin and Berger. Maryland flashed a great passing game and improved as the game progressed.

Evans and Berger put the visitors in front with scoring shots in the early minutes and Evans and Rooney boosted them to a five-point lead after furious milling at the midway mark. Baker and Looney cut loose with goals at short range to draw within two points and Looney made good from the foul line to slice the Old Line margin to a single point. Radice and Ronkin outsmarted the Poly defense, however, to run up a 17-to-12 advantage at the half.

Chalmers and Ronkin Boost Margin.

Chalmers and Ronkin stampeded in the final half to tally ten points before Moore counted from the foul line for V. P. I. Zirkle and Yaggi, substitutes, put up a desperate rally but never seriously threatened Maryland's big lead.

Business Five Victor; Elect Lucas Captain

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 11.—Business High School of Washington, D. C., closed its basket ball season here tonight with a win over the St. John's Junior Varsity Five, outscoring the young collegiates, 27 to 16.

After the game, the Business players unanimously elected Bobby Lucas, sterling little forward, captain of the team for next season while it was announced that the following would probably be awarded their letters: Capt. Hack Wilson Acquitted of Assault $20,000 Suit of Fan Also Rejected by Superior Court.

Player Testifies He Was Struck First in Sally Into Stands.

By PAUL R. MICKELSON.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Hack Wilson, the Dempsey of the Cub dugouts, won a $20,000 fight today without losing a punch.

A jury in superior court decided the pugnacious Cub center fielder was not guilty of assaulting Edward Young, a Chicago milkman and an anti-Wilson fan during the St. Louis-Chicago game at Wrigley Field on June 21, 1928, and automatically rejected Young's suit for $20,000 personal damages.

The verdict, gained after but 25 minutes deliberation, not only saved Wilson virtually all the money he expects to make playing baseball this year, but was regarded as a vindication of those fiery baseball players who now and then rush into the stands to silence fans who jeer and taunt their efforts.

Young charged that the burly Cub outfielder became so enraged at a few harmless taunts during the game that he vaulted into the stands and beat him severely, incapacitating him for several weeks. He said Wilson knocked him down and then threw him over a chair, wrenching his back. He admitted under cross-examination that he struck back at Wilson, but insisted it was only in self-defense.

Wilson Nervous On Stand.

Wilson appeared as nervous as the day he faced some of Howard Ehmke's slow curves in the 1929 world series when he took the stand, but withal he was a good witness. He said Young's taunts became unbearable and that he warned him to stop.

"Instead of stopping, he called me a lot of vile names—names no self-respecting person could stand," Wilson said. "So I went up to make him stop. On my way I slipped on the concrete and Young jumped on me and started to hit me even though I was down. Then some players and a policeman separated us and they separated us without me getting a chance even to hit him."

Catcher Leo Hartnett, of the Cubs, and six others testified in Wilson's behalf, telling the same version of the incident—that Wilson did not strike a blow and that Young was not bleeding nor injured.

G. W.- South Dakota Football Game Off

Negotiations between George Washington and South Dakota University have been dropped as far as a proposed local meeting of the two in football next fall is concerned. However, arrangement of a game in 1931 is likely. South Dakota found it impossible to come here on October 11 of this year, the only date George Washington could offer.

Spring football practice will begin at George Washington next month. The usual spring activities in track and baseball will probably be discontinued. Lack of student interest and insufficient funds are forcing this move. Lacrosse will be introduced in 1931 if G. W. authorities can secure the services of one man they have in mind to teach an academic subject and coach lacrosse as a side line.

Carnera Knocks Out Martin in Second Round

Arena, St. Louis, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Primo Carnera ended his fourth fistic encounter in America in one round and 50 seconds tonight when he knocked out Buster Martin, Tulsa, Okla., policeman, in the second round of their scheduled ten-round fight.

Martin, who scaled 209 pounds to 276 for Carnera, crossed a right to the big boy's jaw in the first which the Italian passed unnoticed. Carnera came out of his corner slowly and led with a left to the jaw, only to have Martin grab him with both hands and hang on. The Gondola pusher wrestled his way out and followed the policeman around the ring, shooting a left jab that rocked Buster's head.

Carnera was short with three rights to the jaw just before the round closed. The mauler made short work of the cop in the second round, landing a right to the head that sent Martin down for the count.

LEAD SCORERS

JIMMY THOMPSON.

WILBUR CROSS.

Thompson Tied For High Scoring Honor by Cross

OFFICIAL figures compiled last night show Wilbur Cross and Jimmy Thompson, captains of Central and Western, respectively, tied for the individual scoring honors with 71 points in the interhigh basket ball series brought to a close yesterday. Although outscored from the floor by two field goals, Cross tied his rival by counting four more times from the foul line on the same number of attempts that Thompson had.

However, to Everett Russell, the former leader, belongs the honor of having scored the most field goals, his 28 giving him one more than Thompson was able to make in his draw for the leadership.

The feature of yesterday's game was the rise of Bob Freeman, stellar center for Western, to fourth place among the scorers, his 12 points enabling him to pass Joe Robey, of Eastern, and leaving him but 7 points behind the leaders.

Herzl Pinmen Seeking Revenge Over Rialtos

The Herzl Club bowlers will attempt to gain revenge for a beating suffered earlier in the season when they meet the Rialto Club Team tonight at the Northeast Temple alleys at 8 o'clock. The Herzls, led by Joe Kronman, have been showing improved form in recent engagements and would relish a victory in tonight's match. Kronman formerly was a star member of the Rialto Team.

Last Rites, on Radio, Heard by Teammates

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—A radio funeral service was arranged by El Paso health authorities today for George Casten, 19-year-old victim of spinal meningitis, to permit basket ball teammates and chums of the youth to pay tribute to his memory.

Members of the basket ball team with which Casten played will listen in on the funeral service at their homes where they are under quarantine. Casten died yesterday. The Albuquerque (N. Mex.) High School Team, which played here Friday night, also has been quarantined. Casten played in this game.

As a precaution against spread of the disease, only the father, mother and a sister of Casten will be permitted to attend the chapel service and be near the body. They already have been exposed to the disease. The casket will not be opened and there will be no pallbearers.

TRIPLE TIE CREATED FOR 2D PLACE WHEN CROSS SCORES GOAL

Central Captain Wins Thriller in Final Minute of Play.

Teams Deadlocked at 19-All as Last Quarter Starts.

By WILLIAM F. DISMER, JR.

WILBUR CROSS, Central High court captain, was an opportunist yesterday at the Tech gymnasium when he flipped the ball through the cords in the last half-minute of play to give his team a 29 to 28 victory over Western, automatically creating a three-cornered tie for second place among Central, Eastern, and Western in the final standings of the Interhigh Basketball League.

Entering the game on even scoring terms with his rival captain of the day, Jimmy Thompson, both of whom were only 7 points behind the leader Everett Russell of Tech, Cross saw his rival apparently clinch the honors with four field goals and a foul toss while he was making but four points. But with his team trailing 26-to-22 and he, himself, seven points behind the pace-setting Western star, Cross suddenly became "hot" in the dying moments of the game, and after making good on a foul shot, rang up two baskets in quick succession to tie the score at 26-all. Cross was still two points behind Thompson however, but the finishing touch of the game was saved for the very last minute.

Western Leading When Cross Breaks Up Game.

After George Brandt had made good on a foul toss to put Central one point to the good, Bob Freeman took a neat pass under the basket for a snowbird, sending Western ahead once more, 28-to-27. It was then that Cross staged his dramatic ending.

The Blue and White ace obtained the ball almost in the middle of the floor, and with a lightning-like dribble, got to the basket to deposit the ball through the cords to send his team to the front and himself even with Thompson. The last markers left Cross and Thompson both boasting a total of 7 points.

Joe Robey Is Lost To Eastern Quintet

Joe Robey, crack guard of Eastern High School, has been banned from the Eastern court squad for the remainder of the season it was announced yesterday after it was revealed that Robey played with an independent team last Sunday.

Robey participated in a game with the Potomac Boat Club Team with which combination he will play in the A. A. U. Tournament in March. His presence in the Boat Club lineup automatically barred him from further participation with the Eastern team, despite the fact that the school series was over. Eastern will miss him in future games on its schedule which includes contests with the Maryland Freshmen, St. John's, and Hyattsville High School.

Coach Artie Boyd of the Tech team yesterday said that he hoped to bring about a reinstatement of Carl McCartee, Tech captain, who similarly was declared ineligible for competing in an outside game. Boyd said that he would seek to have the ban lifted at a special meeting of the school principals, explaining that it was his own ignorance of the rule that led him to give MacCartee permission to play. Boyd hopes to enter the team in the Penn tournament if permission of school authorities here is obtained.

Two Minnesota Alumni Quit Board in Football Wrangle

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Discontent over the football coaching situation at the University of Minnesota came to a head today with the resignation of two members of the senate committee on intercollegiate athletics.

R. B. (Bunny) Rathbun and Arnold Oss, alumni representatives on the committee, submitted their resignations today in letters to E. B. Pierce, chairman of the committee. Both resignations are effective immediately.

Expressing dissatisfaction with the manner in which the committee handled the selection of H. O. Crisler as head football coach and E. E. (Tad) Wieman as his assistant, Rathbun's letter declared alumni representation on the committee "appears to have become so futile that I can not justify my continuance thereon."

Mr. Oss' letter said ". concur absolutely in the sentiments expressed in Mr. Rathbun's letter."

Mr. Rathbun's letter said neither he nor Mr. Oss was invited to attend the meeting of the committee January 16 at which a subcommittee was appointed to negotiate for a successor to Dr. Clarence W. Spears as head football coach. This committee named Crisler as its choice and Wieman as his assistant. Both appointments were approved yesterday by the board of regents.

In his letter, Mr. Rathbun said the committee had broken faith and that the "effect has been to deny alumni of the university the representation to which they are entitled."

"As one of two alumni representatives on the senate committee I characterize your conduct of the matter as being a grievous affront and a severe slight to every man and woman who holds a diploma of the University of Minnesota. This strange attitude of the present administration of the university toward alumni has been exhibited before this incident.

"It is unthinkable that I should continue to serve on your committee under these conditions."

Mr. Oss, in his resignation, said he had been notified of the January 16 meeting of the committee, but had been informed that only routine matters would be discussed.

Eastern Five Again Trounces G. U. Preps

Eastern High counted its second victim in as many days among schools not entered in the interhigh series when it defeated Georgetown Prep, 28 to 19, in a return game on the Garrett Park floor. In a previous meeting, the Lincoln Parkers had been returned the victor on their own gym.

Mandell and McLarnin In Third Bout Feb. 24

Chicago, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Sammy Mandell, world lightweight champion and Jimmy McLarnin, Vancouver, B. C., welterweight title contender, will meet in the rubber bout of their feud in the Chicago Stadium February 24.

The match officially has been announced by Matchmaker Nate Lewis, of the stadium. They will meet at 145 pounds, the same weight as in their last meeting in the stadium, which resulted in a ten-round decision victory for the baby-faced Irishman from the Coast. In their first meeting, when McLarnin attempted to lift Mandell's lightweight crown, the latter easily gained the decision in Madison Square Garden, New York.

Meyer Davis Bowlers Lose Thrice in Upset

The fickle game of duckpins claimed another victim last night. The Meyer Davis Team of the National Capital League, which had won 22 of its last 24 games and had just recently taken a three-game lead in the championship race, sank into mediocrity at Lucky Strike and thrice bowed to the C. W. Smith Five, which is battling to keep out of the second division.

The same team, which had averaged 1,753 per set and 584-11 per game for the last 30 games, was unable to muster a 530 game and finished with a scant 1,565 set. It was a disheartening blow to Capt. Freddie Moore's charges. Joe McGolrick, alone of the victims, revealed his usual form, shooting a 356 set. He had to pile up a 150 game in his last effort to hold his average.

Name Cheapened by Reduction In Course, De Forest Suit Claims

NEW YORK, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Reduced from $27.50 to $2.98 may be a bargain for some articles but Jimmy de Forest believes it too cheap for his reputation as a trainer of fighters.

In an effort to establish a price on his reputation De Forest is seeking $50,000 damages and an injunction to prevent Clarence W. Nutt, of New York, from using his name in connection with a boxing correspondence school.

In 1924 DeForest and Nutt entered into a contract by which the well known trainer was to receive $2,000 a year and a percentage of profits for the use of his name. Now DeForest is striving to void the contract because the boxing course was reduced to a price which, the trainer said, caused him to become the butt of ridicule.

G. W. Has Chance of Stopping Fast-Traveling Blues.

Colonial Frosh Play Gallaudet Reserves in Opener.

ONE of the most attractive intra-city college basket ball games of the season is scheduled tonight when Gallaudet and George Washington collide on the latter's floor, 2010 H street northwest. Play starts at 8:30 o'clock, following a preliminary between the Gallaudet Reserves and the G. W. Freshmen.

Gallaudet, in this game, should meet its first test from a local rival, as George Washington generally is considered strong enough to make the high-scoring Blues travel at their fastest pace. The Blues have a record of ten victories and three defeats, while the Colonials' sheet shows six wins and three defeats.

George Washington's chances of winning seem largely to depend on its ability to hold in check Del Cosgrove and Johnny Ringle, who rank one-two in individual scoring among Capital collegians. Cosgrove has amassed a total of 194 points in thirteen games, while Ringle has rung up 130 in the same number of contests.

Gray and Hoover Have Hard Assignments.

Cosgrove will be opposed by Capt. Bob Gray, Colonial guard, and Ringle will be faced by Bill Hoover in the center circle. The Colonial pair doubtless will experience the hardest night of their campaign.

Two other local college quintets will see action tonight, Catholic playing Loyola, of Baltimore, on the latter's court, and Maryland engaging V. M. I. at Lexington, Va. Catholic will be out to break its losing streak which has extended through ten games, and Maryland will be striving to improve its standing in the Southern Conference race. In an earlier clash here, Catholic bowed to Loyola, 46 to 20. Maryland hasn't played V. M. I. this season but should win, judging from the records.

Four Unlimited Fives Meet on Choice Card

Four outstanding unlimited basket ball teams will participate in the attractive card arranged for the Silver Spring Armory tonight. The Skinker Eagle and United Typewriter Gray quintets will clash in an Independent League fray at 8:30 o'clock. The Woltz Photographer and Mount Vernon M. teams will meet in the preliminary.

ANOTHER FOR EAGLES.

Calvary Eagles trounced the Blue Streaks, 43 to 15, last night in the Eagles' gymnasium. The Eagles are seeking games with 130-pound teams entered in the A. A. U. tournament. Call Manager Jones, Adams 4726.

JOHNSON CUE VICTOR.

E. C. Johnson last night defeated John Ruppert, 125 to 82, in a match in the pocket-billiard tournament being played at Elmer's Academy. Tonight, Ray Leonard meets V. A. Sawyer.

ELIZABETH BOLLA displayed good speed in pacemaking and held on well in the final drive. CHARM tired. PATSY JANE had no mishaps. GAMBOL, off in a tangle, moved up fast on the inside in the first quarter, was knocked back sharply, then attempted the same procedure twice rounding the end turn until Smith finally brought her to the outside entering the stretch, but she had nothing left.

WELLET, displaying the most speed in setting the early pace, responded well under energetic riding in the final drive to outfinish STARS AND BARS. The latter, rated close up during the early stages, challenged stoutly in the final drive, but could not get up. DONNAY reared evenly all the way and failed to close any ground in the final drive. MOLE HILL was outrun.

DABSTER, reserved off the early pace, moved up steadily when called upon and, taking the lead in the stretch, drew away handily. MARY ELOISE, taken back repeatedly, finished well. UPSEDAISY, rated in close attendance of the early pace, took brief lead in the stretch, then tired. APPLAUD tired badly in the final drive.

YARGEE, racing in improved form, took the lead quickly and, dominating the running throughout, was going smoothly at the end under mild urging. MAIDEN'S CHOICE challenged stoutly in the stretch, but faltered in final drive. TALL GRASS, far out of it early, closed an immense gap. JUNIOR C. hung under punishment in the final drive. BUNTHORNE quit after racing forwardly for six furlongs.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:02. Off at 5:04. 3 FIVES TIED IN SCHOOL SERIES more than Everett Russell had acquired throughout the series.

Central Beats Western, 29 to 28, to Share Second.

Although witnessed by a mere handful of spectators who filled only a few rows in the stands back of each basket in addition to the seats parallel to the playing floor, the game itself was a fitting ending to one of the most hectic series of all times, producing nip-and-tuck basket ball throughout by two teams each eager to attain second place.

Teams Tied at End of Half And Third Quarter.

With the exception of the end of the first period, at which time Western was ahead, 6-4, the two intermissions at half time and at the end of the third quarter found the rivals deadlocked. Lampson's fouf shot enabled the Mount Pleasanters to walk off the floor with a 13-13 tie at the midway mark, while Paul Chatlen's charity toss at the end of the following quarter made the score read 19-19.

It was then that Western went on a short spurt which threatened to give it the game once for all. Rabbitt and Chatlen came through with short shots and after Brandt had dribbled in for a 2-pointer, Freeman and Thompson collaborated for three more points to give the Red and White a 5-point lead. Here, however, Cross began to get in his deadly work which led to the ultimate result.

Silver Spring Lists Attractive Twin Bill

A full program of basket ball is to be offered tonight in the Silver Spring High School Gym. The Potomac Boat Club and Stewart Bros. fives, both outstanding potential championship combinations, to meet in the headline attraction at 8 o'clock.

The Stewart-Potomac Boat Club fray will be partially overshadowed by the preliminary attraction, however, as the Takoma Firemen and Rockville A. A. teams are to meet in a Montgomery County League battle on neutral boards. Rockville has lost but one game in the league and that to the Firemen, who are undefeated. Takoma can take a two-game lead by winning tonight, while a loss will place the rival fives on even terms in the championship struggle.

Woltz Five Defeats Naval Hospital, 30-15

The Woltz Photographer Five last night defeated the Naval Hospital Team, 30 to 15, in the close contest for both teams in the Community Center Unlimited League. The contest marked the eighth win in nine starts for the Woltzmen.

The Thrill That Comes Once in a Lifetime—By H. W. Webster

Abolition of All State Titles Plan of Virginia School Body

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA., Feb. 11.—What were described as "sweeping changes" in Virginia high school athletic events were considered by the State legislative council of the Virginia High School Literary and Athletic League at a meeting held at the University of Virginia.

Charles H. Kauffman, former track star at the University of Pennsylvania, and executive secretary of the organization which has in its membership about 65 per cent of the high schools in the State, today said it was the object of the league eventually to eliminate all State athletic championships, feeling that the enormous amount of money and time was usurped by such contests.

According to the secretary, the league wishes to place athletic competition on a more intramural basis, having contests restricted to county or sectional meets. A case was related where last year "a comparatively poor high school" spent $3,500 for athletic events, the amount including equipment, transportation and the like.

Although the recommendations will not become effective immediately, it was indicated that the object of pushing athletics from what is considered an unwarranted position of prominence, will be attempted within the near future.

COMPANY F SENDS TEAM OF GIANTS INTO TOURNEY

Big Courtmen Represent Guards

Will Make 4th Bid for A.A.U. Honors in Post's Event.

Entries Close Feb. 28 for 130, 115 and 100 Pound Classes.

THE name Giants or Huskies might appropriately be applied to the squad of courtmen which will sport the colors of Company F, Maryland National Guard, of Hyattsville, in the unlimited championships of the District A. A. U. championship tournament to be held under the auspices of The Washington Post next month.

Collectively and individually, the Guardsmen pack as much weight as any court combination disporting on courts of the District and environs. All of the regulars tower 6 feet or more and tote from 180 to 200 and more pounds. Close to 1,000 pounds of humanity trots onto the floor when the Guards strip for battle.

Hyattsville's Militiamen share with the Calvary Methodist Episcopal Five the distinction of having competed in three previous District unlimited championship tourneys. They have failed to reach the finals in previous title quests, but have always withstood the ravages of the early rounds.

Team Bolstered by Crosthwaite.

Although handicapped by the ineligibility of several players, the Guards have been in the thick of the Prince Georges County Basket Ball League championship fight all season and are destined to finish in the runner-up berth.

With the addition of Sam Crosthwaite, who was ineligible for play in the league, the Militiamen have piled up a heap of victories in independent circles. Rufus Vincent has accounted for a big share of points scored this season. Parrish, Shanklin, Williams, Troy, Bassford, Dix, Lauer and Costinett have figured prominently for the Guards this season and promise to play prominent roles in the big tournament, in which 30 unlimited teams will be striving for the coveted District championship.

Entries for the 130, 115 and 100 pound boys' classes and the unlimited and junior women's classes will close midnight of February 28. Teams entering these classes are limited to ten players. All individual registration applications for these classes must also be filed before midnight of February 28.

Players Weigh In Next Month.

The weight limitations in the three boys' classes require that no one player can exceed the weight limit for the particular class in which the player is entered. All players will be weighed in during the first week in March.

The women's unlimited class has no restrictions as to weight or age. Entrants in the women's junior division must not be more than 18 years of age.

Individual registration application blanks and team registration blanks may be obtained at the sports department of The Post.

D. C. COLLEGE TRACKMEN AT PHILLY

Maryland, G.U. Enter Squad Tonight in Meadowbrook.

THE trackmen of Georgetown and Maryland Universities are being put to exacting tests. They are scheduled to compete tonight in the Meadowbrook games in Philadelphia and again Saturday night, the Hilltoppers at New York and Boston and the Terrapins at Charlottesville, Va. Next Monday night the Hilltoppers will compete once more in the New York A. C. meet.

Georgetown's two-mile relay team of Julicher, Downing, Mara and Kelly, who raced only Monday night in Newark, placing second to Notre Dame's quartet, are among the Blue and Gray entrants in tonight's games. The mile team of Ricca, Carlin, Briggs and Burke; Leo Sexton and Bernard Bonniwell, high jumpers, and Erik Kjellstrom, hurdler, also will enter the Philadelphia competition.

Maryland's representation in the Meadowbrook meet will be made by Capt. Bob Quinn and Holmes Fountain, sprinters, and a mile relay team of White, Havell, Linzey and Kinnamon. Quinn will toe the mark with Jack Elder, of Notre Dame, in the 45-yard invitation special.

Relays in New York Meet Saturday.

On Saturday night the same mile fours will return to action. Georgetown will fight it out with Colgate for the Sammy Reid Memorial Trophy in the Crescent A. C. meet, while Maryland will engage opponents not yet named in the University of Virginia carnival. Two nights later, the Georgetown Team will engage tough opposition in the New York A. C. games.

Sexton, of Georgetown, will show his high jumping form at Boston Saturday night in a featured event of the Boston A. A. meet.

Besides its mile quartet, Maryland will have men in nine individual races at Charlottesville. They are Quinn and Fountain in the sprints; Kinnamon and Kiernan, 440-yard run; Linzey and Remsburg, half-mile; Shure and Remsberg, mile; Kinnamon and Kiernan, hurdles, and J. McDonald, shot put.

23 CONTESTS FOR C. U. NINE

Cardinals Open With Dartmouth Here on March 31.

AT least 23 games, and perhaps 25, will be played by the Catholic University Baseball Team, it was learned yesterday coincidental to the announcement by Director of Athletics Jack McAuliffe that the Cardinal batterymen will start work next Monday in the Brookland Gymnasium.

The schedule, one of the most ambitious attempted by a Catholic U. nine in years, calls for twelve games home and is featured by a two-game series with Maryland University, which the Brookland institution has not met in baseball in five years.

Although all of the dates were unavailable, it was learned that the Cardinal season will be opened on March 31, with Dartmouth as the inaugural opponent, in the C. U. Stadium. The games with Maryland will be played on May 3 and 17, the first at College Park and the second on the Cardinals' diamond.

Seton Hall Newcomer On List.

Besides Maryland and Dartmouth, other prominent teams scheduled are Harvard, Villanova, Lafayette, Boston College, Bucknell, U. S. Marines, St. John's, of Brooklyn, Seton Hall, Washington and Lee and V. M. I. Seton Hall is a newcomer to the C. U. baseball program.

Other contests will be played with Gallaudet, Mount St. Mary's, Delaware and Manhattan. Each of these teams will be met in home-and-home series, as will Villanova and Marines.

Chick Gagnon, former Holy Cross luminary and a member of the Washington Club for a short time, will coach the Catholic diamonders. He was signed last summer to direct the baseball squad and to assist McAuliffe in football. Following the football season, he returned to Worcester, Mass., his home town, to coach a local high school basket ball team.

UTILITY STOCKS RISE IN QUIET TURNOVER

Carriers Decline as Preholiday Liquidation Depresses List.

GOODYEAR TIRE RALLIES

New York, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—The bull faction regained control of the price movement in the stock market today through aggressive operations for the advance in the utility shares and a selected assortment of industrials and specialties.

The upturn was not uniform, however, as preholiday liquidation depressed the list in spots, particularly in the rails. Trading was of moderate proportions, sales totalling 3,321,710 shares, and was dominated by professionals. Bears who had gone short of the market in anticipation of a preholiday decline were taken by surprise, and hasty covering was undoubtedly a sizable factor in the advance.

Business news not particularly susceptible to bullish interpretation. The best reports came from the steel industry, but even here conditions were somewhat spotty. Iron Age pointed out that Steel demand, after its sharp rebound in late January, had not only held its gains, but in the aggregate, had gained further. Production is now around 79 per cent of national capacity, against 77 last week. The most recent advances, however, were primarily at Chicago. Production is practically unchanged at Pittsburgh, and has declined a little in the Youngstown area.

Oil Reports Unfavorable.

Reports regarding the oil industry were unfavorable. Early estimates indicate that production of crude took a substantial jump last week, canceling some of the progress toward control of output. Plans to curtail production in Texas have met strong opposition. Standard of New York cut gasoline prices in New York and New England.

Credit conditions were easier. An influx of funds for employment over the holiday reduced the call loan rate to 4 per cent once more, and some funds were available as low as 3½. Report that the Treasury considers conditions favorable for an early offer of $50,000,00 in bills was reassuring.

Some of the shares with which the name of Cyrus Eaton has recently been connected were notably strong. Goodyear Tire shot up more than 9 points and closed near the top. Gulf States Steel gained about 3 points.

Other strong features were American Can and Westinghouse Electric, selling up about 5 and 7 points respectively. It is rumored that plans to split up these shares some time this year are under consideration. Western Union also rose about 5 points in response to talk of a splitup, although President Carlton announced after the close of the market that no such proposal was considered at the meeting of directors today, and that he did not anticipate any such action for some time. United States Steel was well supported, closing 2 points higher.

...ston Water Works Rises.

...ter Works was a strong ... utilities, gaining about 6 ... Consolidated Gas, Engineers Public Service, N. Y., and Standard Gas mounted 2 to 3 points.

The selling of the rails appeared to be largely profit taking on their recent advance, inspired by expectations that the January earnings reports, soon to appear, will be unimpressive. Union Pacific dropped about 9 points, then regained some of its loss. Delaware & Hudson, Chesapeake & Ohio and Canadian Pacific lost 3 to 4 points.

Commodities generally continued to rally. Wheat futures mounted more than a cent, reflecting formation of the $10,000,000 stabilization concern. Cotton closed about 75 cents a bale higher after wide and erratic fluctuations. Corn was barely steady, under the influence of bearish weather.

Foreign exchanges generally eased further, with the exception of sterling, which held at $4.86¼ for cables ...

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Increased confidence in higher prices showed itself among wheat traders today, largely as a result of expected doings of the newly organized wheat stabilization corporation. There was an evident general reluctance to press the selling side of the market, and much notice was taken of 3,868,000-bushel decrease of world stocks of wheat for the week, with the total now only about 35,000,000 bushels more than at this time last year. Besides, figures showing that domestic visible supplies have been curtailed much more rapidly than last year tended also to promote upturns in wheat values.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were firm, 1¼c to 1¾c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ¾c off to ¼c up, oats ¼c to ⅝c advance, and provisions varying from 2c decline to a rise of 7c.

Right from the outset, wheat prices in Chicago took an upward course today, indications being plain that the new emergency ally of the Federal Farm Board would soon be on a substantial working basis. Meanwhile, Liverpool wheat values were higher than expected, and word was quickly at hand that the Farm Board had at once given its formal approval to the stabilizaton body. Adding further impetus to the rise of the market were scattering unfavorable crop advices from domestic winter wheat territory. Kansas official reports in particular telling of considerable damage from recent freezing and also emphasizing need of rain to prevent soil drifting.

Tightening up of wheat prices today received considerable aid from attention given to the fact that since November 1 domestic supplies of wheat in sight have decreased 35,000,000 bushels against 10,000,000 bushels shrinkage during the same period a year ago. In this connection, talk was current that the decrease would be more rapid the remainder of the crop year, especially should exports increase, which seems probable. Furthermore, widely circulated assertions that stocks of wheat in Great Britain are equal to ten weeks' supply were ridiculed as absurd on the ground that the total would have to be 50,000,000 bushels instead of actually less than 15,000,000. On the other hand, export business in North American wheat today amounted to only 300,000 bushels, largely Canadian.

PRICES VARY LITTLE IN BONDS' TURNOVER

High-Grade Carriers Prove Rather Thin, While Utilities Rally.

U. S. RUBBER ADVANCES

New York, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—The bond market was without decided change in today's preholiday session. Prices edged narrowly up and down and although a few of the prime rails made net variations of a point either way, most of the closing prices were within small fractions on Monday's final figures.

Thirty-day time loans firmed, but the other maturities eased off to 4½ to 4¾ per cent. United States Governments sagged on the announcement of another Treasury bill floatation later in the week. Dealings in this group were exceptionally light.

Convertible Rails Decline.

Convertible rails lost much of yesterday's gain. New Haven 6s dropped 1½ and Missouri Pacific 5½s declined a point. Atchison 4½s and Chicago North Western 4¾s each sagged ½. The feature of the stock privilege group, however, was a rise of 2¾ points in Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron 6s on the largest turnover shown by this issue in some time. Colon Oil 5s advanced a point, but held only half of the gain. The two telephone convertibles were firm.

Wickwire Spencer Steel listings rallied briskly on a report that the Federal court master would recommend settlement of foreclosure action by March 1. The first mortgage 7 per cent certificates rose 4 points.

High grade rails were rather thin. Santa Fe general 4s and Baltimore & Ohio refunding 5s declined a point, while New Haven debenture 4s and Northern Pacific general 3s advanced to about the same extent. Losses of ¼ to ½ in Canadian National 5s, Rock Island 4s, Illinois Central 4½s and Southern Pacific refunding 4s indicated the listless nature of the day's trading in investment issues.

Utilities Prove Firm.

Utilities were firm. American Telephone 5s of 1965 turned over in some bulk, losing ½ net. Columbia Gas & Electric 5s (May maturity), New Orleans Public Service "A" 5s, Pacific Gas & Electric 5s and North American Edison 5½s changed hands at slight advances. Utah Power & Light first 5s were steady on the flotation of the new $4,000,000 issue.

Humble Oil 5½s, International Match 5s, Reading Coal & Iron 5s, United States Rubber 5s and Goodyear Tire 5s moved with fair activity on a rising trend. Republic Iron & Steel 5½s and Lorillard 5s turned heavy, losing more than a point.

Australian 5s of 1955 moved up half a point on good buying, while Cuba 5½s rose ¾ in the face of a $40,000,000 offering of 15-year bonds of the same coupon. French 7½s lost ⅞, finishing 2½ points below their recent record high. The 7s were steady. British 5½s were freely bought at around 104.

On the Rules of Traffic

By WILLIAM ULLMAN

That "there wasn't a car within a block" is no excuse for failing to stop at a "stop" sign in Washington. The traffic regulations are clear and concise on this point.

By the same token, it is not enough merely to stop. It is required that the driver not only bring his car to a halt but remain at a standstill until he can enter or cross the boulevard without interfering with traffic on it.

Example: A motorist is proceeding westward on Harrison street. As he approaches Wisconsin avenue, he sees a car about a block away to his left. Instead of coming to a stop, he slows his car momentarily, shifts into second gear, and enters the boulevard. The other driver is forced to slow down. Two offenses are chargeable to the first driver, failure to come to a complete stop and failure to wait until he could enter the boulevard without interfering with traffic upon it.

COMMERCE GROUP MEETING STIRRED BY CROSBY DEBATE

Real Estate Man Designates as "Foolish" Criticism of Appointment.

C. W. DARR EXPLAINS LETTER TO PRESIDENT

Civic Organizations to Meet Tonight on Prospective Commissioner.

Forensic fireworks crackled at a meeting of the Washington Chamber of Commerce last night at the Mayflower Hotel when Robert L. McKeever, a local real estate man and a member of the chamber, charged officials of the organization with acting foolishly in "criticizing President Hoover" in his selection of Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby as a District Commissioner.

Mr. McKeever's charges took the form of a 5-minute straight-from-the-shoulder speech. His charges had an electrical effect on Charles W. Darr, president of the chamber, who responded to the accusation of Mr. McKeever with a flashing piece of oratory and, at the same time, defended the action of the board of directors of the chamber.

The verbal altercation between Mr. Darr and Mr. McKeever came on the eve of a conference of representatives of leading civic organizations of the city to be held tonight, under the sponsorship of the Washington Board of Trade, to discuss the selection of Gen. Crosby for the Board of District Commissioners.

Darr Explains Letter.

In responding to Mr. McKeever, the president of the chamber maintained that the board of directors had not criticized the President nor Gen. Crosby. Mr. Darr explained: "Upon the approval of the board of directors, I wrote the President, cordially requesting him to reconsider the selection of Gen. Crosby, drawing attention to the fact that the prospective appointee was not a bona fide resident of the District and that he was an Army man. No criticism of the President nor of Gen. Crosby was intended. We admire Gen. Crosby as an officer and a gentleman, but don't believe that he should be appointed a Commissioner."

Mr. McKeever wished to know if the question was to be placed before the entire chamber membership. Mr. Darr explained that as action had already been taken by the directors that a vote to reverse this action would now be necessary. Mr. McKeever did not push his argument further, and the program of the meeting proceeded.

Dedicated to Real Estate Men.

This was a meeting dedicated to the real estate men of the city. Among the speakers were Charles W. Eliot, 2d, city planner; Alfred H. Lawson, president of the Washington Real Estate Board; Horace W. Peaslee, president of the Washington Institute of Architects; Rufus Lusk, secretary of the Operators Builders Association; E. H. Rosengarten, president of the Building Trades Employers Association, and Robert V. Fleming, president of the Riggs National Bank.

The meeting tonight is expected to be attended by all invited by the Washington Board of Trade.

Dr. George C. Havenner, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, who was reported yesterday to have declined to attend the meeting if the selection of Gen. Crosby was to be discussed, announced last night that he would attend. However, Dr. Havenner added the explanation that he would not take any stand on the question of Gen. Crosby for the reason that the Federation of Citizens Associations has not yet expressed itself officially on the selection of the Army man.

The Merchants and Manufacturers Association is reported to have taken a similar attitude for the same reason. The Federation of Citizens Associations and the Merchants and Manufacturers Association have expressed opposition to the Jones bill.

Group to Meet Friday.

These two organizations have meetings of their own scheduled for Friday, and the selection of Gen. Crosby is expected to be discussed and definitely acted on at this time.

E. J. Murphy, president of the Board of Trade, explained yesterday that he does not expect any definite line of action to develop from the conference tonight. "The purpose of the meeting," he explained, "is to feel out the sentiments of these various organizations toward the selection of a military man as Commissioner. The way will then be clear to make further progress."

CITIZEN GROUP HITS CLOSING OF SCHOOL

Sixteenth Street Association Flays Portable Shutting on Kalmia Road.

BOARD EXPLAINS MOVE

Closing of one of the two portable schools at Kalmia road and Sixteenth street northwest yesterday by the Board of Education, with the transfer of six of its pupils to the Takoma School about a mile away, last night drew a protest from the Sixteenth Street Heights Citizens Association at a meeting at Georgia and Alaska avenues northwest.

With the transfer of the 6 pupils, the 15 remaining pupils of the closed portable were moved into the other portable to swell the enrollment to 26. The decision to abandon the other structure was made, school authorities explained, because at the opening of the new term last week the enrollment there did not justify keeping both open.

The association adopted resolutions petitioning the Board of Education to require all pupils residing in the section, from the first to fourth grades, inclusive, to attend the portable, and petitioning the Board of Education to defer demolishing the closed portable until the association determines whether an enrollment can be attained to justify keeping both structures open. The resolutions also embodied the avowed plan of the association to canvass residents of the community on the subject.

This group of portable schools is the unit which Representative Simmons, of Nebraska, chairman of the subcommittee on appropriations, has cited as an example of proposed school construction for sections where the pupil population does not warrant permanent buildings, criticizing school authorities for asking for an appropriation for a permanent building for so small a school attendance.

A resolution urging the District Board of Education to provide matrons for all elementary schools in Washington was adopted last night by the Burleith Citizens Association in session at the Gordon Junior High School.

Capt. Herbert C. Whitehurst, assistant to the District Engineer Commissioner, made a brief talk on the work of his department.

Blame in Fatal Traffic Mishap Will Be Fixed

A coroner's jury will convene in the District Morgue at 11 o'clock today to fix responsibility for the death early yesterday of Nathan Mazor, 65 years old, who was injured in a traffic mishap six days ago.

While crossing Pennsylvania avenue northwest at John Marshall place, last Thursday night, Mr. Mazor was felled by an automobile, reported to have been driven by John Cryer, of Twelfth and G streets southeast. Upon learning of Mr. Mazor's death at Providence Hospital yesterday, Cryer surrendered to Sixth Precinct police to await the outcome of the inquest.

Boy Scouts to Hear Lectures.

The first of a series of lectures on natural history to be held under the auspices of Boy Scout Troop 61 will be given Saturday afternoon at the New National Museum. Dr. R. S. Bassler, curator of the museum, will speak on "Caves." The lectures will be given every Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Car Plates Lead To Liquor Arrest

Swinging Tags Cause Man to Be Halted; Alleged Rum Is Found.

For want of a nail the shoe was lost, for want of a she the horse was lost, and for want of a horse the rider was lost. John Edward Eddy, Randolph place near First street northwest, now knows the modern version of the old proverb. For want of a tight bolt the license plate swung, and for swinging plates the driver lost his car and 240 quarts of alleged liquor.

Eddy was driving along the Colesville pike last night near White Oak when Corpl. Leroy Snyder, Montgomery County police, noticed the swinging tags. When he stopped Eddy, the policeman became suspicious of his nervous actions and secured a search warrant from Justice of the Peace Ward W. Caddington at Silver Spring.

He found 240 quarts of alleged liquor in the car. Eddy was placed in the Silver Spring substation lockup to await bond of $500 for his appearance February 27 in Police Court at Rockville to answer charges of possession and transportation with intent to sell intoxicating liquor.

Nine Held in Raid Of Tavern Score

U. S. Commissioner Permits Dismissal of Mann Act Charges.

Charges of conspiracy to violate the Mann act that had been made against five women and four men who were arrested in a recent raid on the Kit Kat Inn, on the Washington boulevard, were dismissed yesterday by United States Commissioner J. Frank Supplee in Baltimore.

The nine defendants, however, were turned over to the Howard County authorities, who plan to prosecute them on other charges.

The raid on the Kit Kat Inn was made by Federal authorities who alleged that it was a depot in a widespread system of white slavery.

Acting United States District Attorney Norman Forrest, following the dismissal of the defendants, stated that the Government would continue its investigation of the activities of the resort in cooperation with State authorities.

Street Car Holdup Arrests Expected

Descriptions Broadcast to All Towns Where Men Might Have Fled.

Montgomery County police believe that it will be only a question of time until they arrest the bandits who held up and robbed a Capital Traction street car Monday, making their escape with a satchel that contained approximately $1,493.

Since the finding of the empty satchel near Lorton, Va., no additional clews have been uncovered, but the fact that the robbers were bound for the South was regarded as significant. Descriptions have been broadcast to all towns where the trio might have fled.

An armored car will be employed in the future to take the money from the car barn near the Chevy Chase Lake to the bank. Heretofore the money has been sent down by an early morning street car, and the motorman has placed it in the bank.

G. A. R. PATRIOTISM LAUDED AT BANQUET

Red Demonstrations Are Denounced as Civil War Veterans Meet.

OFFICIALS ARE HONORED

A plea for more patriotism of the sort radiated by Union Veterans of the Civil War and a denouncement of the communistic demonstrations in this country were voiced last night in patriotic addresses at the annual encampment of the Department of the Potomac, Grand Army of the Republic, at the Raleigh Hotel. The reception and banquet were given in honor of Edwin L. Foster, commander in chief of the G. A. R., and Mrs. Margaret J. L. Bennett, national president of the Woman's Relief Corps, auxiliary to the G. A. R.

More than 200 white-haired veterans, Sons of Union Veterans, and members of the Woman's Relief Corps of the Potomac Department applauded lustily whenever references were made to "the grand old flag" and the patriotism of the boys of '61.

Besides the honor guests, Senator Porter H. Dale, of Vermont, and Representative Roy G. Fitzgerald, of Dayton, Ohio, spoke. Short addresses were made by several distinguished Civil War veterans. There were three past commanders in chief of the G. A. R. present.

Samuel G. Mawson, Potomac Department commander, presided as toastmaster. Following the presentation of the flag by Hazard Wheeler amid dozens of draped flags, the Rev. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the First Congregational Church pronounced the invocation. "The Star-Spangled Banner," the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "America" were sung with enthusiasm.

Tonight the department will conduct exercises commemorating the 121st birthday of Abraham Lincoln at 8 o'clock at the First Congregational Church. A lengthy patriotic program has been arranged.

Woman Is Hurt as Auto Knocks Over Lamp Post

Mrs. Lillian McNary, 60 years old, of Twenty-ninth and O streets northwest, was cut about the face by flying glass yesterday when an automobile in which she was riding was swerved into a lamp post at Thirty-first and O streets northwest to avoid a collision with another car.

The injured woman was treated at Georgetown University Hospital and her condition was reported as not serious. Police reported that the automobile was driven by Elizabeth Gregg, of Twenty-ninth and O streets, and that it knocked over the lamp post, which had a fire alarm box attached.

Negative Side Wins Debate on Dry Law

Columbia University Men Discuss Eighteenth Amendment.

Upholding the negative side of the subject, "Resolved, That the eighteenth amendment should be repealed," the Columbian Debating Society defeated the Freshman Debating Society in an interorganization debate of the Columbia University School of Law last night at the institution, 1314 Massachusetts avenue northwest.

Byrnes F. Bentley, a member of the winning team, with John T. Burns, was adjudged the best individual speaker. He will compete later with leading debaters selected in other contests at the university.

The judges were Attorneys Daniel Ring, chairman; Timothy G. Histon and John D. Kiley, all alumni of the institution. Joseph Leonard Townsend, president of the Alumni Association, presided and Mark S. Robson acted as chairman of the arrangements committee.

Prison Record Is Laid To Assault Suspect

Through fingerprints, police declared yesterday, they have discovered John Slade, 30, of Seventeenth and E streets southeast, who is being held in the Mariboro Jail on two charges of assault with intent to kill, was recently released from a New Jersey prison after serving an eight-year sentence for a similar offense.

Slade was arrested Friday night and accused of shooting Gardner Middleton, 19 years old, and assaulting Leo Murray, 19, while riding with them in an automobile in nearby Maryland.

Nominations of officers for the ensuing year and a discussion of both the Jones bill and the nomination of Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby for a District commissionership, is scheduled by the Michigan Park Citizens Association for its meeting at 8 o'clock tonight at 3912 Twelfth street northeast.

Two Innocent Men Caught In Net Set for Swindlers

Solicitors for Police Yearbook Fund Prove to Be Operating Legitimately After Arrest as They Leave Persian Legation.

Carefully laid plans of the police to capture two alleged "solicitors" for funds for "publication of a police year book" which no police organization had authorized, yesterday turned out to be boomerangs, for when police arrested two men in connection with the soliciting, they suddenly discovered that the men were in the legitimate business of asking contributions to such a book.

The book is being published by Harry N. Douthitt, former secretary of the Citizens Service Association, now head of the Bluecoat Publication Co., which issues a monthly paper "devoted to the interests of the Metropolitan Police Department."

Carroll Bernard Dugan, 38 years old, North Capitol and M streets, and James McCarthy Coulehan, 40 years old, Twenty-ninth and P streets northwest, the men arrested, were released as soon as explanations had been made to Inspector William S. Shelby who declared there was no evidence of law violation but evidently a "misunderstanding somewhere."

The men were apprehended as they emerged from the Persian Legation, 2620 Sixteenth street northwest, after Prince M. Firouz, secretary of the legation, had telephoned police when they made their solicitation. The prince had been warned that "solicitors" were seeking funds for an unauthorized publication supposed to be devoted to the police and had acted accordingly.

Mr. Douthitt, when notified of the arrest of the two men employed by him, announced that his company, while it had no connection with the Police Department, is planning a year book for the first of April, dealing with happenings in the department.

Inspector Shelby stated that the solicitors had obtained subscriptions of $25 each from Prince Albert de Ligne, Belgian Ambassador, and William Phelps Eno, engineer and traffic expert, before the police became alarmed and sent out warnings against them. When the warning was issued, Prince de Ligne is reported to have stopped payment on his check.

Burroughs Group Hits School Board

Legality of Pupil Transfer Is Questioned by Association.

Questioning the legality of the Board of Education's ruling recently in transferring seventh and eighth grade pupils of the Burroughs School to the Langdon Junior High School, the Burroughs Citizens Association, at a meeting last night at the Burroughs School, voted to obtain an attorney to study the matter with a view to possible action later.

In the resolutions adopted, the association intends to solicit funds from residents of the section and draw an amount from its own treasury to total $75 for obtaining counsel.

W. E. Rabenhorst, president of the association, was nominated by the group for a position on the Citizens Advisory Council. The association accepted the resignation of William A. Horn as a delegate to the federation and the resignation of Joseph A. Koons as secretary. R. P. Armstrong was named chairman of the membership committee and Wilbur S. Finch as chairman of the public utilities committee.

Civic Group Considers Suffrage for District

Without action, the Bloomingdale Civic Association at its meeting last night at the Tabor Presbyterian Church, Second and S streets northwest, took under consideration recommendations by its legislative committee to indorse suffrage for the istrict and a study into the question of an elective school board.

A special committee was named to actively oppose the proposed plan of the District Government to establish its garage at McMillan Park, Second and Bryant streets northwest, and to take injunction proceedings against the District if necessary. This committee included E. S. Harris, Guy Tinner and William R. Fauntroy.

Rum Found in Cafe Before Doors Open

Proprietor Freed in $500 Bond on Charge of Possession.

Third Precinct Detectives William Burke and S. F. Gravely, armed with a search warrant, visited the Valentino restaurant, 1129 Seventeenth street northwest, about noon yesterday, and, upon seeking admittance, were informed that the place never opens for business until midafternoon.

However, the officers declared that it was not so much the fact that the place was not ready for business, as the finding of 115 gallons of alleged wine and about 6 gallons of alleged red liquor, that made them persona non grata at that hour.

Cajo Prosperi, white, giving his age as 45, and the proprietor of the establishment, was locked up on a charge of possession. He was later released on $500 bond.

Woman Seriously Ill of Poison.

As a result of an alleged attempt to end her life yesterday by drinking poison, police reported that Gertrude Hawkins, colored, 24 years old, of an apartment on N street near Fourth street northwest, was in a critical condition at Freedman's Hospital.

College Head Obtains Mementos of Lincoln

Chancellor of Memorial University Is Given Cane and Gavel Which Ford and Indiana Society Tried to Procure.

Dr. John Wesley Hill, chancellor of the Lincoln Memorial University, at Cumberland Gap, Tenn., has just returned to Washington from an extended Western trip where he was actively engaged in the interests of the Tennessee school.

It was apropos of Dr. Hill's return at this time that he brought with him two of the rarest Lincoln relics now in existence, mementos that only recently Henry Ford and the Indiana Research Society made unsuccessful attempts to procure.

It is a matter of historical record that Abraham Lincoln was nominated for the Presidency in a wigwam pitched upon an open lot, during the Republican convention at Chicago in 1860. Following his selection two of his followers entered the hall where the delegates were in session bearing two walnut fence rails that stretched from the shoulders of one to the shoulders of the other.

The two rails were festooned with flags and a picture of the martyred President. The rails had been split by Lincoln. Later, John Hanks, a cousin of Lincoln, procured one of these rails, from which the President-elect carved a cane and a gavel.

During a Republican rally in Danville, Ill., Lincoln presented the cane and gavel to his friend, Ira Haworth. Silver plates adorned both the cane and gavel on which were inscribed "From Abraham Lincoln to Ira Haworth."

Mr. Haworth treasured the cane and gavel until his death, about 25 years ago, when they became the property of his now octogenarian sister, Mrs. Hanna M. Fisher, of Portland, Oreg. Mrs. Hanna has guarded these sacred relics for the past quarter of a century, keeping them in a bank vault in her home town.

Mrs. Fisher was consistently deaf to monetary overtures of endless collectors and persons interested in the late President, but upon learning that Dr. Hill was in Seattle recently, she journeyed from Portland to Seattle and turned them over to Dr. Hill to become the property of the Lincoln Memorial University.

The University already has a noteworthy Lincolniana, owning among other things the historic desk at which Lincoln sat during his three terms in the Illinois Legislature, the cane he carried the night of his assassination at Ford's Theater and many historic documents connected with his career.

ARMSTRONG BETTER IN FIGHT ON FEVER

Scientist, Ill of Psittacosis, Gains While Colleagues Continue Research.

SERUM LACK IS HANDICAP

Heartened by a notable improvement yesterday in the condition of Dr. Charles Armstrong, bacteriologist at the Hygienic Laboratory, plunged deeper in their research to isolate the causative organism of parrot fever, or psittacosis.

Dr. Armstrong, who contracted the disease while experimenting on dead parrots in the laboratory, yesterday showed a marked improvement. Capt. T. W. Richards, commanding officer at the Naval Hospital, last night reported Dr. Armstrong's condition as "improved, but still serious."

There was a reduction in temperature and X-ray pictures indicated that the clot on Dr. Armstron's lung symptomatic of pneumonia had been arrested.

Kansas Case Reported.

Dr. I. C. Richards, of the Public Health Service, yesterday issued a formal report to Surg. Gen. Hugh S. Cummings, of the diagnosis of a case of parrot fever in Kansas City, Kans. Dr. Williams had examined the woman, and his tests revealed the psittacosis infection, which had been contracted from a love bird.

Meanwhile, bacteriologists at the Hygienic Laboratory, contained their attempt to isolate the germ. Masks are worn to prevent infection. Every precaution, designed to immunize the workers, has been taken.

Results obtained from the scientific study of the bacteria in the dead parrots have not been encouraging. Five or six organisms have been isolated, some of which may have caused the disease, but none corresponds to the description of the germ which was discovered many years ago by a French bacteriologist.

Serum Extremely Scarce.

The scarcity of the serum, which the physicians think is the cause of Dr. Armstrong's improvement, is the cause of uneasiness in the Health Service. It is almost impossible to obtain. The antitoxin is blood extracted from patients who are recovering from the disease.

Yesterday a representative of the Public Health Service went to Baltimore in an effort to obtain a small phial of blood from convalescent patients of parrot fever. The Public Health Service doctors say that it is very precious because the recovering patients are reluctant to be bled for fear that their resistance will be lowered.

A tribute to Harry Anderson, of the Public Health Service, who died of parrot fever contracted while trying to isolate the germ, was paid in the House yesterday by Representative Griffin (Democrat), New York. Representative Griffin described him as a soldier who died in the warfare of science for humanity.

Washingtonians Hurt in Wreck.

J. Hale McKillip, of 1620 Twentieth street northwest, is in St. Francis Hospital, Trenton, N. J., recovering from injuries received when his car overturned and burned last Friday night en route to New York. Wesley Frame, of Hyattsville, who was in the auto, was also injured.

RECEPTION IS HELD IN CAPPER'S HONOR

Senator's Work in Behalf of District's Schools Is Given Praise.

URGES VOTES FOR CITY

Senator Arthur Capper deplored the voteless condition of the District last night at the testimonial reception held in his honor by the Langley Parent-Teacher Association in the McKinley High School, and said that if he had the power to do so, he would give Washington those privileges which it does not now possess.

Thanking the assemblage for its tribute of appreciation for his efforts in behalf of the public schools of the District, Senator Capper stated that there is still room for further development. There yet remain eight or ten dilapidated, poorly lighted school buildings and many portable schoolhouses, he said.

Disclaiming much of the credit for the educational progress that has occurred within the last few years, he said that a great deal has been due to the fact that the District committees in both houses are really interested in the District and do their utmost to forward its projects.

Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York, said that the purpose of government is to serve humanity and that men like Senator Capper, who do all they can for the public schools, do the most for humanity. He cited Senator Capper's school work as his greatest achievement.

Representative Mary T. Norton, of New Jersey, told of Senator Capper's earnest desire to work for the people and the strenuous efforts he exerted toward that end.

Col. William B. Ladue, commissioner of the District, and Dr. Abram Simon of the Board of Education, also spoke. Mrs. Giles Scott Rafter, the organizer of the Parent-Teacher Congress, presented Senator Capper with the testimonial expressing the appreciation of the Parent-Teacher Association of the untiring efforts of Senator Capper in their behalf.

Two organ solos were played by Miss L. P. Bailey and music, under the direction of Dore Walten, was furnished by the Tech Symphony Orchestra.

Transatlantic Phone Explained at Meeting

MERGER TO AWAIT BILL TO CUT POWER OF DISTRICT COURT

Trolley Combine Resolution Hangs on Decision on Dictatorial Right.

TERMS ARE APPROVED BY SENATE COMMITTEE

No Action Taken on Howell Capital Dry Measure or Park Proposal.

A bill to take away from the local Supreme Court its power to dictate decisions to the Public Utilities Commission will be pushed in the Senate before the resolution authorizing a street car merger is voted on.

The Senate District committee decided on such a program yesterday after it had approved the terms of the new merger plan.

In approving the merger resolution, the committee decided to eliminate the section taking away the court's power to overrule the Public Utilities Commission and to incorporate it in a separate bill.

Power Removal Sought.

To take away from the District Supreme Court its present legislative and administrative powers is one of the principal aims of the Public Utilities Commission, whose members think that their decisions with regard to valuations and other matters should stand unless they are palpably confiscatory.

With some slight amendments, the merger plan approved yesterday by the Senate committee is the same one drafted by the Public Utilities Commission.

The provision guaranteeing a continuance of the present rate of fare for two years is retained, notwithstanding the vigorous protests against it by the traction companies.

Balks Merger, Claim.

At a recent hearing, William F. Ham, president of the Washington Railway & Electric Co., and John H. Hanna, president of the Capital Traction Co., declared that a merger was impossible if this provision stayed in.

The members of the committee, however, evidently do not take this threat seriously.

Before it acted yesterday the committee members talked for a half hour with Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick and Harleigh Hartman, chairman and vice chairman, respectively, of the Public Utilities Commission.

The motion to divorce the court provision from the merger resolution and incorporate it in a separate bill was made by Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia.

Seven Others Present.

Others present at the meeting were Chairman Capper and Senators Vandenberg, of Michigan; Blaine, of Wisconsin; Jones, of Washington; Gould, of Maine; Copeland, of New York, and Blease, of South Carolina.

No action was taken on the Howell bill to give Washington a prohibition enforcement act or on the Cramton park development bill.

It is probable that the committee will hold a night hearing on the Cramton bill and that the members also will make a tour of the areas that it is proposed to buy and convert into park lands.
